Your Dominant Ear

Dr. Alfred A. Tomatis was a French ear-nose-and-throat doctor who spent decades studying the cause of hearing difficulties. His work led to a number of discoveries about unknown functions of the ear and the therapeutic effects of sound. One of his many discoveries was that we all have a "dominant" ear, much as the majority of us have a dominant hand. According to Tomatis, people who are right-ear dominant learn more easily than those who are left-ear dominant. This is due to the fact that the right ear is directly connected to the left brain, which is the part that processes language. This finding shows the complexities and importance of hearing well. Good hearing leads to greater fulfillment.

P.S. Tomatis also maintained that right-ear dominance also leads to better speech control.

Charlevoix City council mulls new bid policy

BY INTHAMER BOON
EDITOR

An old joke in government projects is vital machinery is created by the lowest, not necessarily the most qualified, bidder.

And, while Charlevoix City officials say they want the process to remain equitable for taxpayers, some of them see the upside to awarding a contract to a local bidder — even at a higher cost.

"I want contractors to be informed in the bid process," said proposal proponent and Charlevoix City Council member Jill Picha (Third Ward). "Since I've sat on council we've had two different contracts go out and we had low bidders that weren't local and the local bidder automatically got the job — it's causing hard feelings."

Currently the council's only policy on putting projects up for bid is that they reserve the right to accept or reject any bid submitted to them.

"I think this will assist all contractors in knowing what the rules are when going into the bidding process," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel. "Overall, I think this will be a good thing."

But, Straebel cautioned, cost of the job is merely one aspect the city examines when determining to whom a job is awarded.

"We look at qualifications, references and scheduling of a project," he said.

Construction companies like Hallmark Construction of Traverse City and Catt Development of Gaylord both favor the move.

"I've always encouraged the fact that local contractors should get preference over out-of-area contractors," said Hallmark president Dennis Fedorinichik. "There are methods that have been used before, and they can give the local contractor a percentage of advantage."

He added, "Let's face it, most of the local companies and their employees are the ones paying local taxes that provide the tax base."

Catt Development president Glenn Catt said he feels a policy of this type is appropriate as long as the methodology is reasonable.

"I think it's a great thing. Local contractors pay local taxes and employ people locally, and that's money that stays in the community," Catt said. "I also know how much work goes into bidding a project, and it is important to know the rules up front."

Picha emphasized that the new bid policy does not yet exist, and that discussion of the idea will likely occur in the coming weeks during regular city council meetings.

Picha's suggested formula would be that a local contractor's price could be as much as five percent higher on a job of up to a half-million dollars and three percent higher on jobs between a half-million and $1 million.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said he believes the city needs a more comprehensive bidding policy and tentatively supports

Carlson

Picha's proposal. "I'm still mulling it over," he said. "As a local contractor, I know how hard it is to get work. I also know it's fair for everyone to know what's going to happen when bidding on a job."

Carlson added, "This is just one more step we can take to keep everything above board with no hidden agendas."

Discussion could occur as early as 7 p.m. on Monday Oct. 19 at Charlevoix City Hall during their regularly scheduled meeting.

Once council has devised a plan, the city attorney and manager will create a legal document for council to either approve or reject.

Young and Campbell part three

BY ANNE KELLY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

In part two of the adventures of Earl Young and Don Campbell, we had just left off with some memories out of Don Campbell's autobiography.

Now we find Campbell yearning in his love of boats.

Campbell didn't wonder; he wanted to be part of the schooner scene; he would follow the lure of the sea when the opportunity arose, crewing on lumber barges, steamboats, passenger boats, and finally, his father's mail boat. When he finally got land legs deciding to settle down and raise a family, he made his home on West Dixon Avenue, just down the street from what would become the Weatherlane property on the channel looking out over Lake Michigan. Here is where his daughter, Anne, remembers her carefree days growing up in Charlevoix in the late 1920's early 30's. Anne and her sister could boat or swim at will in those carefree days and especially enjoyed watching the freighters and passenger boats jockeying into position to cross through the channel.

"I remember freighters being detained in the bend that was once in the channel, waiting for the wind to shift them into position to make the passage." We could see the lights on board and hear their conversations in the night. The sailors would throw bones off the deck to our dog," she remembers. Bandfield's father, Don Campbell, became an integral part of the town he called home. He involved himself in community matters, establishing himself as a respected businessman in the shoe business.

Sometime in 1919, Campbell bought the building that later became Campbell's Boot Shop. Earl Young and his mother had maintained an office there but moved out and across the street when the Campbell's moved in. It is from the vantage point of Campbell's Boot Shop, that Campbell played observer to several generations of businesses along Bridge Street from 1919 until 1967. In 1963 he began writing memoirs recalling the history of the economic community of Charlevoix. They were published as a series in the Charlevoix Courier beginning in 1967. When his daughter Anne, came across her father's memoirs and scrap books, she took it upon herself to work on publishing them into a book.

Both Young and Campbell left their mark on the small lakeside town of Charlevoix, each in his own way. Young with his legacy of architecture and Campbell with his memoirs, photographs and paintings of the area he loved. Their lives intersected briefly and became enmeshed by their education and travel. The "boys" left behind in their wakes, a slice of small town American history for us to appreciate and enjoy.

Charlevoix welcomes new teachers

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A month into the school year, four new Charlevoix Public Schools staff members are settling into their new routines.

Dickinson

Kim Dickinson, a counselor at Charlevoix High School, found her career path in high school.

"It was my own lack of a relationship with my high school counselor that made me want to go into counseling," Dickinson explained. "I love this age group and I knew from then on I wanted to work with teenagers and help them carve out a path for their future."

Dickinson, who lives in Harbor Springs with her husband and their four children, has a master's degree from Michigan State University in counseling. She received her bachelor's degree from Spring Arbor University. Last year, she completed an internship at Harbor Springs High School.

"I love working with the students," said Dickinson. "I feel I went down a path that directed me to do something where my passions and talents meet."

First grade teacher Adam Wood, who grew up in Charlevoix, previously taught at St. Mary's and spent a year as a substitute teacher.

Wood has a degree from Grand Valley State University where he majored in physical education and minor in elementary education. Wood believes his patience and understanding will serve him well in his new position. "I really enjoy being a part of their lives," explained Wood. "I enjoy making an impact and getting to see their growth every day."

Wood

Jamie Warchol joins Wood as another first grade teacher at Charlevoix Elementary. Warchol, who is originally from the Detroit area, moved to Charlevoix after graduating from Central Michigan University.

She spent a year teaching in Charlevoix before teaching in East Jordan for two years. Warchol is happy to be back in the Charlevoix school system.

"I love seeing the kids grow and being there for them and being part of this community," said Warchol.

Warchol, who is married and is expecting her second child in December, knew she wanted to be a teacher since first grade.

"Education is a team effort, and we have a great group of teachers and administrators here in Charlevoix," said Warchol. "When I was in middle school, one of my favorite teachers asked if I would help with the special education students at lunchtime so they could get some work done. I enjoyed it so much, I knew I was going to be a teacher," said Bridgett Elowsky, who teaches Special Education at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Elowsky moved to Charlevoix 12 years ago with her husband. All three of her children are currently enrolled in the Charlevoix school system.

Elowsky, who graduated from Michigan State, taught in Midland for seven years before moving to Charlevoix. She then took time off from teaching to raise her children. Elowsky spent the last two years as administrators here in Charlevoix," said Warchol.

"I love seeing the kids grow and being there for them and being part of this community," said Warchol.

a long-term substitute. "Even when I was home with my children, I always stayed active in the schools," said Elowsky. "I felt I never really left because I was always here with the kids, helping out and volunteering."

But it's her love of education that drew Elowsky back to the classroom full-time.

"I love working with children, especially those that need help in extra areas," said Elowsky.

"I'm always willing to try another way to help a child."

Charlevoix Elementary practicing positive discipline

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A new program at Charlevoix Elementary School which rewards students for good behavior is already proving to be a success.

The program is called Awesome Behavior Choices, or ABC. Teachers and administrators began using the program at the start of the school year.

"All too often we give a lot of attention to negative behavior," said Dick Swenor, principal at Charlevoix Elementary School. "We thought we'd reverse that and give attention to positive behavior."

The ABC program centers around four basic concepts — Be Kind, Be Respectful, Be Responsible and Be Safe. Each month, students have a card with the 4 basic concepts. If a student disobeys one of the concepts, he'll receive a mark. But the school provides an incentive for the students who set a good example.

"If they get a mark, a note goes home to the parent. If they don't, they're rewarded at the end of the month," explained Swenor.

"The bounce house was so much fun," said Kelsey Robinson, a 4th grader. "We got to play dodge ball inside."

Swenor met with several teachers at the beginning of the year to come up with ideas for the reward days.

"My staff is just so creative," said Swenor. "We each took on a responsibility for each month. The teachers know what the kids like and we have a great year of rewards ahead."

In addition to the monthly rewards, those who haven't received any marks during the entire school year will have their picture displayed on a bulletin board in the front of the building. These students are the "Clean Slates."

"I haven't had any marks this year," said Robinson. "I really want to have my picture up on the bulletin board."

The idea for Charlevoix Elementary's ABC Program came from similar programs used at a number of area schools. Swenor then worked with teachers to make a program that would work for Charlevoix Elementary.

"A similar program was used during my time teaching in East Jordan," said Jamie Warchol, a first grade teacher. "Students seem to be responding extremely well to the rewards."

Robinson believes the program is working well, but observes, "I have a lot of nice people in my class anyway."

"So far it's been a real incentive for kids to make good choices," said Swenor. "It's been a real positive situation."

Environmental efforts bring success

Additional actions proposed at environmental project

"Recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

David Mengebier
President, CMS Land Company

PETOSKEY, Mich., (Sept. 28, 2009) - CMS Land Company reports that significant progress has been made in addressing environmental issues related to the defunct cement plant that once operated on the shores of Little Traverse Bay. The abandoned site was redeveloped in 1994 into what are now Resort Township's East Park and the Bay Harbor Resort. August water monitoring results verify that pH readings above the action level of nine have been virtually eliminated and human health and safety concerns have been effectively addressed. In August, only one reading above nine (9.12, similar to baking soda) was recorded in an isolated area west of the Bay Harbor golf course clubhouse. These results build on months of increasingly positive results and are a dramatic contrast to the dozens of pH readings above nine that were recorded in 2005, before CMS began its work at the site.

"These important environmental accomplishments are the result of a lot of hard work and substantial investment," said David Mengebier, CMS Land Company president. "The June reopening of East Park, the lifting of several health advisories, and these most recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

In reporting these results, CMS also noted two important milestones in completing work at the site: review and approval by regulators of the Remedial Investigation/Alternative Evaluation (RI/AE) studies for East Park and the Bay Harbor development and continued work to identify a local option for disposing of water collected at the site.

In late summer, CMS Land submitted the RI/AEs to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. The RI/AEs use established scientific processes to evaluate the effectiveness of both current and long-term remedies at both locations. The EPA and DEQ will consider public input while reviewing the documents and then can approve the documents or request additional study. Once approved, the RI/AEs will outline the final work involved with the project.

"We believe we have done an excellent job so far. We are hopeful that the RI/AEs will be reviewed and approved in a timely manner so that we can build on our progress and bring the project to a successful conclusion," said Mengebier.

In addition, work is underway to identify a local remedy to dispose of the water collected from East Park and Bay Harbor. The collection and treatment of large quantities of groundwater is the primary method CMS is using to address pH and mercury at the site. Different options under review would safely treat the water and release it to the lake, pump the water into the City of Petoskey's water treatment system for treatment, or involve the construction of a local disposal well near the site. CMS is currently shipping up to 27 trucks containing 11,500 gallons of water a day to Traverse City and Johannesburg for disposal.

"Trucking the water, because of its increased public safety and transportation risks, environmental concerns, and cost, is not a realistic long-term remedy," Mengebier said. "We absolutely need—and are encouraged that the public has expressed a desire—to identify a local solution to a local concern."

East Park and Bay Harbor were reclaimed from the site of an abandoned cement factory covering 1,200 acres and five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline. The brownfield site was redeveloped in 1994 and was the largest reclamation project in North America.

While no longer a partner in the project that redeveloped an abandoned cement factory into the Bay Harbor community and two public parks, CMS Land Company agreed to address certain environmental issues associated with the cement dust left behind by the cement plant. CMS has worked for five years and spent more than $90 million on the project to date and has achieved significant environmental progress in the protection of Little Traverse Bay.

Rayder football feasted on Elks 23-8

Jess

J. T. Lawrence sprinted for a 63-yard touchdown in the first half to give Charlevoix the momentum and a lead it would never relinquish as the Rayders celebrated homecoming with a Lake Michigan Conference win at Kipke Field.

Charlevoix, which improved to 4-3 overall, 2-3 league, got a safety from Indiana-signee Bill Ivan to increase the lead to 9-0 at halftime. Jake McLean, who rushed for 100 yards on 16 carries, scored twice in the second half to pad Charlevoix's lead. Charlevoix quarterback Clayton Mitchell completed 7-of-15 passes for 63 yards. Alex Foster finished with four catches for 49 yards.

"We got up and that was it," said coach Don Jess about maintaining the lead throughout the game. Michael Berry led the Charlevoix defense with 11 tackles. John Boss added eight. Foster and Lawrence each had an interception. Ivan and Chris Levens recorded two sacks apiece.

The Rayders go to Kalkaska for a league game on Friday, Oct. 16.

$30K grant vital to ferry service

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Ever-increasing rules and regulations on travel imposed by the government put an increasing burden on local carriers.

But, thanks to federal grant programs, that burden is being lessened.

"These grants will help us strengthen and protect critical infrastructure in two of our ports in Northern Michigan," stated First District U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) of the $30,000 awarded to the Beaver Island Boat Company.

"The safety and security of the Great Lakes is critical to the economic well being of Michigan. I applaud Secretary Napolitano for investing in these projects that will help stimulate the economy while making us safer."

Stupak

Company president and general manager Margo Marks, the funds will be used to purchase navigational upgrades as well as future security devices as needed.

"There are ever-increasing requirements for operation such as ours ... and compliance is expensive," she said. "We are in compliance, but this grant will allow us to upgrade and enhance our systems."

The funds were released as part of a $276,985 stimulus fund package intended to help secure the Great Lakes through and what Stupak called critical port infrastructure.

The other $246,985 went to Chippewa County in the upper peninsula to purchase a response boat.

The security devices, though they have not yet been devised or mandated for vessels like the Beaver Island Boat Company's ferry, will be used to help ensure only proper personnel enter sensitive areas.

"The Port Security Grant Program helps protect critical port infrastructure from terrorism; enhances maritime domain awareness and risk management capabilities; and supports the implementation of the Transportation Worker Identification Credential, a tamper-resistant biometric credential issued to workers who require unescorted access to secure areas of ports and vessels," Stupak stated.

Marks said her company already takes security measures to ensure unauthorized personnel do not enter such areas.

"There are already background checks on all existing mariners and anyone new to the industry to verify who they say they are," she said.

FILE PHOTO

The Beaver Island Boat Company was recently awarded $30,000 toward navigational and security enhancements through a U.S. Department of Homeland Security grant. Funds such as this one help small businesses like the ferry service continue to comply with stringent state and federal regulations which are routinely changed, upgraded and made more strict.

ONGOING EVENTS: DIVORCE HELP

A local team of attorneys, mediators, and mental health professionals have formed the group Up North Collaborative Divorce Professionals.

The organization will bring the option of collaborative divorce to Northern Michigan residents.

Collaborative divorce uses a team approach guiding divorcing couples to a settlement without resort to court intervention. The collaborative divorce model recognizes divorce is a family matter with legal consequences, as opposed to being primarily a legal dispute. Therefore, in collaborative divorce, the divorcing couple, their attorneys, mental health professionals, and financial specialists work together to craft the best resolution for their individual family.

The model allows the couple to retain control over issues such as property division, child support, and parenting time.

The couple, rather than the court, make these important and personal decisions.

The collaborative approach is often faster, less-stressful, and results in longer lasting resolution of these issues, eliminating future costs.

The mental health professionals include psychologists Mary Dillon, Lisa Franseen, Ann Marie Love, and social worker, Mike Wright.

All have been trained and certified by the Collaborative Practice Institute of Michigan.

The group is currently seeking financial specialists to join their team.

For further information about Collaborative Divorce, or if you are interested in becoming certified and joining the Up North Michigan Collaborative Divorce Professionals, visit www.CollaborativePracticeMI.org or contact any of the members listed above.

Take precautions to mitigate flu spread

in healthy people. In most cases people are sick from four to seven days with fever, cough, and aches," stated Dr. Josh Meyerson, medical director of the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "However, H1N1 flu can make some people very sick, especially pregnant women and children, teens and young adults."

He added, "Some get so sick they have to go to the hospital and some people, including children, have died from complications of the H1N1 flu."

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik said this week the first wave of the flu season came through the schools.

"As a result, we've seen a lot of student absences. The Principals and I appreciate the fact that parents are keeping children with fevers and other flu-like symptoms at home," Janik stated in an Oct. 15 news release. "It is highly unlikely (we) will receive any authoritative medical confirmation about the presence of H1N1 among our students. From the school district's perspective, we will assume that any case of the flu among any of our students has the potential to be the H1N1 strain."

As of Friday Oct. 9, schools reported two cases in Antrim County, zero cases in Charlevoix County, one case in Emmet County and zero in Osego County.

Meyerson did state in his release that the H1N1 is very easy to catch.

"It is a new virus that has never been seen before," he stated. "Children, teens, and young adults can get it easily because they have no immunity against it."

Meyerson added, "Seasonal flu usually hits older people harder than younger people, but H1N1 flu tends to be worse in younger people."

Getting the H1N1 shot, Meyerson stated, is the best way to protect yourself.

However, the vaccines are not yet available in the area.

Jane Sundmacher, public information officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, said she believes the vaccines will be ready by late October.

"The U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) says children, teens, and young adults should get an H1N1 shot as soon as the vaccine is available," Meyerson stated. "H1N1 flu shots are safe. They are made just like seasonal flu shots, which have a very good safety track record."

He added, "Over the years, hundreds of millions of Americans have received seasonal flu vaccines. The most common side effects following flu vaccinations are mild, such as soreness, redness, or swelling where the shot was given."

One of the main problems with health issues seems to be in getting the right information.

According to Sundmacher, no one in Northern Michigan has been quarantined for having H1N1.

The federal government has set up a myth-debunking section at www.flu.gov to handle some common misconceptions. Following are some facts about the flu:

- The government is not running a mandatory vaccination campaign;
- The H1N1 vaccine is free — the health department will provide it for free while some private doctors will charge an administration fee for the shot;
- You only need one dose of the vaccine;
- You may get the seasonal flu shot and the H1N1 at the same time;
- You cannot contract H1N1 by eating pork.

Public clinics to deliver the free vaccine to people are already planned and the times and dates of which could be announced as early as today at www.nwhealth.org.

As always, officials say, washing your hands, covering your mouth when you cough and staying home if you feel ill are the best ways to help mitigate the spread of the disease.

Mammograms best way to detect killer of women

BY BENJAMIN GENE EDITOR

Breast cancer has gone from a death sentence to a highly treatable ailment ... but you must detect it.

Hoping to ensure all women are checked for this rampant disease, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Circle of Strength support group is providing free mammograms.

"Our donors don't want money to be the barrier that prevents a woman from being screened for breast cancer," said Kathy Jacobsen, Charlevoix Area Hospital Community Health Educator. "The Circle of Strength of Charlevoix Area Hospital wants all women over the age of 40 to follow their doctor's recommendations and have a yearly mammogram. If there are changes to the breast or a lump is discovered prior to, or after age 40, women should notify their health care provider immediately."

The Circle of Strength is able to fund this project through donations from the Pink Ribbon Race and the TRI-4-Fun among other fundraising events.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, other than non-melanoma skin cancer, breast cancer is the most common cancer found in women and is the second leading cause of death in women of most races.

The National Cancer Institute says 192,370 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year alone. More than 40,000 of those women will die.

It is imperative, Jacobsen said, that women get tested since one in eight will develop breast cancer. According to mammogram veteran Beth Uehlein, the test isn't as bad as it seems.

"It's certainly not terrifying," she said. "I just had a mammogram about a month ago ... and I was probably in the hospital for about 30 minutes."

Uehlein, 57, said the minor inconvenience of the yearly test is worth the peace of mind.

"Mom's sister was diagnosed with breast cancer, and I've had a couple lumps in the past — fortunately they were just fibroid cysts," she said. "We've all heard the bad jokes and poems about what an ordeal it is. It certainly isn't fun, but it is necessary, and I would advise everybody not to be afraid: get it done."

The free mammogram program at the hospital is intended for those women who have no insurance, are underinsured or whose co-pay is burdensome. However, no proof of income or insurance is necessary for this free service, but a physician's order for the test is required.

Call Jacobsen at 547-8906 if you need this free service.

Upcoming events
• Tinkled Pink - A free evening of wine, cheese, chocolate and punting from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 22, in the hospital's solarium. Free massages, 30 percent off at the gift shop and tours. A silent auction will feature art work of Tim Leeper with proceeds to pay for mammograms.

• New Parent Expo - From 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Oct. 29, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. For parents-to-be, new parents, infants, and pre-school children. Kids encouraged wear their Halloween costumes as the hospital is offering free professional portraits. For more information call 547-8575.

Behold, the power of seeds

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

By now we have heard a lot about the new, oldest, oldest fossils of upright walking creatures who were most likely our distant ancestors.

Family were walking around Africa's Rift Valley about four-and-a-half million years ago. I should be more precise about the dates. The lucky accident of datable volcanic ash has provided a date of 4.4 million years — plus or minus 50,000 years: a potential error of just over one percent. To a botanist like me, the finding of fossil trees, leaves and seeds of the same age in the same place was almost as interesting. Our earliest, up to now, ancestors appear to have lived in a forest.

Fossil seeds were found that could probably be closely related to trees currently living in Africa. Much of plant evolution proceeds at a dramatically slower pace than the changes we see in animals. To bring it closer to home: if we were able to wander around in the forests of Northern Michigan five or even 10 million years ago, we would be able to recognize most of the plants. There would be Maple trees, Beech trees and Pine trees at least. And we would be able to harvest and eat the Beech nuts and Pine nuts much as we can now. I would be interested to know how much of the diet of our 4.4 million-years-ago ancestor consisted of the plant material that surrounded them. Some paleontologists, those who study ancient fossils, have suggested that, without the seeds of some plants as food, the evolution of humans would have been impossible. Consider how much of our current diet consists of seeds and the products of seeds. The majority of modern human food currently comes from the seeds of three or four plants: wheat, corn, rice and probably barley — without beer, would life be worth living? Seed-bearing plants appear in the fossil record for the first time about 300 million years ago. And, by 100 million years ago they were the dominant kinds of plants on earth. So they were there for our use as soon as we appeared. Ardipithecus certainly must have been eating some of the seeds from plants that surrounded them. So, the next time you eat a slice of bread or drown a corn flake in milk or steam some rice, say a thank-you to the idea of seeds. Think about it: any seed has to contain just the right combination of stored food to support a new plant until it can get along on its own. We are enough like plants to have most of our dietary needs supplied by a variety of seeds. Without seeds: no Ardipithecus; and without Ardipithecus: no us. Isn't the world a marvelous, even wondrous, place? Roger Knutson's column appears twice each month in the Charlevoix Courier. Contact Roger by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Memories not all 'roses in December'

MORE OR LESS
Christine Gwidt

Has this ever happened to you? You're talking to someone that you've run into at the grocery store or the mutual window at the race track. They have hailed you by name, but the area in your brain where information about this particular person is stored has been compromised. There is a fuzzy recollection, but nothing specific — most certainly not the person's name — is available for recall. "Ohhhh, hi — How are youuuu?" is the best you can do to acknowledge the proverbial stranger. The most insufferable outcome of such a meeting is when, mid-conversation, you are suddenly cognizant of the fact that this person is a jerk. Yes, you do know them, if not by name, then by the suddenly crystal clear memory of a distasteful encounter better left dormant. Maddeningly, by the time you put it all together you're already clapping him/her on the back and planning a barbeque with the spouses. What is it about failing to recognize someone that makes us so anxious to know them all over again? Wouldn't it be logical to assume that there must have been a lack of chemistry the first time around? But even forewarned and forearmed, things can still get dicey. At a time in my youth when the term "crash-pad" was still bandied about with some frequency, I agreed to meet an old acquaintance at a restaurant in Los Angeles. Before he'd called to say that he was in town, I hadn't heard from Steve since he'd been my lab partner in a ninth-grade science class. Fifteen years had passed since then, and I only remembered a shy, smart guy with blond hair, Clark Kent glasses and a mouthful of braces that collected bits of food. I arrived early and chose a seat at the bar where I could keep an eye on the mirrored reflection of the front door. After a few minutes, a blondish guy entered and scanned the room. I swiveled on my stool. "Steve?" I said, when his gaze landed on me. He smiled. His teeth were very straight. "Steve! Hey, I'd know you anywhere," I lied. Steve grinned, stretched out his arms and charged. He swept me into a bear hug that left me gasping and planted a big wet kiss on my fruit-flavored Bonne Bell lip-gloss. "Mmm," he said. "Strawberry." "Watermelon," I corrected him, straining back in an effort to break his grip. He locked his fingers behind my back and held tight, gazing at me with a celebratory hunger. I had a moment of doubt. "Steve?" "Yeah," he laughed and repeated the hug and the kiss. This time he lifted me off the ground and added a fanny-pat. I jerked free and regarded him with suspicion. "Steve Jacobs?" "Who else?" He lunged in for another grope-fest. The years must have been good to Steve, because, man, he had really gained a lot of confidence. Planting what I hoped would be a final, placating smooch on his cheek, I strong-armed him to a safe distance and suggested that we get a table. "Sure!" There was something too glittery in his eyes. Something that didn't make sense. His smile was a house on fire. It singed me with the heat of a habanero. "You are Steve Jacobs from Grand Blanc High School, right?" "Honey," he said, opening his arms for another hug "I'm whoever you want me to be." When "Steve" was made aware that our fling had ended, he took it in stride and ambled off in search of another idiot girl with a bad memory. I swished a mouthful of germ-killing wine and scrubbed my lips with my cocktail napkin. The bartender grinned with an irritating comprehension. A few minutes later the door opened and I saw a grownup version of the kid who sat beside me for one semester. I glimpsed the familiar skinny freshman inside of this man who pushed his glasses up on the bridge of his nose and cast a nervous glance at his surroundings. "Steve!" I yodeled. I would have known him anywhere. Christine Gwidt's column appears weekly in the Charlevoix Courier. E-mail her at moreorlesschristine@gmail.com.

More to serving God, man, than showing up

FAITHFUL SERVANT
Stephen Guthrie

There is a story told of a young Johnny Cash trying to break into the music business in the 1950s. Cash, a passionate man whose life went badly astray in his early years, was later able to credit Jesus for turning his life around. It wasn't like that for him in the beginning, though. As a young musician, Cash was a Memphis-based contemporary of Elvis Presley and Carl Perkins. He landed an audition with record producer Sam

Phillips of Sun Records, where many of the legendary recordings from early rock and roll were made. For the audition, Cash chose a gospel song originally sung by Jimmy Davis, with lyrics that began: "Were you there when Jesus saved me, saved my soul? The moment He forgave me, made me whole." They watch us go through the motions of religion, and fail to see the fruits of our relationship with the one we call Savior and Lord. But out there blended in the crowd, and not acting overtly religious, are quiet, humble people whose lives closely imitate the life of Christ. While the critics are pointing an accusatory finger at the hypocrite and phony, these imitations of Christ are going about doing meaningful work as a way to honor His name. As I consider this humble minority who are truly living their faith day in and day out, I can identify five distinct characteristics that set them apart from the

what we do and say. There are people out there who've heard of Christ and the difference he could make in their lives, but they are so swayed by the way many of us believers live our lives they want nothing to do with Him. They give generously of their time and money, never keeping accounts or expecting anything in return. In a world where talk is cheap, these people show up to do what needs doing. Second, the humble minority of servants emphasizes compassion over condemnation. They look at the unwashed and unlovable among us and find them worth loving simply because God loves them. And because they find reason to love, they are naturally driven to serve the unseen needs. The humble minority understands that old saying that there, pew-warmer who treats Christianity like a social fraternity. First, these people think of themselves as servants, and regard it as a privilege to serve on Christ's behalf. They feed the hungry, house the homeless, and work to meet the needs of those who lack everything from clothing to heating oil. They give generously of their time and money, never keeping accounts or expecting anything in return. In a world where talk is cheap, these people show up to do what needs doing. Second, the humble minority of servants emphasizes compassion over condemnation. They look at the unwashed and unlovable among us and find them worth loving simply because God loves them. And because they find reason to love, they are naturally driven to serve the unseen needs. The humble minority understands that old saying that there, but for the grace of God, go I. Third, the humble minority is willing to invest energy to be an encourager to the downtrodden. They are willing to walk alongside another hurting human heart for the purpose of offering hope. Fourth, they are willing to get their hands dirty to help. One of the ugly realities of getting involved is that people's lives are messy. The humble minority invests in others at a level beyond sympathy, which occurs from a safe distance, and instead displays empathy, which requires getting down in the mud to help another person get clean. Fifth, people of the humble minority operate on faith, and the visible evidence of that faith is their unwillingness to be paralyzed or upset by fear, worry or anxiety. They simply trust God. If we will look at life through the lens of a helpful heart we will see all around us opportunities to serve and uplift. My friend Pastor Ward Potts calls this "the ministry of as." As we go through our day, he insists, we have countless opportunities to help and encourage, if only we look. Some among us don't want to look because they would have to actually do something about the need they see. We don't have to have a seminary education, a position of leadership, or a title to do the ministry of as. We simply have to love our neighbor as ourselves. So, in a watching world just waiting for an opportunity to find fault with us, the single most meaningful thing we Christians can do to advance the good news of Jesus Christ is to start living like we believe it ourselves. LETTERS to the editor

HOORAY FOR HUNTING PICTURES

Editor: I am responding to a letter in the Courier about being repulsed by hunting photos (Repulsed by Hunting Photos, Oct. 14, page five). I have seen these types of letters every year about this time. I understand free speech so I will exercise mine. I am thankful your paper puts these hunting photos in print. It really lets you know that people are out there enjoying nature and responsibly harvesting an animal for food, and in some cases, food and clothing from furs, pelts, etc.

It is not a repulsive thing. It is our right as human beings to hunt and fish. Before supermarkets, that is the way it was done for centuries. People seem to lose sight of that in today's fast paced society. It is OK to hunt. And, for a youngster, it is a great experience. And, to display these photos in the paper is awesome. We all get to see the harvest as it is intended to be. Keep taking the kids hunting.

TRAILS AND TRIBULATIONS

Editor: I am writing to protest the recent decision by the Road Commission to change their policy on the proposed non-motorized trail on Boyne City Road from detached to being attached to the highway. I am writing both as President of WATCH, and as a property owner on that road. There are some very compelling reasons why the decision to reverse former policy was a terrible mistake, beginning with the young woman who was killed while riding a bicycle on just such an attached path near Boyne City a few years ago. The non-motorized path on M-119 is very safe, except in the area where it is attached to the highway. The attached area contains the only memorial on that road. Several organizations. See LETTERS, page 10

Foundation board member. "When you examine the book from the perspective of art, a great story line, the fact that you could win $5000, the family/group shared experience, local history, the fact that local talent was used to create it and the Native American cultural heritage included."

"It's a phenomenal project," she added.

Lyn Jenks initiated the idea of an interactive adventure book.

She then presented the idea to Liz Ahrens at Crooked Tree.

However, the concept of the book was not an original idea.

In the 1970s, English author Kit Williams wrote a book called Masquerade, filled with clues leading the reader to a destination.

The book "stuck with" Jenks and when faced with new fundraising dilemmas she said, "I kept thinking there has to be a way to turn this into something that can earn money."

It took the readers of Williams' book three years to decipher the clues.

Jenks had different plans for this adventure book.

"Frankly, I'd love to have 3000 right answers," she said.

Jenks consulted Aikin on the difficulty of the puzzle with that premise in mind.

Since the book's release on Aug. 25 the foundation has received two correct answers.

"The minute we get it (an entry), I e-mail them and let them know if they are right or wrong," Jenks said.

Crossings is illustrated by local artists Jan Hoffman, Larissa Flynn, Mary Jill Lemieux, Margaret White, Laura Cherven, Catherine Carey, Glen McCune, Kelli Snively, Valerie Thomson, Steve Toornman, Meredith Krell, Marilyn Stockwell, Carol Ross and Russ and Sue Bolt.

Each artist was given a page from the book from which they produced an original piece of artwork that was reproduced in the book.

Ahrens oversaw the artist's contributions.

"When we saw the originals and saw how they all came together, it was gripping; it was as if they had all collaborated together," Faculak said.

There was "absolutely no contest" said Aikin, when referring to the piece of artwork selected for the cover. "In that one piece he (McCune) captured the flavor and the feelings for the title and concept of the book."

This is Charlevoix resident Aikin's first book.

"I have really strong feelings about giving, and giving to the community is how I spend my time," she said.

Aikin said she was struck by a great idea.

Aikin sought the advice of local Indian tribesman Frank Ettawegeshik and began to read as many historical books about Northern Michigan as possible.

"I just read all those books and simultaneously researched," Aikin said. "I really didn't know where we would end up. As I found one thing it would lead to the next place we would visit."

By "we" Aikin is referring to herself and her 5-year-old grandson Skylar, that "in her mind" she took along with her as she wrote Crossings.

This year marks the third train trip Aikin and Skylar take together, consequently, a train ride from a boy's perspective is an important part of the book.

"I think I had an idea from the beginning that I had a spirit and the spirit would be Odawa," Aikin said.

Included in the book is Odawa language and a glossary.

"Using that language in here with the meaning of the words is hopefully also fun for the children," Aikin said. "Crossings" can be purchased through the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey or online at www.crookedtree.org, or www.CAH.org, as well as numerous locations in Petoskey, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Atwood, Boyne City and Harbor Springs.

There are 3,000 books available with a purchase price of $35.

Each book includes an entry form for the $5,000 raffle to be held on Aug. 1, 2010.

including the Charlevoix County Planning Department (see the new Charlevoix County Recreation Plan) and Top of Michigan Trails Council have been working for years to establish detached non-motorized trails. The Harbor Springs to Charlevoix trail is a masterpiece of inter-community cooperation. Detached trails increase property values because of the added amenity. And now the Road Commission wants to set back all that effort and progress and increased health and safety benefits for citizens, 20 years or more, by supporting a very dangerous plan.

The reason given is a fear of being sued by property owners because maybe the Road Commission would lose. I am one property owner who pledges not to sue. And what if you are sued by a family who has had a loved one killed or maimed on an attached trail?

It happens all too frequently.

Do you really think that parents will let their children use an attached trail with cars whizzing by at high speeds just a couple feet away?

I urge both the road commissioners and the county commissioners to put the health and safety of your fellow citizens first and reverse the current policy so that when Boyne City Road is up-graded, it will include a detached, non-motorized trail.

We all will thank you, including our children and our grandchildren for years to come.

PRAISE FOR PETUNIA PEOPLE

Editor:
"Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" is a tax exempt charitable organization in Charlevoix which involves itself with the beautification of the city of Charlevoix.

Each year the people of Charlevoix plant five miles of petunias along the main streets of the city.

There are also huge baskets of petunias hanging from lampposts in the downtown area and in the local park, which has recently been officially recognized by the American Planning Association as "A Great Public Space," one of the best public places in the nation.

"Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" has been working for the beautification of Charlevoix for over 30 years and would like to voice our gratitude to both the residents who plant the flowers and the donors of both time, money and articles which to auction for their faithful service.

Thank you to the people of Charlevoix once again for volunteering and to the restaurants and businesses of our city for donating both the food and the auction items to insure the success of another petunia fundraiser.

Enjoy the flowers and our beautiful city of Charlevoix. We are indeed fortunate to live in this beautiful space!

BORED TO HOCKEY

Editor:

I think we need more after school activities. It is because most kids are going home and being lazy. Maybe they can try something new. So why not?

I think we need more sports for an after school activity because, some kids are bored after school. Some kids get tired of all of their little siblings. So why not have after school activities?

Another activity we can have is arts and crafts. So then the parents can get rid of their child. The child can have fun at the same time too. I just think they will enjoy it. It is all up to you.

The last activity is hockey. It's because some kids enjoy it a lot. Some kids that like it can even play. You can have fun instead of being bored. You can get away from your family

ENFORCEMENT

Editor:

The Charlevoix Police Department in conjunction with the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club wish to thank our sponsors and volunteers for making the Positive Enforcement Program a success. We started the local program to reach out to our youth, by handing out rewards to those that are "caught" doing something positive in the community.

Over 100 rewards were given for good deeds that range from walking bicycles downtown and wearing helmets, to one youth who helped an elderly female step up onto the sidewalk.

"Our goal is to get the audience scared, and then we turn it around."

The legend of Sleepy Hollow lives at Charlevoix High School Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 24-25.

The performing arts program presents this classic as an all-ages musical featuring 21 actors, five on tech crew and about 15 students working behind the scenes.

The setting is early 1800s in Sleepy Hollow, a small Dutch farming community about 27 miles from New York.

Ichabod Crane has just arrived as a new school master and is the talk of the town.

The musical is a bit darker than others by the school in previous years — many students contrasted it to "Seussical the Musical" — and comes just in time for Halloween.

"Our goal is to get the audience scared, and then we turn it around," junior Morgan McCarthy said of the music in the play.

Morgan plays the role of Mrs. Van Wiesel, a woman she said plays into the stereotype of a strict, uptight and fearless school headmaster.

"It was harder to get into her character than the other roles I've played."

I'm not a person to be up tight... When other people are jolly, you want to be jolly too, but you have to be strict," she noted.

Joining her at the school is James Gaudette portraying schoolmaster Ichabod Crane.

"I was not expecting to get a large lead (role)," the senior said.

However, he noted that he's grown into the part, learning how to play the role of a scaredy cat who's always trying to save face.

"He tries to be more level-headed than others and more educated," James said.

The role of Ichabod puts him at odds with Brom Bones for the affections of Katrina. Katrina's mother, Mrs. Van Tassel, is played by Ashley Van Wormer.

Ashley said Mrs. Van Tassel enjoys gossip and often passes along information to the audience through songs.

She noted that although she took part in musicals and singing when younger, she's looking forward to her first high school production.

"I love it. This is my home. I get to be another person, but my favorite person. These people are my family," the sophomore added.

"Sleepy Hollow" will be performed at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 25, in the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for students. For more information, call 547-8226.

Charlevoix swelling with spooky Halloween activities

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Spook season is upon us. For the brave of heart, nothing is more fun than a good old fashioned scare. And, when the fun and games serve to benefit local organizations, the entire community stands to benefit from a few creepy haunts and ghostly gatherings.

Just across town, the United States Coast Guard will host its annual Haunted Station to benefit the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

The spooky event will take place 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. Oct. 27 and 28.

In years past when the cutter Acacia used to be stationed at Charlevoix, the Coast Guard hosted a haunted ship.

"It was the scariest thing ever," said long-time Charlevoix resident Kim Schoenheit.

"It terrified me, and the haunted station that's taken its place since the Acacia is different, but just as good."

As in previous years, the members of the United States Coast Guard service at station Charlevoix will transform their boat house at 101 Coast Guard Road across from Depot Beach into one of Charlevoix's most bone-chilling Halloween haunts.

According to Petty Officer Klaus Eisbrenner, this year's theme is The Haunted Station and almost 30 Coast Guard members will be involved.

"It's a lot of fun," Eis-brenner said.

"It's a great way for us to get involved in the community and give back."

Cost for admission is one canned item to be donated to the food pantry.

For the adults in the crowd, Fright Night is back as the Children's House Montessori hosts their annual fundraiser and costume party from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., Oct. 30, at the Castle.

The evening is scheduled to include dancing, dinner by Grey Gables, a silent auction, costume contest and cash bar. Tickets are $35 and all proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Children's House.

With Halloween still a few weeks away, Charlevoix is already brewing up a frightening mix of Halloween activities for kids and adults of all ages to celebrate this year's All Hallows' Eve.

Viewer discretion is advised for all local haunted houses and parents are reminded to be aware of the frightening nature of these events.

Ragamuffins soothe the sick

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Northern Michigan singing and dancing group also known as the Ragamuffin Theater and Company has recently returned from the volunteer trip of a lifetime. Prompted by a continued desire to serve and give back to the community, members of the troupe packed their bags, costumes, makeup and music and headed south to University of Michigan's C.S. Mott's Children's Hospital to perform for the children confined to the hospital.

"As Ragamuffin's, we just love to serve," said group member Kathryn Sell, who has been a part of the Ragamuffin group for almost 10 years. According to Kathryn and many of the girls,

"It opened my eyes to how truly thankful I am for my health."

KATHRYN SELL

the trip was both an eye-opening and remarkably rewarding experience. "It opened my eyes to how truly thankful I am for my health," Kathryn said. "Through the children's pain and hardship you could see threads of hope that kept them fighting."

Due to the difficult nature of the trip and the distance traveled only members 16 years of age and older were allowed to participate in the volunteer activity. Eight girls worked together with Ragamuffin director Kathleen Whittaker to put on as much of their "So You Think You're A Princess" performance as possible with a smaller cast.

According to group member and Charlevoix High School senior, Shauna Bradley, despite the shortened performance, the impact on the patients and the girls was profound.

"It was an amazing experience," Shauna said. "It made me realize that [we] have such an impact... even if [we] don't have a lot to give," she added. "As long as you're willing to make the effort and have the heart to go out and invest in people's lives you can make such a difference."

The Ragamuffin Theater and Company is a non profit organization dedicated and committed to helping young people grow and develop in all fields of the performing arts. Director Kathleen Whittaker started the group in 2000 as a means for the talented youth of Charlevoix and Northern Michigan to come together and truly create something special.

Kathleen is a firm believer in the musical and artistic talent of every willing child. "My goal is to help each member discover and develop their God given talents," she says, "so that they can experience the joy that comes from doing what they were created to do."

Environmental efforts bring success

Additional actions proposed at environmental project

"...recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

David Mengebier
President, CMS Land Company

PETOSKEY, Mich., (Sept. 21, 2009) - CMS Land Company reports that significant progress has been made in addressing environmental issues related to the defunct cement plant that once operated on the shores of Little Traverse Bay. The abandoned site was redeveloped in 1994 into what are now Resort Township's East Park and the Bay Harbor Resort. August water monitoring results verify that pH readings above the action level of nine have been virtually eliminated and human health and safety concerns have been effectively addressed. In August, only one reading above nine (9.12, similar to baking soda) was recorded in an isolated area west of the Bay Harbor golf course clubhouse. These results build on months of increasingly positive results and are a dramatic contrast to the dozens of pH readings above nine that were recorded in 2005, before CMS began its work at the site.

"These important environmental accomplishments are the result of a lot of hard work and substantial investment," said David Mengebier, CMS Land Company president. "The June reopening of East Park, the lifting of several health advisories, and these most recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

In reporting these results, CMS also noted two important milestones in completing work at the site: review and approval by regulators of the Remedial Investigation/Alternative Evaluation (RI/AE) studies for East Park and the Bay Harbor development and continued work to identify a local option for disposing of water collected at the site.

In late summer, CMS Land submitted the RI/AEs to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. The RI/AEs use established scientific processes to evaluate the effectiveness of both current and long-term remedies at both locations. The EPA and DEQ will consider public input while reviewing the documents and then can approve the documents or request additional study. Once approved, the RI/AEs will outline the final work involved with the project.

"We believe we have done an excellent job so far. We are hopeful that the RI/AEs will be reviewed and approved in a timely manner so that we can build on our progress and bring the project to a successful conclusion," said Mengebier.

In addition, work is underway to identify a local remedy to dispose of the water collected from East Park and Bay Harbor. The collection and treatment of large quantities of groundwater is the primary method CMS is using to address pH and mercury at the site. Different options under review would safely treat the water and release it to the lake, pump the water into the City of Petoskey's water treatment system for treatment, or involve the construction of a local disposal well near the site. CMS is currently shipping up to 27 trucks containing 11,500 gallons of water a day to Traverse City and Johannesburg for disposal.

"Trucking the water, because of its increased public safety and transportation risks, environmental concerns, and cost, is not a realistic long-term remedy," Mengebier said. "We absolutely need—and are encouraged that the public has expressed a desire—to identify a local solution to a local concern."

East Park and Bay Harbor were reclaimed from the site of an abandoned cement factory covering 1,200 acres and five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline. The brownfield site was redeveloped in 1994 and was the largest reclamation project in North America.

While no longer a partner in the project that redeveloped an abandoned cement factory into the Bay Harbor community and two public parks, CMS Land Company agreed to address certain environmental issues associated with the cement dust left behind by the cement plant. CMS has worked for five years and spent more than $90 million on the project to date and has achieved significant environmental progress in the protection of Little Traverse Bay.

Rayders' soccer team finish 17-1

Ty Jones scored three goals as Charlevoix clinched its first Lake Michigan Conference boys' soccer championship Tuesday with a 6-0 victory over Harbor Springs.

The Rayders, who are ranked fifth in the Division III state coaches poll, improved to 17-1 overall, 8-1 in the conference. They close the regular season with a league match at Grayling today, Wednesday, Oct. 14.

The Rayders avenged their only loss of the season with the victory over the Rams on Tuesday. In that loss, Charlevoix goalie Nick Brandi did not play.

"Brandi had a couple really great saves," said Charlevoix coach Josh Block.

Thomas Rich scored two goals and had two assists, Boog Nitchman had one goal and three assists, and Jones also had an assist.

Last week, Ben Meyers scored three goals as Charlevoix defeated Leland, 6-0, in a non-league game on Friday. The Rayders, ranked fifth in the Division III state coaches poll, finish the regular season 17-1. Boog Nitchman added two goals, Matt Klooster had a goal and an assist, Wyatt Drost scored a goal, and Thomas Rich, Nitchman and Meyers each added an assist. Nick Brandi earned the shutout in goal. Charlevoix boys' soccer clinches Lake Michigan Conference title.

Ty Jones helped the Rayders clinch their first-ever Lake Michigan Conference championship with three goals for a 6-0 victory over Harbor Springs on Oct. 13.

The Rayders need a win in their regular-season finale on Friday, Oct. 23, at home against Harbor Springs to wrap up their second straight playoff berth and their fourth in the last five years.

The Rams are 2-5 overall.

Manufacturing making a comeback Kasper seeking to expand

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Diversity is helping one new Charlevoix business thrive in this sluggish economy.

In May, Kasper Manufacturing moved from Gaylord to Charlevoix for more business opportunities and a better location.

"My parents owned a machine shop, so I've been in this industry my whole life," said owner David Kasper, who has more than 36 years of experience in the industry.

The machine shop makes everything from automobile and aviation parts, to sporting goods, and even surgical equipment.

Kasper Manufacturing originally opened in Gaylord in 2008.

When they moved to Charlevoix this spring, business started to boom. The company now has customers from around the country.

"We manufacture pretty much everything," said Kasper.

"Right now we're working on some archery products, Chrysler Sebring rooftops, and making transmission parts."

Kasper believes his com-ny's ability to do more than one part or piece at a time is what sets them apart from other machine shops. The company also works to keep their overhead costs low and pass that savings on to their customers.

"We're not just sticking to one field. When we started this business, we decided we were going to diversify in order to stay here," said Kasper.

"Things weren't as easy at first," added Kristina Kasper, David's wife. "When we first opened in 2008, it was dead. But since the move to Charlevoix, things have really picked up."

Kristina serves as the company's secretary and also helps out in the shop when needed.

"Right now, people are searching us out because so many manufacturing companies have gone under," said David.

"So I think the fact we can take on a variety of projects is really helping us out."

Kasper Manufacturing currently has four employees.

Plans are in the works to expand and hire more employees in the future.

The Kaspers say they're happy to be doing the work they love here in Charlevoix.

"I enjoy making things," said David.

"I love getting the print, going out in the shop and making it. I can't imagine not doing this for a living."

"We're extremely happy to be here in Charlevoix," added Kristina.

"The summer was great, and the people and community support have been wonderful."

Kasper Manufacturing is located at 8911 Martin Road in Charlevoix.

For more information, visit their Web site at www.kaspermfg.com or call 547-6700.

Kasper Manufacturing is open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Plan for Retirement – This Week and Every Week

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

You might not see it on your calendar, but Oct. 18 - 24 is National Save for Retirement Week. This event, endorsed by Congress, is designed to promote the benefits of saving for retirement and to encourage workers to take full advantage of their employer-sponsored retirement plans — so you may want to use this week as a starting point to do just that.

For many of us, the need to boost our retirement savings is critical. In fact, some 55 percent of Americans report that the total value of their household's savings and investments, excluding the value of their primary home and any defined benefit plans, is less than $25,000, according to the 2009 Retirement Confidence Survey, sponsored by the Employee Benefit Research Institute.

Also, the decline in popularity of these defined benefit plans — the traditional pension plans that make payments based primarily on years of service — is one reason that saving for retirement has become such a major issue. From 1980 to 2008, participation in defined benefit plans among full-time workers in private industry declined from 76 percent to 24 percent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In many cases, these defined benefit plans have been replaced by defined contribution plans, such as 401(k) plans — which means that much of the responsibility of adequately funding retirement has shifted from the employer to the individual.

Given these factors, it's clear that you must be proactive in building resources to achieve the retirement lifestyle you've envisioned. So, consider taking the following steps:

- Contribute to your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored plan. If possible, try to put in as much as you can afford to your 401(k) or other tax-advantaged, employer-sponsored plan, such as a 403(b) or 457(b). It's a good idea to spread your 401(k) dollars among the available investments in a way that reflects your risk tolerance and time horizon. And as your income increases, try to increase your 401(k) contributions. At a minimum, put in enough to earn your employer's match, if one is offered. Due to the prolonged economic slump, some employers have cut back or eliminated their 401(k) matching contributions, but if one is offered, take advantage of it.

- Open an IRA. Even if you contribute to a 401(k), you are probably still eligible to open an IRA. A traditional IRA can grow on a tax-deferred basis, and a Roth IRA grows tax-free, provided you've had your account for at least five years and don't begin taking withdrawals until you're 59-1/2. Plus, you can usually find that an IRA provides more investment options than a 401(k) plan.

- Rebalance your investment portfolio regularly. During the long bear market, many new retirees faced difficulties when they were forced to tap into investment portfolios whose value had dropped significantly. You can help avoid this problem by periodically reviewing and rebalancing your investments. So for example, if you know you're going to retire within the next five years, you may want to consider shifting some of your assets into shorter-term investments that may not be as susceptible to market volatility. You can speak with a financial advisor, who can help you review your specific situation.

By making the right moves, you can turn every week into a "Save for Retirement" week. And you'll probably be glad you did, once your actual retirement week arrives.

Locals: Business is good

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Despite a cold, rainy summer and higher than average unemployment, Charlevoix business growth apparently remains relatively unhampered.

Since January 2009, at least 12 new businesses have located in Charlevoix, with another half-dozen expansions in every sector from manufacturing to food service.

"Overall, the summer months have proven to be successful for the area lodging establishments. Despite an initial slow start due to numerous factors: Unseasonable weather, economic conditions, etc., the accommodations fared well," said Charlevoix Convention and Visitor Bureau executive director Lauren Brumley. "In fact, September collections were up significantly in comparison to 2008. It speaks volumes about our community in that Charlevoix the beautiful is the place to be." If Charlevoix's 13.9 percent unemployment rate seems high, that's because it was a mere 8.5 percent nearly a year ago. However, the numbers are a marked improvement from last winter. "The county was more in the 14 to 17 percent range," said economic analyst Bruce Weaver of the Michigan Department of City revamps electrical policy

Hoping never to repeat circumstances which led to a 93-year-old man freezing to death last January in his Bay City home, city council has revamped its electrical shutoff policy.

Major elements of the policy include prohibition of the use of electric service limiters, which act as low-level fuses: blowing and shutting off power if more than a minor amount is being drawn.

refunding any late fees, fines or payments related to a shutoff if it is found there was failure to provide notice of said shutoff; and the city reserves the right to shut off power if there is an emergency requiring it.

"There has not been a preponderance of shutoffs for our utility customers," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel.

"This is largely a proactive measure and is consistent with what city staff has been doing in the past working with senior citizens and lower-income families to make sure we do not shut off their utilities."

He added, "We will continue working with them to make sure payments are made on a timely basis and that they do not have utilities shut off in the dead of winter."

While there are no formal programs within the city to help senior citizens and low-income families.

Cutter Acacia finally home

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Nearly three years after de-commissioning, U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia found its new home in Manistee, approximately 180 miles south of Charlevoix.

"Now, with the help of the American Academy of Industry, the fully functional ship rests along side the famed S.S. City of Milwaukee, which was a long-time railroad car hauler.

"The Acacia is now a museum ship," said Brandon Blackwell, a United States Coast Guard public information officer for the Coast Guard's Ninth District in Cleveland, Ohio.

According to American Academy of Industry president Dan Hecker, politics prevented Acacia from being docked in his home state.

"Within the state of Illinois, we could not find one place that would allow us to open it up," Hecker said. "Most of Illinois's waterfront is in the City of Chicago, and politics precluded opening up because they don't care, and the Navy pier wanted $27,000 a month in rent."

Hecker said the Acacia's fate came down to three choices: cut up for scrap metal, sold to a third-world country or become a museum ship.

The all-volunteer force at the academy of industry has personally funded the effort, but Hecker said he hopes the ship will eventually sustain itself financially.

"The plan is to open it up for overnight programs, tours and ceremonies," he said. "It is seaworthy and the desire would be to keep it as an operational ship and sail it occasionally for different events."

Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said he is glad the ship can live on in some capacity.

"I think that's great. It served Charlevoix well for many years," he said. "I wish it was something we could have been able to do, but ... I'm glad that it just didn't end up in a scrap yard somewhere."

He added, "I'm glad people will continue to learn from it."

The ship was taken over by the American Academy of Industry, a nonprofit group from Illinois which seeks to preserve "historic artifacts significant to American history."

Blackwell said the Acacia was decommissioned on June 7, 2006 for various factors including its age, functionality and usefulness.

Blackwell said, now that the ship is a floating museum, it cannot be called back to duty.

"Once a ship is decommissioned and transferred to another entity, the Coast Guard does not have any authority to call the ship back into service," he said. "It would be like selling a vehicle and then asking for it back because you need a way to get to work."

According to the academy of industry, the Acacia as a museum ship will, "Serve as a tribute to the veterans — the most significant piece of national defense — of the Coast Guard, Navy and Merchant Marine; tell the intertwined story of Great Lakes' maritime history, heavy industry and transportation; and tell the story of the Acacia and the Coast Guard's 180s."

The cutter sailed to its final destination on Saturday Oct. 17.

So far, the academy of industry and a team of volunteers have spent $29,150 to get the vessel ready for passage.

Launched on Sept. 1, 1944, the 180-foot Acacia got her name from a lighthouse service ship which was sunk during World War II and was equipped to handle search and rescue, buoy tending, navigational aids, ice-breaking and fire fighting and even law enforcement tasks among others.

For more information on the American Academy of Industry, call (708) 425-8443 or go to www.aai-acacia.org.

Sixty is the new sexy

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Yikes. I turned the big 60 this week. How did time get away from me? I know I would have helped me a lot when I was 20.

I'd love to take the lessons learned throughout life and put it in a box and give it to a 20-year-old.

Unfortunately they'd be too busy to open it and they would think most of the information irrelevant.

We each need to experience our own life's lessons to know what's really important in life.

Considering my own illnesses and events I am pleasantly surprised to still be here and able to write down any of my thoughts.

It was a joy to grow up in the '50 and '60s.

I had the honor of walking with a cheering crowd carrying a placard that said "If I were 21 I would vote for Kennedy" — inspired more by the Catholic school I attended than any political knowledge.

As a rambunctious teen I enjoyed riding a bus into downtown Detroit unafraid of getting in harms way.

I had hoola-hooping down to a fine art.

One of my numerous youthful injuries came from youthful and fro with a large green hoop dangling around my waist.

This sounds safe until you add the fact that I was riding my bike at the time.

Did I tell you the bike was traveling at a brisk speed through an empty store parking lot and I was standing on the seat?

Ahhh ... the good old days, when you could get a greasy burger freshly flipped off the grill for .25 cents and for .15 cents more a large chocolate malt.

The meal wasn't complete without checking the latest hits in the shiny silver box sitting at the end of the Formica counter.

A quarter brought five songs and the small diner to life.

In a brief discussion about the honor of reaching 60, my husband interjected his wisdom on the subject.

He recalled viewing the 60- and 70-something's while he himself was in his 20s, "Do they still have sex?"

They couldn't possibly.

Be honest, if you are 60 you thought the same thing.

Then I was reminded by one of my friends that 60 today is sexy, alive and vibrant.

"Just take a look at Aunt Bee" she retorted.

Aunt Bee was in her late 50s when she played the wise aunt of Mayberry's finest sheriff.

She is a far cry from what a 50- or 60-year-old looks like today.

Only once in awhile I do confess to slipping into a settled look.

Then I happen to see a return of Mayberry R.F.D. and I am quick to take the bun out of my hair and whisk off the apron.

Frank Sinatra was 56 when he retired the first time thinking his songs were not attracting listeners.

Compare that with Mack Jagger who's still shaking and jiving at 66 and touring to sell-out crowds.

Fortunately for us, Frank Sinatra came to his senses and did return to his career and crooned us well into his 80s.

Lauren Hutton is still looking fabulous at 66 with her trademark space between her front teeth.

She is a great representation of what today's 60-year-old looks like.

We individuals in our 60s are vowing to care for our health and spend more time with family.

We'd all like to have a little more money in our pocket no matter what our age but with age there is also the comfort of knowing that if you have enough to pay your bills and are able to help give your time freely to help family, friends and others in need, money in the realm of things is not so important.

We baby boomers are going to go down kicking and screaming claiming we are younger than the dates on our birth certificates by taking care of ourselves physically, mentally and spiritually.

Sexy is not how you look physically but rather the confidence that comes with age.

Thus, this correspondent after much research is happy to report there are many 60, 70 and 80 year olds out there who are pretty darn sexy.

Halloween survival tips; well, more or less

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwilt

Banshees, werewolves, vampires and other nocturnal pests have long been the bane of decent folks everywhere. Much has been made of their stubborn reluctance to either just go away, or to abandon their anti-social inclinations and assimilate into society as productive citizens. Humans have employed coping mechanisms from denial to vigilantism for centuries, with varying results.

Personally, I slept with my head under the covers until I was 16 years old. I anchored the blankets between my scalp and the pillow, allowing a tiny gap for my nose so that I could breathe.

And it worked. I was spared a gruesome death at the rotting, clammy and/or mummified hands of the unspeakable creatures that I presume flocked into my bedroom nightly to check for an exposed limb or head — something bigger than a nose — to grasp and wrench me from my fortress. Once grasped and wrenched, it would be game over and the visitors would win. It was only their illogical aversion to bedclothes that allowed me to survive.

As I matured, I came to realize the folly of my overly zealous precautions. I abandoned the duck-and-cover habit at the same time I started setting my hair with orange juice cans, opting for a possible gristly encounter in deference to the quest for a perfect hairdo.

But this newfound sophistication did not negate in the slightest my fascination with the macabre. I checked out every book in the library with a supernatural plotline and plowed through anthologies of ghost stories. Thomas Tryon, Harlan Ellison and, later, Stephen King, all knew what scared me. Coupled with low-budget movies from Hammer Films and William Castle, it was quite an education.

Within this genre-infused reality, I considered it unlikely, (even growing up in Flint, Michigan), that actual psychopaths would menace me.

What, after all, were the odds? No, it was never a concern of mine that an escaped lunatic would cross my path. Supernatural monsters, on the other hand, seemed much more viable.

While I am not alone in my alert defense against predatory phenomenon, there may be other mortals that have not had the advantage of my early experience and training.

With Halloween providing an insidious veil for ghoulish infiltration, it becomes more likely that a diabolical nuisance could cause problems. Precautions may be taken to insure that, if confronted by a genuine, heart-stopping visage, survival is at least plausible.

It is with this in mind that I offer the following tips.

1. Garlic: For some reason, this culinary staple is repugnant to all manner of ghouls, especially vampires. May be draped in a wreath around the neck and later recycled into the stew.

2. Crosses and holy water: Crosses are easier to come by, but holy water has the advantage of a spray application option. Expect the target to be consumed with writhing, sizzling and smoking of a duration sufficient for a getaway.

3. Weaponry: If push comes to shove, it might be advisable to be armed with something more formidable than vegetation or jewelry. Traditional ammunition will only serve to amuse a supernatural adversary, and weapons of defense should be made of silver. If a bullet mold is unavailable, something as simple as a good piece of cutlery tied to a broom handle could be employed to poke a wrath into a corner until help arrives.

4. Run: This is the simplest and often the most effective way to deal with many monsters. Zombies, mummies and amphibious creatures removed from their indigenous lagoons are surprisingly slow on their feet. Anyone between the ages of three and 95 who can't outpace this breed deserve their fate.

One last thing to remember is that you must not rely on your vehicle. It may be a 2010 Ferrari with less than 100 miles on it, but it will stutter like chalk skipping on a blackboard when the key is turned in the ignition and it will not start. Don't even bother.

Of course, you may choose to throw caution to the wind and indiscriminately stuff candy into those grasping hands at your doorstep. You may exclaim with delight over their authentic makeup and costumes and even invite them in for a cup of cider.

Just don't say I didn't warn you.

EAST PARK ETERNAL
Editor:

During our recent trip to Charlevoix, we heard the exciting news that East Park had been declared one of the top 10 great public spaces in the country by The American Planning Association. Our first glimpse of the transformation was in late July, after having been away since 2002.

What a dramatic change from the original park that had been the city's summer centerpiece for nearly a century.

The planning and execution of such a project was obviously painstaking and thorough, and it reflects the needs and desires of young and old, resident and visitor.

I remember many happy days in the park, since 1943, running and rolling down the hills, playing shuffleboard, admiring the boats, counting the trout and the wonderful music on summer evenings.

All of that fun can continue, and with additional amenities and opportunities as well.

Congratulations and a job well done by all, from conception through planning, contractor selection and execution.

It will be good for all least another century.

BRING ON THE BIG BOXES
Editor:

A lot of kids walk downtown in the summer but they have barely anything to buy. That's why I feel that there should be more stores in town.

One reason is that we have to go somewhere else to get stuff like Aeropostale and American Eagle.

There are many stores in other places, like in Petoskey. Also, most people go to the Traverse City mall, so they get more money.

Second, it would bring in more business.

Tourists, also known as fudgies, would stay and buy more clothes and toys here. Next, more people would come for more than just the views. Therefore, we would have more money.

My last reason is that we get bored, and it's probably not just the kids that feel like this. There's nothing to do or buy. Instead of just walking downtown and sitting there, looking bored and getting up to no good, people would buy things.

In brief, it would help to have more stores in the downtown area.

Blood Pressure Drugs Help Diabetics

According to the results of a recent study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine, new drugs prescribed for blood pressure control may help prevent eye related problems in persons with diabetes. The drugs are enalapril (Vasotec) and losartan (Cozaar). In the study of 285 individuals over a period of five years, researchers discovered that these particular drugs slowed the development of diabetic neuropathy, a condition which threatens eye sight due to leakage of blood vessels in the eye. The five year evaluation resulted in over 35% of those who did not get either drug developing diabetic retinopathy. Only 25% of those who took enalapril during this time experienced the condition. Those who took losartan fared even better, with only 21% experiencing retinopathy. Researchers associated with the study say that additional studies will hopefully validate these findings. Enalapril (Vasotec) and losartan (Cozaar) belong to slightly different families of high blood pressure drugs that both affect renin-angiotensin, the body system that regulates kidney function and blood pressure.

New leadership at Assembly of God

Mike and Chris Way have begun their tenure as Lead Pastor at the Charlevoix Assembly of God church.

Mike grew up in the Charlevoix area and Chris with her family were summer residents in the Charlevoix area.

Mike earned his Electrical Engineering Degree from Michigan Technological University and worked in the Automotive Industry in southern Michigan for 22 years before moving back to Charlevoix to start the e-log company, Pine Rive Inc.

Mike was an elder and became an un-official associate pastor during the more than 18 years in Brighton, teaching many classes and assisting with Sunday morning and mid-week services.

He holds credentials through the Evangelical Association of Churches and Ministries and is in the process of transferring credentials to the Assemblies of God.

Chris is a partner in the Cottage Drawer Consignment Shop in Petoskey and active in school events, coaching eighth-grade volleyball at Charlevoix Middle School.

They are in their 28th year of marriage and have four children.

With their move to Charlevoix and the recent vacancy of a lead pastor at the Charlevoix Assembly of God, Mike felt God's call that this is the time for him to move into a lead pastor role.

Mike's philosophy in ministry is very simple: to be the best and most effective Christian one can be through understanding that God has a plan for all of us and it isn't limited to the 80 years we walk this earth.

His mission and goal as the lead pastor is to teach and encourage others to see that a Christ-centered life is essential for a healthy and productive life on earth and offers the promise of an exciting and fulfilling eternal life thereafter.

Ginger Stevens has been appointed as associate pastor at Charlevoix Assembly of God church.

Greg is Ginger's husband of 30 years. Both Greg and Ginger have lived most or all of their lives in Charlevoix.

They have one daughter, Vicki LaRae, who is currently a first year student at the Bethel School of Supernatural Ministry in Redding, Calif.

Ginger has been a student of the Bible all of her adult life and has recently been credentialed as a Licensed Pastor with the Assemblies of God after spending four years in ministerial studies.

Craft fair culminates from 30 years of arts

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE

"There is so much talent in this area and we want to have a venue to show that talent in the best possible light."

ANNETTE HOSLER,
BY OUR HANDS, FROM OUR HEARTS ORGANIZER

Those looking to get a jump start on their holiday shopping will be able to do so at an upcoming craft show that features work from a number of area craft makers and artists.

The show, By Our Hands From Our Hearts, will be held at the Charlevoix Public Library on Nov. 7.

The show is being organized by a group of friends that hope to blend their work and showcase their talents.

They hope the show will become an annual event.

"We really hope to attract a variety of people," said Annette Hosler, one of the organizers.

"We all have a wide range of talents and hope the show really displays that."

"There is so much talent in this area and we want to have a venue to show that talent in the best possible light," added Sue Miller, another organizer.

The group, which consists of seven members, began more than 20 years ago.

Some of the members were part of the early Apple Festival craft show that was originally held in the Market Mall.

Over the last several years, they've continued to develop their crafts and talents.

"We got the idea for the show from a group of ladies in Traverse City that got together for years and held a similar show," said Hosler.

The seven originating members will be joined by additional vendors to offer something for everyone.

"We're all friends as well as craftsmen that enjoy doing our crafts and getting together," said Miller.

"We feel our items are really good quality and think that it will be a good addition to the community events."

"It's a real collaborative effort," said Hosler.

"The seven of us in the main group have a wide range of talents and we're hoping to have a number of vendors to offer even more variety."

By Our Hands From Our Hearts will offer jewelry, stained glass works, centerpieces, dolls, a variety of embroidery, prints and more.

The group hopes the wide range of crafts, artwork, and gifts available will make the show a success.

"It's the first year we're trying it. If it goes well we'll do it another year. If it doesn't, we learned our lesson," laughed Hosler.

Horseback riding therapeutic for handicapped

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

In the eyes of Northern Michigan parents of handicapped children, Barbara Lane, Mary Lee and the countless volunteers of the Exceptional Riders program are a God-send.

An energetic, dynamic and enthusiastic lover of horses, Barbara is certified through the North American Riding for the Handicapped Association (NARHA) to teach and instruct handicapped youth and adults.

Through her efforts and those of the "many, many, many wonderful and willing volunteers and helpers that give of their time and energy to this program, the Exceptional Riders program changes lives," she said.

"The Exceptional Riders program all together has improved my son's well being and basically made it a lot easier for him to interact on a daily basis with other people," said Rob Towne, Boyne City resident and father of 6-year-old Aidan Towne.

Aidan and his parents have been a part of the organization since 2008 and have nothing but the most positive things to say about the group and their work. "Since beginning riding, Aidan has improved his balance, his motor skills and increased his sense of strength," Rob said. "It's incredible. The difference we have seen as a direct result of the riding."

The benefits extend well beyond the sheer physical act of riding, parents explain.

Placed in an environment with other children of similar need levels, the children interact and make friends. They laugh with each other and build relationships with each other -- and so do their parents.

"It's a bit like therapy for [the parents] too," Mary Lee, another instructor with the program explained.

While their children are riding, the parents get to talking and oftentimes bond and relate over the similarities of their experiences in raising a handicapped child.

"And, when they are confident their children are in good hands," she added, "they get the chance to relax a bit too."

The joy the kids share each time they ride is obvious. Shrieks of laughter fill the arena.

"The kids have a lot of fun out there ... and they make friends," said Barb Zabawa, whose 9-year-old Zach has been a part of the program for four years.

"Not only do they learn how to ride a horse, increase their balance and coordination, but they improve their life and get the opportunity to make friends."

What began in 1983 with a handful of willing volunteers, a few saddles and a prayer has transformed into one of the most successful riding for the handicapped programs in the United States. Thanks to the support of private donors, local business and organizations, including the Bay Harbor Equestrian Center, Exceptional Riders can provide an unparalleled service to their participants for free.

"Bay Harbor allows us to use their facilities and everything free of charge," Lane said. "They let us use their schooling horses for free and provide us unlimited use of their absolutely beautiful facility ... because they love our program and they love what we stand for ... their generosity is overwhelming, and our appreciation is great."

Lane said the difference this experience makes in the lives of these children is something that you really can't explain.

"You have to see it, you have to see the difference -- it's both humbling and exciting," she said.

The 'Dean' inducted to Ferris Hall of Fame

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

A man who has made a major impact on life in Charlevoix is being honored for his legacy he left at a state university's athletic department.

On Oct. 30, Dean Davenport, a lifelong resident of Charlevoix, will be inducted into the Ferris State University Bulldog Athletics Hall of Fame Class of 2009.

Davenport served as the school's athletic director and a basketball coach from 1970 to 1993.

Davenport was chosen by a 15-member selection committee from among 35 nominees.

Six others will also be inducted.

Davenport was notified about the honor this summer.

"I think I'm in with one of the finest classes we've had. There are some outstanding people that are being inducted this year," said Davenport.

"It's a thrill and I'm quite humbled and proud that I'm joining a select group."

Current FSU Athletics Director Tom Kirinovic describes this year's inductees as some of the strongest contributors to the Bulldog athletic program.

"With this being the 10th anniversary of starting the Hall of Fame, I am continually amazed at the tremendous attributes of the former Bulldogs that are being inducted each year," said Kirinovic.

"These seven inductees are all folks that any Bulldog supporter would be extremely proud to include as members of the Hall of Fame."

During Davenport's tenure as Ferris State's Athletic Director, the Bulldogs won the GLIAC President's Cup for all-around excellence 14 consecutive years. The President's Cup is given to a school with the most successful all-around athletic program.

"During my 14 years as director of athletics, I'm most proud of winning the President's Cup all those years," said Davenport.

"That is a legacy I'm proud of. But I'm equally as proud that I was able to hire some great coaches and support staff to make all those wins possible."

In addition to winning the President's Cup, Davenport was instrumental in the growth and success of the school's recreation and intramural program.

He also played a key role in the planning of the FSU Sports Complex, the growth of intercollegiate athletics for women, the emergence of the school's successful ice hockey program and the development of the athletics scholarship program.

"After I retired 15 years ago, I served on the board that chose the hall of fame inductees," said Davenport.

"I was actually nominated eight years ago for the hall of fame but withdrew my name since I served on the board."

Davenport, who was raised in Charlevoix, spent several years as the city's Recreation Director.

He also heads up the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program in the summer, and volunteers his time to help plan and organize the annual Venetian Festival.

With his diverse background in athletics and recreation, Davenport also helped in the creation of a new Recreation major at Ferris State University.

"I was just a sophomore in college when I took

"I believe the things I learned when working on that program really helped me in my career."

All three of Davenport's children also graduated from Ferris State University.

"Thanks to Ferris, my children also had a chance to have their talent shine and are now very successful in their careers," said Davenport.

"And now receiving this honor is all just very humbling."

ASSEMBLY

sociate pastor, it is Ginger's desire to develop new programs and Christian education opportunities to better serve her own congregation as well as the community, while bringing a fresh focus on outreach, evangelism and community involvement.

It is her mission to help people discover God's calling in their lives while tapping into that person's spiritual gifts and natural talents, to train, equip and empower them to minister in the area that God has assigned to them, essentially giving them a place to belong and a place to work to further the kingdom of God.

Brian and Heather Cornett have begun their tenure as Senior Youth Leaders.

Brian grew up in Charlevoix and Heather in the Petoskey area.

They have been married five years and have two children. Heather completed 'Youth With A Mission' (YWAM) Discipleship Training School in Maui in 2002 and participated in a 3 months outreach to India and Nepal in 2003.

Brian studied for two years at North Central Assembly Of God Bible College 2000-2002.

After college, he joined a traveling music ministry team through 'Carpenter Tools International'.

His outreach included eight months of traveling throughout the US ministering in prisons, schools, churches and universities as well as a month long outreach in Honduras and Guatemala.

In 2003, he took a return trip to Honduras where he led a summer outreach team with 'Youth For Christ.'

After their marriage, they spent six months in Nepal working with SARA church and orphanage in Kathmandu.

Locally, they have participated in many outreaches with 'Ragamuffins Theatre' and joined them on several mission trips including 'House Of Hope' Orlando, Fla. and two outreaches to Puerto Rico.

Last year they lived in Phoenix, Ariz. for the winter while Brian took part in a six-month mentoring program and interned as a worship leader at Christlife Church in Tempe, Ariz.

Brian plans on beginning the Berean School of the Bible this winter in order to earn his ministerial credentials with Assemblies of God.

Brian and Heather's desires for their Youth Ministry While ghettos may have their share of violence and crime, small communities are the home of more subtle demonic forces like numbness, complacency and comfort.

And, it is these very things that can eat away at people's souls and leave them unknown victims of the enemy's prowl.

They want to lead youth from where ever they are currently, into a more genuine and deeper relationship with the Father.

Hoping to make child abuse a rarity, local and national experts will be holding a Community Leadership Summit on Abuse and Assault in Charlevoix.

The event, which offers free events open to the public as well as paid portions, will be led by Victor Vieth, director of the National Child Protection Training Center, a training facility located at Winona State University.

"His purpose is to prevent abuse and stop abuse," said Charlevoix resident and long-time victim advocate Heidi Miller who is co-chairing the summit. "The Friday event has no religious aspect. We are going to hear about what we as a community can do to eliminate child abuse. The Saturday event is for community-wide worship and healing service where all pastors from the community (more than 12 churches) in Charlevoix-Emmett area, will be attending."

Jason Wiser, director of the Michigan Bridge Ministry, has a full-time ministry in Ukraine where he and his wife work with children who have suffered from sexual abuse, is co-chairing the event with Miller.

"I strongly believe the churches are too afraid to get engaged in this topic... that is affecting our communities," he said. "By raising awareness as a community, we can eliminate false accusations and eliminate serious accusations by not covering up, not trying to solve those issues in-house exclusively."

According to the National Child Protection Training Center, Vieth, a graduate of Hamline University Law School, has trained thousands of child protection professionals from all 50 states and internationally.

His focus is on "Prevention of child abuse and neglect. Victor is also the author of 'Unto the Third Generation,' a bold initiative that outlines the necessary steps we must all take to eliminate child abuse in America in three generations," his biography states.

Miller said everyone interested in stopping child abuse must attend the summit.

"We want to make child abuse rare in American like polio," she said. "People can think this is pie in the sky, but everybody has to take responsibility for this epidemic of child abuse."

Events will include a presentation by Vieth for pastors and community leaders only on how churches should go about writing their child abuse and prevention policies.

You may register at 8 a.m. for the 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. workshop on preventing abuse on Friday Nov. 13 at the Community Reformed Church at 100 Oak St.

The cost is $20 in advance or $25 at the door.

Vieth will speak on ending child abuse in America.

The free event begins at 7 p.m. with a community presentation by Vieth.

The workshop continues at 8 a.m. on Nov. 14.

Contact Jason Wiser at (231) 432-8177 or Heidi Miller at (231) 459-5107.

Then, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. there will be a church healing service on Saturday Nov. 14 at Charlevoix Family of Faith Church on 203 East Upight St.

Additional speakers during the summit will include Basyle "Boz" Tchividjian, J.D., on the topic of Policy, Law, Child Abuse & Assault Prevention and Prosecution.

Petoskey resident Jim Marshall on "The Art and Power of Loving a Survivor."

Miller on "Sanctuary trauma: what heals what hurts."

Chris Krajewski, of the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey, on "Walking the walk."

There will be an introduction to the new "Red Card Curriculum," an eight-week class on raising awareness of at-risk kids through a biblical perspective.

City revamps policy

Straebel said the city has and will continue work with them on pay ment plans when needed. We need to run the utility department as a business, but we know there are extenuating circumstances," he added.

City treasurer Rick Brandi said he generally sees two or so shutoffs each month.

"I cannot remember ever having anyone shut off in the dead of winter," he said.

"This policy doesn't really change anything we were doing in the past, it simply ensures we make every effort to contact people to make sure they know they are behind before we shut them off."

The city's policy on notifying clients is already extensive, Brandi said.

"They get a notice telling them they're past due, then we send them a shutoff notice, then if they don't pay we hang a (notice) on their door and then, if they still have not paid, we call them," he said.

"This is largely a proactive measure and is consistent with what city staff has been doing in the past working with senior citizens and lower-income families to make sure we do not shut off their utilities. We will continue working with them to make sure payments are made on a timely basis and that they do not have utilities shut off in the dead of winter."

ROB STRAEDEL,
CHARLEVOIX CITY MANAGER

"So, we really try to make contact with the person to make sure they know."

Further, if seniors are scheduled for shutoff during hot weather, they will not have service discontinued if the temperature forecast for the current or following day is 95 degrees or higher.

Conversely, low-income customers and senior citizens will not have their power turned off during winter months as long as they are enrolled in the winter protection payment plan.

If they can prove they have applied for state or federal income assistance within 14 days of request ing shutoff protection, they will not be shut off.

Persons who must have power for medical reasons such as oxygen maker and other life support will neither have their power shut off.

"We do have some referrals to social service agencies and local churches," Brandi said.

"We try to turn people in those directions when they need help."

Brandi added that the city has seen an increase in shutoff notices and delinquent accounts since the recession hit.

"We've probably been more liberal with our payment plans in the past year or so, but we still stick to it: if someone breaks their payment plan, we do not do another one," he said.

Charlevoix hopes to secure $50K grant

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Hoping to cash in on the movement toward green technology, City of Charlevoix officials have applied for $50,000 in energy grants.

Part of the Michigan Energy Efficiency & Conservation Block Grant Program, there are millions of dollars available for municipalities to replace outdated components with high-efficiency ones.

Straebel

"There are basically five improvements that we're looking to do," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel. "If approved for the money, the city plans to replace heating units and lights in the fire department and ambulance garage; light sensors in city hall, an air transfer unit at the wastewater treatment plant and light sensors in the fire/EMS department.

"Overall, we estimate that we'd save between $11,000 and $13,000 per year with the implementation of these improvements," Straebel said. "Our overall intention is to create more efficiencies in the way we heat and cool buildings, not only to save taxpayers money, but also reducing our carbon footprint which is consistent with this grant program."

While there are an estimated $454 million in federal Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant monies, Straebel said the $50,000 grant for the city is not guaranteed. "I think it's going to be highly-competitive," Straebel said. "It's open to all communities, municipalities and townships throughout Michigan — seeing that the vast majority of governments are having their revenues reduced, I'd think there is going to be a lot of competition for every grant dollar available."

Matching grants on this project, which could total $68,927, includes $18,927 in contributions of man-hours and matching funds from the city.

The city's portion of the funding has already been budgeted.

"When you look at the potential savings, long-term, for the city, I think it just makes sense to go ahead with these projects," Straebel said.

The city could know as early as December, if they will receive the grant.

Environmental efforts bring success

Additional actions proposed at environmental project

"...recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

— David Mengebier
President, CMS Land Company

PETOSKEY, Mich., (Sept. 28, 2009) - CMS Land Company reports that significant progress has been made in addressing environmental issues related to the defunct cement plant that once operated on the shores of Little Traverse Bay. The abandoned site was redeveloped in 1994 into what are now Resort Township's East Park and the Bay Harbor Resort.

August water monitoring results verify that pH readings above the action level of nine have been virtually eliminated and human health and safety concerns have been effectively addressed. In August, only one reading above nine (9.12, similar to baking soda) was recorded in an isolated area west of the Bay Harbor golf course clubhouse. These results build on months of increasingly positive results and are a dramatic contrast to the dozens of pH readings above nine that were recorded in 2005, before CMS began its work at the site.

"These important environmental accomplishments are the result of a lot of hard work and substantial investment," said David Mengebier, CMS Land Company president. "The June reopening of East Park, the lifting of several health advisories, and these most recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

In reporting these results, CMS also noted two important milestones in completing work at the site: review and approval by regulators of the Remedial Investigation/Alternative Evaluation (RI/AE) studies for East Park and the Bay Harbor development and continued work to identify a local option for disposing of water collected at the site.

In late summer, CMS Land submitted the RI/AEs to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. The RI/AEs use established scientific processes to evaluate the effectiveness of both current and long-term remedies at both locations. The EPA and DEQ will consider public input while reviewing the documents and then can approve the documents or request additional study. Once approved, the RI/AEs will outline the final work involved with the project.

"We believe we have done an excellent job so far. We are hopeful that the RI/AEs will be reviewed and approved in a timely manner so that we can build on our progress and bring the project to a successful conclusion," said Mengebier.

In addition, work is underway to identify a local remedy to dispose of the water collected from East Park and Bay Harbor. The collection and treatment of large quantities of groundwater is the primary method CMS is using to address pH and mercury at the site. Different options under review would safely treat the water and release it to the lake, pump the water into the City of Petoskey's water treatment system for treatment, or involve the construction of a local disposal well near the site. CMS is currently shipping up to 27 trucks containing 11,500 gallons of water a day to Traverse City and Johannesburg for disposal.

"Trucking the water, because of its increased public safety and transportation risks, environmental concerns, and cost, is not a realistic long-term remedy," Mengebier said. "We absolutely need—and are encouraged that the public has expressed a desire—to identify a local solution to a local concern."

East Park and Bay Harbor were reclaimed from the site of an abandoned cement factory covering 1,200 acres and five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline. The brownfield site was redeveloped in 1994 and was the largest reclamation project in North America.

While no longer a partner in the project that redeveloped an abandoned cement factory into the Bay Harbor community and two public parks, CMS Land Company agreed to address certain environmental issues associated with the cement dust left behind by the cement plant. CMS has worked for five years and spent more than $90 million on the project to date and has achieved significant environmental progress in the protection of Little Traverse Bay.

H1N1 shots available for those most at risk

Health department offers limited vaccine to those who need it most

With flu illness widespread throughout the region, public health officials are scrambling to get H1N1 vaccine out to those who are at highest risk of developing complications from the flu.

H1N1 flu vaccine clinics tentatively scheduled next week:

H1N1 vaccinations from the Health Department are free. Clinics are set for 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday Oct. 30, in each county served by the Health Department of Northwest Michigan as follows:

Antrim County: Health Department Bellaire office
Charlevoix County: Charlevoix Public Library
Emmet County: Health Department Petoskey/Harbor Springs office

Otsego County: Health Department Gaylord office
There are no appointments; vaccination is on a walk-in, first come-first serve basis and only for those people who are most vulnerable to influenza.

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control's Advisory Committee of Immunization Practices (ACIP) the first groups to immunize when vaccine supplies are limited are:

Pregnant women

der six months old (parents, brothers and sisters, and child care providers)

Health care workers and emergency personnel who have direct contact with patients

Children age six months through four years old

Children and adolescents age five through 18 who have medical conditions, like asthma or other lung disease, heart disease, diabetes, neurological disorders, cancer or chemotherapy, or immune system disorders.

Children age nine and under need two doses of vaccine 28 days apart.

The Health Department's supplies of injectable vaccine are severely limited at this time; only those people who cannot get the vaccine in spray mist form will receive an H1N1 "shot" at the Oct. 30 clinics.

Pregnant women, children under two years old, and people with medical conditions described above will get an H1N1 injection.

Also, anyone over age 50 who lives with or cares for an infant under six months old or who is a health care worker with direct patient contact will get an H1N1 injection. Everyone else in the current "vaccine priority sub-groups" will receive flu mist.

"We're asking community members to please let those who are most vulnerable get the vaccine first," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "We're in the early stages of a very long and challenging flu season. We've ordered more vaccine and Michigan Department of Community Health is shipping it out to local health departments as soon as they get it from the CDC."

Meyerson said to check the Health Department's

Web site, www.nwhealth.org, for current information about the H1N1 clinics.

"It will be a long while before it's too late to protect yourself or your family members from either seasonal flu or H1N1 flu," Meyerson said. "The flu season typically lasts through April. CDC is watching for current flu activity to ebb over the next few weeks and then return in January, like it did during the last flu pandemic in the late 1950s. Vaccination is the best protection from the flu so we're saying, 'wait your turn, but get your shot.'"

Additional H1N1 flu vaccination clinics will be announced as vaccine shipments arrive. For additional information about the H1N1 flu and flu clinics, visit www.nwhealth.org or call (800) 432-4121.

CDC is watching for current flu activity to ebb over the next few weeks and then return in January, like it did during the last flu pandemic in the late 1950s. Vaccination is the best protection from the flu so we're saying, 'wait your turn, but get your shot.'"

Additional H1N1 flu vaccination clinics will be announced as vaccine shipments arrive. For additional information about the H1N1 flu and flu clinics, visit www.nwhealth.org or call (800) 432-4121.

Rayders secure playoff slot

Background Information

While many people with hearing instruments report problems with background noise at one time or another, it should be remembered that we all have trouble hearing above background noise at times, even when we have good hearing. The good news is that hearing instruments have circuits and features that can minimize unwanted sounds. Digital hearing instruments and directional microphones are particularly helpful in this respect. While digital instruments are able to perform complex calculations that effectively address the potential problem of background noise, directional microphones help focus the amplification at the desired sound source (usually in front of the listener). We encourage you to discuss background noise and other potential concerns when considering the purchase of hearing instruments.

P.S. FM technology is very effective in eliminating background noise in certain situations.

New masseuse at McFadden

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

McFadden Chiropractic Clinic now offers massage therapy.

Long-time chiropractor Brian McFadden, a member of the American Medical Massage Association and who studied at the Blue Heron Academy of Healing Arts and Sciences, hired Abigail Tompkins as his new masseuse at the end of this summer.

"It's something I've been thinking about doing for a couple years now," McFadden said.

"I just thought she'd (Tompkins) be a good fit."

Massage therapy focuses on treating muscle soreness, poor circulation, lymphatic draining, muscle spasms and generalized pain.

According to McFadden,

"chiropractic as well as massage therapy go hand in hand."

Tompkins graduated from Blue Heron Academy in March, 2009 before going on to work at Boyne Mountain in the spa.

"I had been doing massage pretty much all along as my technique with chiropractic adjustment," McFadden said.

"That's why it was a good fit: we already offered it, but took it a step further."

Located at 12900 US 31

North, Charlevoix. McFadden is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; and from 8 a.m. to noon on Wednesdays.

Call 547-0995 to make an appointment for a massage or to see Dr. McFadden.

BUSINESS

"The economy hasn't stopped people from spending."

KARI DAVIS,
PETALS CUSTOM FLORAL DESIGNS

Labor and Economic Growth of last winter's numbers. "The 13.9 percent puts Charlevoix a little below the state average."

The surrounding 10 counties in the northern lower peninsula are closer to 13.1 percent, and there are currently approximately 713,000 people out of work in the state.

According to a random sampling of Charlevoix businesses, lowered unemployment and new business growth seem to indicate a potential fiscal upswing.

Al Plungis, the owner and chef of Edgewater Bistro known for its steaks and seafood, said business was great this summer.

"I just think people come up to Charlevoix because it's a great town," he said. "People still do vacations (during a down economy) they just stay closer to home."

Craig Cooper manages Maxwell Bros. Cycle Shop.

"We did better this year than the previous summer," he said. "We were blessed not to be hit by the economy."

Cooper said motorcycle enthusiasts have kept up with their hobby, and that has kept his full-service Harley Davidson and metric bike repair business steady.

The increase in business has recently allowed the shop to expand its scope to include used motorcycle sales and a wide variety of apparel and accessories.

Matt Claflin, who owns Sonny's Ironing Market, said the restaurant and grocery portion of his store was slower than last summer, but that his other business is doing well.

"The puzzle business was fantastic," Claflin said of his Puzzles That Rock line. "We created a second puzzle Lures and Legends and we have plans to release our third puzzle in the spring."

Business also bloomed this summer for Kari Davis, owner of Petals Custom Floral Designs. "Things went great; a lot better than expected," she said. "We were busy with a lot of weddings, a lot of local and summer people coming and the word is spreading."

Davis said the retail flower industry seemed to be down as a whole, but that it has not negatively affected her.

"The economy hasn't stopped people from spending," she said. "I was thrilled with my first year being open. It was more than I could have hoped for."

However, economist Michael LaFave of the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, an independent

Midland-based think tank said the economy isn't ready for a full rebound yet.

"It drives home the point, in a big way, the old saying: If your neighbor loses his job, it's a recession; if you lose your job it's a depression," LaFave said, citing relatively high unemployment numbers as a good indicator of economic strength. "It also means higher outboard migration. For every one percent increase in the state unemployment rate, about 1,000 additional people leave the state every year."

LaFave said from 2002 to 2007, Michigan's true unemployment rate was masked because the rate of Michiganders leaving the state was high enough to cause an artificial excess of jobs.

Annual adjusted unemployment was 6.2 percent in 2002, 7.1 percent in 2003, 7.1 percent in 2004, 6.8 percent in 2005, 6.9 percent in 2006 and 7.1 percent in 2007.

Once unemployment numbers skyrocketed over the past year, that excess disappeared.

"I suspect at some point we will return to a different equilibrium where far more jobs are available for the number of people looking for them," LaFave said.

While so many businesses nationwide are scaling back production and cutting staff, some small business owners are expanding through new and unique opportunities. Pictured here are Nathan and Jacob Claflin (from left) help their mom Lisa showcase "Puzzles That Rock." Lisa and her husband Matt said business in their deli/party store is down a little from last year, but that puzzle sales are continuing to increase.

"But, I don't see that happening for several years in part due to the national recession — because our unemployed no longer have anywhere to go."

As far as predicting when the economy may pull fully out of this cycle, LaFave said only time will tell.

"I would like to say we've hit the trough, but I always look to Ireland as a historical example," he said. "After 10 years of potato famine they said things can't get any worse, but even today their population is worse than when the potato famine hit."

LaFave added, "It tells us economic malaise can linger for decades, and if the present trends continue, we can see traditionally poorer states like Mississippi may pass Michigan in average per capita personal income."

Industries most affected by the layoff activity, said Weaver, have been in manufacturing, auto-related business, construction and the whole professional and business services industry. Alternately, health care continues to add jobs. While none of the experts would attempt to predict when recovery may occur, LaFave did say there are signs for which to watch. Two things to look for in determining when Michigan begins to rebound are the state's economic output and personal income statistics.

"Since '99, Michigan's economic output has fallen from 16th among 40 states to 41st," LaFave said. "When that climbs again, you're looking at good news on the horizon. The second, and intertwined thing, is personal income."

Non-motorized path far from settled

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

In what one official described as a "perfect storm" of circumstances, a debate over the location of a proposed non-motorized trail continues to rile the waters in Charlevoix County.

More than 50 people turned out at Wednesday's Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' meeting — most of them to voice their support for or opposition to a proposed non-motorized trail along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

The large turnout prompted the board to move its meeting from its usual chambers to the 90th District Court room.

The first public comment portion of the meeting lasted nearly an hour, with comments on the proposed trail accounting for most of that time.

For several years, county planners and others have been laying the groundwork for a non-motorized trail along the main route between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

While the work had been plodding along slowly in the background, the proposal moved front and center when a county-wide road improvement millage passed last year moved up plans to reconstruct the badly deteriorated Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Trying to gain an economy of scale by doing trail work at the same time as road reconstruction work, county planners stepped up their efforts to obtain grant funding for the project.

The trail project hit a major bump earlier this year when property owners opposed to the trail along the route discovered that most of the road's right of way has a deed restriction that limits the road commission's use of the property to "highway uses only."

Not wanting to engage in a prolonged and expensive legal battle over the definition of "highway use" both the road commission and the county board of commissioners have backed away from the proposal to construct a trail that is separate from the roadway and been more supportive of pursuing a widened shoulder option for bike lanes.

However, in recent weeks, the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce and others have pushed back, citing safety concerns, urging the commission to not abandon the separate trail plan.

The board also heard equally impassioned statements from property owners who are adamant that they don't want the trail going through their yards and will never grant an easement to do so.

Also on hand Wednesday was Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon and a representative from Northwest Design Group updated the board on the status of plans for rebuilding the 2.74-mile section of road from Nelson Road to Sumner Road.

They reported that the estimated cost of rebuilding the road with two 12-foot wide lanes is about $921,000 (to be paid from money collected from the road millage).

To add two five-foot bike lanes on each side of the road would come at an estimated cost of an additional $380,000. About $228,000 of the widened lane costs could come from a state grant while the remaining $152,000 would need to come from a local matching source.

Harmon said he's concerned about the time element involved in the debate. He said the road commission wants to begin reconstruction work on the road as soon as possible in the spring.

But in order to be considered for the grant that would fund about 60 percent of the cost of the widened shoulders, the application would need to be sent in within the next week. He said a delay would cause the county to have to wait until March to hear back on the grant which could delay the start of the entire project until fall.

The county commission did not take any action on this matter.

Path supporters are urged to:

- Sign the online Boyne City Road Bike Trail Petition <http://new.ipetitions.com/petition/biketrail/>
- Non-residents are also asked to opine
- Call your county commissioner and tell them how you feel.
- Send an e-mail to the county clerk's office and ask that it be forwarded to all commissioners — Borthsc@gov.charlevoixcounty.org
- Display an "I support a REAL bike path" sign in your store, office or car - click here and print PDF.
- Attend board of commissioner meetings at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. the first and the second and fourth Wednesdays at the County Building, 203 Antrim St., Charlevoix.
- For more information, call Jim Baumann at the Boyne City chamber of commerce at (231) 582-6222.

Couple celebrates Adoption Day

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

This November 21st marks the 10th anniversary of National Adoption Day. The day was set aside each year to celebrate adoptive families and finalize the adoptions of children from foster care. Since 2000, more than 25,000 children have had their adoptions finalized on National Adoption Day.

On November 21st, Heaven Sent Adoption Services, a Charlevoix based Christian adoption education and child placing agency, will host a "Get to know adoption" event at the Charlevoix Pub

Library. Experts will be on hand to present information on several topics including search and reunion, education for those experiencing an unplanned pregnancy, and an orientation for families hoping to adopt domestically or internationally.

For many families, getting started in the adoption process can be daunting. Shelia Davis, a referral coordinator with Heaven Sent Adoption Services, hopes the event will serve as a teaching tool.

"I think a common misconception of how long it takes to adopt a child is a really bad one," said Davis. "A lot of people think it will take longer than it actually does. At most, it's about two years."

Davis says it may take longer for prospective parents who are looking to adopt an infant or a specific gender.

"Another factor is cost,"

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Autumn is surely the time for us to consider mortality. That is especially true for botanists, because while many animals just hunker down, migrate, fly south or even sleep for long periods, among the plants fall is immersed in the detritus (the dead and dying parts) of most of them.

The leaves from our deciduous trees are certainly the most spectacular reminders of fall and mortality, but even what we call "evergreens" have been shedding bundles of last year's (not last summer's) leave or needles.

The trees are, of course, not dying, they are only discarding out-dated, outworn, no longer useful parts.

It is kind of like term limits for elected officials, or like retirement is for many of us.

Although you do not want to push that analogy too far, since the leaves are on their way to becoming humus or fertilizer, while we would hope that elected officials and most of the retired folks would be soldiering on in some new capacity.

Out in the forest, where leaves are not raked up and trucked away, it takes about 18 months for an ordinary leaf to become unrecognizable humus or fertilizer.

That process follows only a couple of months as food and oxygen factories while they were attached to their tree. The material in the leaves can be recycled dozens or even hundreds of times during the life of any single tree. Would that we could do as well with the old TV sets of refrigerators that we discard when they are no longer useful.

Every fall about this time I reread Ode to the West Wind by the poet Percy Shelley.

The first line is an attention-getter, especially for those of us who live near the Big Lake.

"O wild West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being,"

While it is true that most of that wild west wind that now moves the leaves along their hectic path comes not from the skies but from gasoline-powered blowers, the leaves still flee.

To quote Shelly again, "Yellow, and black and pale and hectic red, Pestilence-stricken multitudes."

Whatever the motivation for the leaves, they still look like that and move, just as they did in the 17th century. So, read a little Shelly, think about your mortality and rake up those leaves. The last line of Shelley's poem is also worth repeating:

Bailed out bankers are rewarding themselves with bonuses. The Dow has rallied and a feeble "Huzzah!" can be heard echoing all the way from Broadway to Park Place. Does this mean that we are back in the money? Is Daddy Warbucks gonna make it rain? Not in my neighborhood.

With an unprecedented number of American families still attempting to keep the home fires burning with the remnants of once-respectable IRAs and college funds, a new reality has emerged.

No longer stunned by the unpeppable "What if..." the confounding question now seems to be "What next?"

Living alone and liking it (or not), has become the onus of many in these trying economic times.

As spouses stray farther and farther afield in search of sustainable income, one of the couple must usually remain aboard ship to keep the kids in line and insure salvage rights.

Once initial disbelief has been dispelled along with the bank account, action of some sort is called for.

Piqued by the rumor that Lumber R Us in Poughkeepsie is hiring, many families have opted to slice off a member and send them out to seek their fortune while their loved ones remain in the village.

This sort of fraying of the family unit is bound to have an effect.

The children, of course, will suffer, but they will have decades to recover. They will be able to speak to their grandchildren with authority about the "recession" of aught-nine. Let us concentrate on those for whom the concept of marrying for love may have faded: The adults.

So, you have worked hard to secure a comfortable life for yourself and your family, only to watch it melted down for scrap.

Now what?

Let's look at the bright side: With your spouse doing God-knows-what God-knows-where, you will have the bed to yourself.

Sleeping in the middle on the resilient part of the mattress, surrounded by family pets, is a dream come true. Also, if the persistent pressures of your situation preclude sleep, you will be able to read in bed until dawn without disturbing your partner, who has his/her own basement/attic apartment 1,500 miles away.

Mealtime will no longer be a time-consuming affair. Kids will eat anything and the easier it is to prepare, the better they like it.

Humdrum protein fortified by a box of Helper may be substituted for more sophisticated cuisine. It's nice to know that with your own helpmate otherwise occupied that at least something has the hamburger's back. You will also save on electric or gas bills by never using the oven.

Compromise-smompromise: At last! Not since the two weeks between snagging that useful degree in liberal arts and falling for the he-man/she-woman of your dreams has the floor been open to such decadent self-absorption.

You are the last word on any and all of the myriad details concerning your daily life, responsibilities and social interactions.

Dying to try dreadlocks? Now is the time.

Wondering if you can run to the store in your pajamas? Who's to say that you shouldn't?

Hard cider and bridge mix for breakfast? Bon appetite. It is almost redundant to mention the unquestioned command of the TV remote.

As with any silver lining, there is also the cloud to consider: Most enter into relationships with people of whom they are rather fond and there is a tendency to pine for them in their absence.

This unproductive emotion may be dealt with by reminding oneself that, had the object of affection the foresight to amass a fortune or dabble in a recession-proof enterprise, you and he/she would be somewhere in the south of France. Even those who didn't so much dabble as swindle, have managed to provide a legacy. Bernie Madoff may be sharing pizza and a cell with a drug dealer, but his wife, most assuredly, is not.

Blame is cathartic and effectively absolves one from all but the most forgivable sin of running with the wrong crowd.

In summation: While the strains of rejoicing may be audible from the mountain tops, many are still dancing solo while their significant others could, for all they know, be dating a cute redhead in another state.

This remains to be seen. But, in the meantime, let us address one more pertinent issue.

Can't reach the itchy spot on your back? This is one of the most agonizing aspects of the estimated stress syndrome. A plastic stick with a tiny claw on the end is not in the budget, a wooden salad fork works well.

Going to the dogs, one meal at a time

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

They say a man's home is his castle. When you think of "castle" you might imagine a knight in shimmering armor, a beautiful princess and as sorted gal-we're at work.

Brother devil hounds Sam and Tolstoy turned a year old last week and the wife and daughter thought a birthday party with cake and hats was in order.

The dogs promptly ate the hats, but there would be no cake because the wife destroyed the stove.

It seems a burner was not plugged in all the way causing electricity to shoot to the ceiling and apparently fry the appliance.

From my office, I heard a loud pop followed shortly by the wife's screams, "Lightning! It shot lightning! Heeereeeen!"

Oh yeah, did I mention the wife has taken up cooking?

And, before you sensitive types recoil at my assessment of the wife's efforts, know this: I willingly and skilfully cooked every meal during the first 15 years of our marriage. Now, common sense, lack of free time — and state fire code — have prevented my wife from cooking since we got together in 1994.

Out for eggs and juice some autumn morning while she made toast and fed our infant son, I returned to find them blissfully unaware of the coal-black column of smoke rising up the kitchen wall and pooling against the ceiling behind them.

But, now with no more college classes sucking up her nights, she is excited to finally have time to cook for her family every night.

She's excited.

Aren't you excited?

I'm so excited I can't stop crying.

So, for the last couple months its been pot roast a la Birkenstock — after six minutes of chewing, I stopped looking for laces and buckles, tuna noodle surprise: Surprise! Guess who hates tuna noodle casserole?; and quite possibly my favorite BBLTs: that stands for black bacon, lettuce and tomato.

The twins, on the other hand find the wife's cooking simply divine. Of course, in their first year on the planet, they have eaten one-half of a severely overpriced leather recliner; four pairs of shoes, a cell phone, a tub of crayons, two television remotes, three nylon dog collars — yes, they remove their collars and eat them — several blankets and pillows, two dead mice, two tubs of margarine, the wife's back massager, three feet of living room baseboard, nine stuffed animals, half a Barbie doll, one beer, approximately 13 pounds of acorns and six bushel baskets of pine cones, sundry flowers, insects, my lemon cookies and my favorite Stephen King book.

Hesitant to rearm the wife with her instrument of destruction, the family had to eat.

With breakers and fuses looking fine, I scanned the countryside for a reasonably priced range. The wife nearly died of shame when I handed the stranger a $10 bill for the old stove in the front yard.

"Oh my god," she said, covering her face. "It's not going to work."

It took about 10 minutes to drain the rainwater from the stove before hoisting it into the back of the van.

"It's not going to work," the wife cheered again.

The boys wrestled the stove into the house and plugged it in.

Nothing.

"I told you it wasn't going to work."

Well, with no microwave, and too cheap to call an electrician, we splurged on a table top skillet to get us through.

Did you know slow-cooked spaghetti turns into paste? I didn't.

I don't demand gourmet. I just want something this side of edible, and after two bites of Italian glue, I broke down and made the call.

It cost $60 for a real man to come in and change the bad fuse I missed.

Viola! The old stove worked.

The wife was so happy to have the magical cooking box back online she decided to celebrate by cooking Thanksgiving dinner.

Early, yes. But, she's never done it before and wanted a practice run before the real deal later this month.

Anyone with an empty seat at their dinner table can call me at 439-9309.

Editor:

Fall is here in Charlevoix, we're getting our yards and gardens ready for winter, having a last look at the Halloween Decorations, and thinking of Thanksgiving.

If you look in the stores they are already thinking Christmas.

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project Committee is also getting ready for Christmas in Charlevoix.

A short history about this committee - it began as a spin-off of the Food Pantry in the early 1980s, and is under the Charlevoix Ministerial Association umbrella. We only operate for three months October, November and December.

We are a non-profit group and operate by donations only. Our only purpose is to see that all children in the Charlevoix School District have a Merry Christmas.

We furnish food for the family, plus clothes and gifts for the children. Last year we helped 240 families—429 children and 428 adults. We were able to do this with the generous help of the churches, business community, schools and other organizations and individuals of Charlevoix the Beautiful. It was truly the Golden Rule in action Neighbor helping neighbor.

If you are one of the many people needing help this year, you can sign up from 10 a.m. to noon on Monday or Thursday at the Charlevoix Food Pantry, located in the basement of the Congregational Church.

As you prepare your homes and hearts for the Christmas Season, and as you celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ (the Greatest Gift we'll ever receive) won't you consider helping us.

If you see a Toys For Tots box please put something in it (don't forget teenager gifts). Or a sox box or mitten tree or the giving tree at St. Mary School or the angel tree at Christ Episcopal, please consider helping.

We also have families and children you can adopt (we furnish the food).

If you would be willing to help, please check with your church office, pastor, Food Pantry on Monday or Thursday mornings, or contact one of the ladies listed below.

Thank you for your help. May your days be merry and your Christmas bright.

Charlevoix Community Christmas Project Committee chair-people, Bev Boss, Rosemary Horton, Marty Eveleigh, Joan Balch, Carolyn Batdorf and Arlene Staley.

Viper Toxin Erases Wrinkles

BEVERLY HILLS 6 Some are calling ViperX the greatest breakthrough in skin research since Botox. ViperX is a non-invasive cream which contains a synthetically similar ingredient to Waglerin 1, the peptide found in the venom of the Temple viper.

ViperX works similarly to Botox by relaxing contractions in the skin to eliminate wrinkles, crows feet, expression lines and other signs of aging skin. But, unlike Botox, ViperX is not injected and you don't have to make a doctor's appointment to get it. ViperX is applied sparingly to the skin twice daily and is completely safe.

In an in vivo clinical study, 30 volunteers (ages 40-60) were divided into two groups. One group applied the ViperX formula and the other group applied a placebo. Both groups applied the creams to their foreheads twice daily. Results showed up to a 52% reduction in wrinkle size within 28 days of application in the ViperX group. ViperX is available at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now available at CENTRAL REXALL DRUG.

Local veterans look back on service

BY TINA SUNDELIUS
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

World War Two was escalating and judging by the events being reported from Europe no one would have guessed it was so close to ending.

It was at this point in the war that 19-year-old Gus Schmidt was deployed to Belgium.

He found himself on the fringe, the left flank to be exact, of the soon to become famous Battle of the Bulge.

The battle was given that name by the English speaking general public because of the initial incursion that the German army put in the Allies' line of advance as seen on maps.

his arms and legs off.

Schmidt was platoon Sergeant with the 303 Combat Engineer Battalion, 78th Division.

He and a friend, Jack, who later became his brother-in-law, enlisted about the time Hitler started his last offensive.

After the Ardennes-Alsace Campaign, the battle's official name, Schmidt was then transferred to the Ruhr Valley Germany where his division succeeded in stopping the Germans from blowing up a dam and flooding the valley.

Here Schmidt barely made it into a foxhole in front of his buddy who was hit by enemy fire as he followed Schmidt in. By March of 1945 Schmidt and his division were among the first to cross the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen.

The capture of the bridge led the way for Allied troops to drive into the heart of Germany.

Schmidt was in the service for 2 years, 10 months and 16 days yet he was a participant in three major campaigns that ended the German involvement in the war.

Schmidt was on a three day pass in Paris when Hitler surrendered less than a month after the victory at Remagen.

"It was a time of elation, said Schmidt, everyone was happy."

"There was a blue serviceman star in nearly every window; it was gold if the soldier had died. Said Schmidt it was a very different time than it is today, there was much more recognition of the servicemen in World War II because it affected every home. It seemed like every home had someone in the service."

In 1923 Schmidt's parents immigrated to the Detroit area from Germany.

He was born 5 months after they arrived.

"After the war we were reasonably close to my parents home town (in Germany)," said Schmidt so I was able to visit an Aunt and an Uncle I had never seen."

"War is not about the hate of individuals but the hate of the leaders," he Schmidt.

"In the movie 'All Quiet on the Western Front', the original, actor Gregory Ratoff addressed his men and said 'The way to end all wars is to rope off an area put all the politicians in it in their underpants and let them go at it,' said Schmidt, who has seen nine wars in his lifetime.

John Peterson has always wondered if he was the recipient of a miracle.

Peterson didn't go to Vietnam like almost all of the soldiers of his generation did and for 16 years after he came home he refused to join the Veteran's Administration because he didn't think that he deserved it.

Peterson was sent to Korea as a Cryptographer. He coded and decoded messages between Vietnam and the U.S.

"We called in the fire strikes, we called in the bombing raids. It was years and years before I saw the value in what I was doing," said Peterson, then it dawned on me that what I did was useful."

Peterson was drafted into the Army in 1968 and unlike most of his peers who were sent to Fort Knox, Ky., he was sent to Fort Dix, NJ.

In the middle of his training he was offered an opportunity to go to school for electronics if he enlisted for another year.

"I've been messing with Ham radio since I was a kid so when they offered electronics I jumped on it," he said.

After school Peterson was sent to a transfer station in Fort Louis, Washington where an amazing and still unexplained miracle changed the direction of his life.

"The transfer station was a huge empty room with desks

"I have no idea where the kid came from, how he found me among all those soldiers or why. It was pretty incredible."

JOHN PETERSON,

at one end and hundreds of soldiers sitting on duffel bags," Peterson said. "Out of the blue a young man comes up and asks, 'Are you Peterson?' I said 'yes' and he asked if I wanted to go to Vietnam. I said 'not particularly' and he told me to write Korea on my card and anywhere else I wanted to go. I thought maybe there was something to this. So I wrote Germany for my second choice."

He added, "I have no idea where the kid came from, how he found me among all those soldiers or why. It was pretty incredible."

When he got to Korea he worked in the Cryptograph vault coding and decoding messages.

"I fixed the computers. In the middle of fixing you have a lot of free time so I read most of the messages that came through and for the longest time none of it made sense they were just names," he said.

"Then I found out what the names were; it was a list of the dead, day after day, day after day, day after day."

Peterson added, "In the movie 'We Are Soldiers' Mel Gibson's wife takes on the job of delivering the telegraphs reporting the death of a soldier. It occurred to me when I watched the movie I'm the burg, Germany and placed in the 24th infantry for 5 months.

"They came along (one day) and took my patches off and put new ones on, that's how the 1st infantry forward got out of Vietnam," said Peterson.

"The people themselves didn't actually leave; all they did was trade patches with me."

Peterson got out of the Army in 1971 and the war ended in 1975.

"I was pretty upset when I got out," said Peterson.

The misrepresentation that he witnessed still makes him angry.

Peterson is the Vice President of Chapter 68 of the Vietnam Veterans.

They meet every Tuesday night, 7 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Petoskey. In honor of Veterans Day the Senior Center will be providing a free lunch to all veterans at noon on Nov. 11th and the Bible Baptist Church will be providing a full turkey dinner with all the trimmings at 5 p.m. at the VFW Hall on Bridge Street. All veterans, spouses and widows are welcome.

Norwood wind ordinance hearing set

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles on wind turbines.

Norwood Township officials want to hear your thoughts and concerns on the potential for wind turbines around the village.

Cited by the State of Michigan as one of the top potential spots for wind turbines, Norwood is faced with creating rules and regulations on the 500-foot generators.

"We're probably one of the hot test places in the state because we carry both criteria: wind and infrastructure," said Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton.

According to Norwood resident Annie Doyle who also heads the township's commercial wind turbine committee, the public hearing will include an informational session.

"We just want people to know the facts," she said. "I just want everybody to be aware of the issues and then make educated decisions based on that because this is such a big thing coming into our community."

Township officials are currently working on a draft ordinance which would address the height, setback, operation, installation and removal of wind turbine generators.

And, while there is nothing concrete as of yet, Hamilton said the township is hoping no one will choose to erect a turbine on the west side of US 31 in order to preserve what he called a "view corridor."

The township's master plan will have to be altered to allow industrial uses of agricultural land," Hamilton said.

"The state could come in and mandate how we deal with these things, we can't say we refuse," he said. "So, we're being proactive instead of waiting for the state to come in and make the decision for us."

Neither Hamilton or Doyle would give their personal opinions on wind turbines, but were able to cite some specific good and bad points about the machines.

Doyle said possible negatives from wind turbines may include annoying noise levels, shadow flicker which causes a strobe light effect when the sun is sitting low enough in the sky to cast a shadow on the other side of the turbine blades, the potential for the blades to fling ice, and a change in bird migratory patterns.

Hamilton said positives of wind turbines are several, including giving farmers a way to make a little extra money off their land without seriously impacting the property; the construction costs and incidental influx of workers and purchases in nearby towns during construction; the purchase of raw materials from local sources; and supporting renewable energy.

The public hearing is set for 7 p.m. on Dec. 2 at Charlevoix Public Library.

Next week's article will deal with Norwood's draft wind turbine ordinance.

The Norwood Township Committee on commercial wind turbines visited several cities in the mid-Michigan area which are currently constructing wind turbines or already have experience with them. Here, a several-hundred-foot wind turbine is under construction. A public hearing on Norwood's proposed wind turbine ordinance is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Dec. 2 at the Charlevoix Public Library. This is the first in a series of articles on wind turbines and Norwood's draft ordinance.

Charlevoix boys headed for Michigan International Speedway

Considering what they have had to overcome, it was not a bad day for the Charlevoix High School cross country teams.

Not a bad day indeed. The Rayder boys finished third to qualify for the state finals, while the Rayder girls placed fourth, missing out on qualifying for a trip to Michigan International Speedway by seven points Saturday in the Division III regional at Benzie Central High School.

Charlevoix's Molly Jeakle placed 10th in the girls' race to earn a trip to the state finals as an individual.

Both Rayder squads went into the regional on the tail end of a long battle with illness.

"We ran really well considering the sicknesses," Charlevoix boys' coach Ken Plude said.

"We did very well considering that. Our top four were healthy. (Alex) Gooch, who is our fifth man, that was his first race back and he got within 17 seconds of his personal best. Can't argue with that."

Benzie Central swept the team titles. The Huskie boys, ranked third in the state coaches poll, finished with 35 points, while Mason County Central, 59; was second, and the Rayders finished with 65.

The Benzie girls, also ranked third, finished with 27 points to easily outdistance runner-up Kingsley, 89. Leroy Pine River, 102, was third, while the Rayders finished fourth with 109.

Charlevoix's Eric Buday placed second in the boys' race in 16 minutes, 44 seconds. Blake Allison of Harrison won in 15:54. Benzie Central placed five runners in the top 11.

Charlevoix's Kirk Acharya was 10th, 17:22; followed by teammates Andrew Plude, 12th, 17:24; Neil Salisbury, 16th, 17:40; Gooch, 26th, 18:34; Jon Kelly, 42nd, 19:34; and Vinnie VonLaw, 58th, 20:08. Buday, Acharya and Andrew Plude earned all-region honors for placing in the top 15.

"We thought maybe we could get Mason County, but we're just happy to be going (to state)," Ken Plude said. "Hopefully that extra week will give us a chance to get healthy enough to see what we can do."

East Jordan's Luke Hawley placed 35th in the boys' race in 19:03, while teammate Rob Nemecek was 59th, 20:17. Boyne City's Jon Calo placed 70th in 21:54.

Brittany Anderson of Pine River won the girls' race in 19:14, while Jeakle led Charlevoix with her 10th-place finish in 20:40. Jeakle, one of six sophomores in coach Mary Plude's lineup, earned all-region honors.

Also for the Rayders, Hilary Way placed 18th in 21:32, Lauren Bartling was 22nd in 22:04, senior Krista Pischner was 28th in 22:26, Anne Dipert was 31st in 22:35, Stirling Wittboef placed 34th in 22:45, and Jane Balasz was 67th in 25:35.

"It was by far our best race of the season," Rayder coach Mary Plude said. "We started at the beginning of October and it seemed like I was dropping one (runner) every five days (to illness). It just seemed to spread itself out. I never had the top seven (all together) since the end of September."

"It was fantastic. They did everything from start to finish exactly as they should as a team. Awesome to coach them, watch them. I probably had a half dozen coaches say what a fantastic race that was."

"A state berth would have been nice icing on the cake, but I have six of them coming back. You have your tears and then you realize we did everything we could. We scared a few teams. They were pretty shocked at the way we ran. I think that's a pretty high compliment for the girls to be able to that without the races before (the regional) as a team."

Pischner performed exceptionally well, Mary Plude said. "She ran a fantastic race in the last race of her senior year," she said.

For Boyne City, Elizabeth Hofweber placed 60th, Meghan Hull was 61st, Mackenzie Macksey was 64th, Laci Hofweber placed 69th, Katie Mackenzie was 71st, Alexis Willford placed 72nd, and Sarah Hofford was 76th.

East Jordan's Elissa Weerstra placed 70th, and Ellie Hague finished 77th.

Helmstrom scored Charlevoix's second TD on a 41-yard run midway through the third quarter. Hosper finished with 149 yards on 12 carries, while Alex Foster was Charlevoix's top pass catcher with 78 yards on eight receptions.

"I thought Alex played real well," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said.

"He played on a partially torn MCL the last two games. He had a great game for playing on one leg. I was really happy to see him perform that well."

J.T. Lawrence had three catches for 50 yards for the Rayders and led the defense along with Ian Gauthier as both made seven tackles. Lawrence also had an interception. Foster and Helmstrom made six tackles apiece.

The loss ended the careers of several Rayder seniors, including two-way lineman Bill Ivan, who has signed with Indiana, Mitchell and Foster.

"That group of seniors, a lot of those kids were up (on the varsity) as sophomores and they've done a great job of leading the program," Jess said. "Foster, Ivan and Mitchell did a great job of leading the program. Clayton is one of the best leaders I've ever been around."

Calumet rushed for 365 yards and all seven of its touchdowns came on the ground Friday as the Copper Kings ended Charlevoix's season with a 54-13 win.

Ben Steber rushed for 129 yards and scored three TDs on nine carries to lead Calumet, 9-1, which led 38-7 at halftime. The Copper Kings advance to play Boyne City or Iron Mountain for the district championship.

Charlevoix, which was making its fourth playoff appearance in the last five years, found itself in a 14-0 first-quarter hole, but drew to 14-7 when Isaac Hosper capped a nine-play, 79-yard drive with a 26-yard TD run.

After holding the Copper Kings to a three-and-out, the Rayders appeared to be building momentum when Calumet's Isaac Bjorn, one of the Upper Peninsula's top players, hit Charlevoix quarterback Clayton Mitchell as Mitchell was throwing a pass. It resulted in a Chris Coy interception that he returned to Charlevoix's 10-yard line.

One play later, Steber scored to extend Calumet's lead to 21-7.

Stymied on the ground early on, the Rayders were forced to the air. Clayton Mitchell and Casey Helmstrom combined to throw for 164 yards, but the Rayders completed only 13 of 36 throws, and five of their pass attempts were batted down at the line.

Mountain... Josh Pender scored on runs of 5 and 35 yards for Iron Mountain, while Jayne finished with 109 yards on 10 carries.

The Ramblers were playing without starting quarterback/safety Nick Young, who was injured in their loss to Grayling in their regular-season finale.

"It did change the flow of our offense," Nohel said. "We had to shift some people around and we couldn't get a good rhythm. We just couldn't move the ball with any consistency. Frustrating day on the offensive side of the ball. The kids played hard, we just didn't execute very well. They played better football than we did."

"This last game, in retrospect, I think we're capable of playing better football than we did. It wasn't from a lack of effort on the kids' part."

Boys City could muster just 65 yards on the ground. Drew Nohel was the Ramblers' top rusher with 40 yards.

Evan Orban led Boys City's defense with eight tackles and two interceptions. Drew Nohel also had an interception, and Beau Furik recovered a fumble. The Ramblers were making their ninth straight playoff appearance. "The kids played hard all year, they worked hard all year, I think we improved as a football team," coach Nohel said. "I'm very happy with the kids in how they performed and how they worked toward getting better all the time. I think we learned some valuable lessons and did a lot of positive things toward the ultimate goal, which is learning things they can use down the road."

"I told them yesterday I did the best job I could for them and I think they did for me to."

Central Lake-Ellsworth MANISTEE — Nick Kolanowski's third touchdown of the game in the second overtime was the difference Friday as Manistee Catholic Central ended Central Lake-Ellsworth's season with a 28-22 double-overtime victory in a Division 8 pre-district game.

Manistee CC, 8-1, advances to the district title game against Frankfort, 8-2. The Trojans, in the playoffs for the fifth straight year, finished 6-4.

Adam Folsom rushed for 95 yards on 15 carries to lead Central Lake-Ellsworth, while quarterback Ian Beal completed 7-of-15 passes for two touchdowns.

Adoption gives hope for parents-to-be explained Davis. "Heaven Sent is a non-profit agency, it's a sort of ministry to me so it's not about how big I can get. Our adoptions range between $10,000 - $15,000 completed."

Davis also hopes to enlighten parents about open adoption.

"A lot of parents feel like open adoption is like co-parenting," said Davis. "But it's just an open line of communication by phone, e-mail, or letters with the birth parent. It's sharing life with the person who gave birth to the child."

Amanda and Jeff Bruney of Petoskey admit they were daunted by the adoption process when they first decided to expand their family. The couple adopted their 15-month old daughter Mya in July of 2008 with the help of Heaven Sent Adoption Services.

"The adoption process is much easier than I thought it would be," said Amanda. "I think a lot of people want biological children, but I wouldn't trade her for anything. Once we had her, it didn't matter she wasn't biologically ours."

The Brunneys say they are a one in a million kind of story.

After about 5 years of unsuccessfully trying to have children, the Brunneys started looking at adoption. They started working with Heaven Sent Adoption Services in April of 2008 and were approved in June.

"In July, we got a phone call saying there was a baby born and that we fit the profile," said Jeff. "We said we wanted to take the opportunity."

By 5 p.m. that afternoon, the Brunneys were informed that they were one of two couples that were being considered for the adoption.

"At 10 o'clock that night we got a phone call. They told us to pack our bags because we're going to be parents," said Amanda.

The Brunneys drove to Indiana to meet their newborn daughter and her birth mother and family.

"We really hit it off with the birth mother and the family, they seemed like close friends," explained Jeff. "She asked us some questions and after a few hours she signed the papers."

The Brunneys spent the next week in Indiana, waiting for everything to be finalized. "We're a pretty rare case, we didn't wait too long," said Jeff.

"Since we didn't know if we'd end up with a boy or a girl, we didn't have anything ready," added Amanda. "When we got a call saying we were parents, all we had was a rocking horse."

The Brunneys made the choice to stay in contact with Mya's birth mother.

"She wanted some pictures, and I'm more than happy to do that," said Amanda. "I e-mail her every couple months and we do have a relationship going."

Amanda plans to keep those e-mails and information about Mya's birth mother to give to Mya as she gets older.

"This isn't a secret that she's adopted," added Jeff. "So to have that kind of contact with her will show Mya that her birth mom did care about her, it just wasn't the right time in her life."

The Brunneys hope their story will inspire others who are considering adoption to take that first step.

"Since this has taken place, people that I haven't talked to in years want to know about the process," said Amanda. "Heaven Sent made it easy, one step at a time."

Heaven Sent Adoption Services will host their informative event on November 21st from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Charlevoix Public Library's Trustees Room. For more information about Heaven Sent Adoption Services or about National Adoption Month, contact Heaven Sent Adoption Services at www.heavensentadopt.com.

Island flight bids stirring competition

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

For the first time in history, the Beaver Island School board is reviewing bids from two local companies for air service — to and from the island.

In late October, Island Airways and Fresh Air Aviation, both of Charlevoix, submitted bids to supply three years of service to Beaver Island Community School for roughly $35,000, which is set aside by the school each year for air travel.

"The bid is for three different segments of travel," said Rachel Teague, the general manager for Fresh Air Aviation in Charlevoix. "The three segments are athletic travel, freight, and regular travel between Beaver Island and Charlevoix."

This is the first time Fresh Air Aviation has been involved in bidding for the service since

"Right now, a committee is reviewing the two bids for air service. Discussion on the bids will be taken up at the Nov. 9 school board meeting."

KATHLEEN MCNAMARA
SUPERINTENDENT OF BEAVER ISLAND COMMUNITY SCHOOL

they went into business three years ago.

For the last 65 years, Island Airways has been servicing Beaver Island Community School.

The largest segment in the bid is for athletic travel. The school district wants to be able to transport 27 people at a time to events in places such as Mackinac Island and Paradise for sporting events.

Teague expressed concern that the bid for the athletic travel segment by Island Airways was out of line with what they would charge regular customers for the same trip.

"Island Airways has greatly increased their pricing for the school sport trips which is the largest portion of the contract," said Teague. "It appears that the prices Island Airways proposed for the school sport trips greatly exceeds what they would charge a normal customer for a charter to the same location."

Angela Welke, co-owner of Island Airways, said the bid was complicated but their pricing for the athletic segment was at a discounted rate.

"We looked at all the destinations the school provided and used our computer program to price out charters," said Welke. "We took what the typical price was and used a 15-percent discount for the bid. We also said that, if we were awarded all three segments, we would offer a 25-percent discount."

Beaver Island Community School superintendent Kathleen McNamara said neither of the bids seemed out of line in terms of cost.

"Right now, a committee is reviewing the two bids for air service," said McNamara. "Discussion on the bids will be taken up at the Nov. 9 school board meeting."

McNamara was unsure whether a vote will be made at the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

In late October, Island Airways and Fresh Air Aviation, both of Charlevoix, submitted bids to supply three years of service to Beaver Island Community School for roughly $35,000, which is set aside by the school each year for air travel. What Should You Do with 401(k) after a Layoff?

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

As you're no doubt aware, the long and deep recession has resulted in the highest unemployment rate in decades. But if you've been laid off, or if you fear a layoff may soon be coming, you're less interested in statistics than in your immediate financial future. How will you get by until you land a new job?

This is a scary question, of course. And it can cause you to look at all your available financial resources—including your 401(k), which may well be the largest single financial resource you have.

But before you cash out your 401(k), make sure you understand what's involved. Your former employer is required to withhold 20% of your account balance to prepay federal taxes. Also, all your 401(k) proceeds will be taxed as ordinary income. And if you're under age 59½ when you liquidate your 401(k), you may also be subject to a 10 percent penalty. And worst of all, the money may not be available to you when you retire.

Obviously, if you have no other financial resources, you may have no choice but to tap into your 401(k) plan. However, if you can find an alternative way to tide yourself over until you're working again, you may be better off in the long run by not cashing in your plan.

If you decide against the "cash-out" option, what can you do with your 401(k)? Here are two possibilities:

- Keep the money in your former employer's plan. If your former employer permits it, you may be able to leave your money in your 401(k). You won't have to pay any immediate taxes, and your money can continue to grow tax deferred. But you may no longer be able to add funds to your account.

- Roll your money over to an IRA. If you roll over your 401(k) assets to an IRA, you'll avoid paying immediate taxes, and your money can continue to grow tax deferred. Furthermore, you can fund your IRA with many types of investments, as opposed to a 401(k), which may offer only a handful of choices. And when you can afford it, you can make additional contributions to your IRA. Also, when you retire, you may find that an IRA gives you more flexibility in making withdrawals than a 401(k).

While there are some clear benefits to keeping your 401(k) with your former employer or moving it to an IRA, neither choice helps you answer the question of how you'll make it, financially speaking, until you're working again. If you've built up a cash cushion in the preceding years, you can turn to it now, of course. And if you've created an investment portfolio outside your 401(k), take a close look at it. You can consider adjusting your investment mix to add more income-producing investments, if appropriate. Keep in mind that your portfolio should reflect your risk tolerance, long-term goals and time horizon.

A layoff is never easy—and it can force you to make some tough choices. But if you can help protect your 401(k) today, you'll be helping yourself tomorrow.

Good-bye, coach Doty

BY STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

Ken Doty, a well-known Northern Michigan high school basketball coach, former basketball official and county building official, died Tuesday after a three-year battle with cancer.

Doty, for whom the East Jordan community rallied with a home repair work bee and fundraiser earlier this year, died at the Mancelona-area home where he and his wife Lori recently moved. He was 51.

Doty, who lived most of his life in Northern Michigan, worked for many years in the building trades as a draftsman and for most of the past 15 years as the head of the Charlevoix County Building Department. He also coached basketball for many years in Boyne Falls and more recently in East Jordan where he was the head junior varsity coach through the end of last season. He also worked as a high school basketball official for many years.

Doty was first diagnosed with an advanced stage of prostate cancer in September of 2006 for which he has been undergoing treatments on and off until recently.

Bill Tison Jr., 26, was a senior at East Jordan High School in 2001 and a member of the varsity basketball team when he met Doty who was in his first season as the school's head junior varsity basketball coach.

Tison went away to college for a few years and when he came back Doty invited Tison to serve as his assistant coach. Tison has now been named Doty's successor as the head junior varsity coach.

"It's because of (Doty) that I'm where I'm at now as a basketball coach," Tison said.

Tison said it wasn't just his knowledge of the game and how to teach it that made Doty a good coach, but also the life lessons he would teach his players.

"Sometimes he would just sit the kids down in the middle of practice and have a talk with them," Tison said. "He has a story about everything. I've learned so much about basketball from him, but just as much about life. He would always tell the kids, their priorities should be family, then school then sports."

Tison said even the way Doty faced his disease was an inspiration to him and many of the players.

"I'll be getting ready for the season in the next couple weeks and I'm sure much of my coaching style will carry over directly from him," Tison added.

"Ken will be greatly missed by everyone," East Jordan varsity basketball coach Darrin Weber said Wednesday. "He touched so many people's lives with his kind words, gentle demeanor and love for the game of basketball. Not only have we lost a great basketball coach but also a dear friend."

Frank Shaler, of Boyne City, who has known Doty for more than 25 years through numerous work capacities, said, "Ken was a good and caring person. He was kind to everyone that he met and worked with. From coaching to helping the public with building projects, he always went the distance."

Shaler said Doty loved the outdoors, particularly canoeing on the Jordan River and described him as a man of strong faith who seemed at peace when he last saw him on Monday.

A funeral service for Doty was last Sunday, Nov. 8, at the East Jordan High School gymnasium.

Lake to lake trail quickly becoming a reality

A township, city, various businesses and St. Marys Cement are collaborating to open a new trail to the public.

The Lake to Lake Charlevoix Trail, so named because it stretches from Ferry Beach to the Fisherman's Island State Park side of Lake Michigan, could be open as early as Spring, 2010.

"It's been a long time working on it," said Lake to Lake Charlevoix Trail Committee co-chair Joanne Heemon. "About 10 or 12 years ago we began working with Medusa (former owner of a large portion of the trail now owned by St.

Marys Cement) to get their old railway."

The tentative path of the trail would begin at Ferry Beach, snake up to M66 near the new location of the Charlevoix County mental health building, cross M66 and run westward until it crossed Marion Center Road near the Belvedere

Golf Course before heading north to US 31 South near the Charlevoix Airport.

Opening the aforementioned stretch of trail, said St. Marys Cement environmental manager Cortney Schmidt, is the easy part.

"We're pretty confident that component of the trail up until the 'Welcome to Charlevoix' sign on US 31 South will go smooth," he said. "But, from 31 to Bells Bay Road there are quite a few businesses and the airport is making some changes, so we'll have to figure out how to get that accomplished."

Due to homeland security issues with fenced areas, the trail may not be able to cross the airport's property as some would like.

"There are some issues we're trying to work out," said Charlevoix City Planner Mike Spencer. "We are still trying to identify all

A little faith for the faithless

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

When someone dies, it is only natural to take some time and look back on their life. I weigh the good with the bad and make our own respective judgments on that person's time spent.

I didn't know Ken Doty long enough to judge his life's work. I think the first time I had a real conversation with him outside of getting comments for stories about the building department was shortly after he was diagnosed with cancer back in late 2006 or early 2007.

I was assigned to contact Ken and ask him if he would be up for a series of informational articles about his type of cancer: warning signs, treatments, emotional support and the like.

What struck me from the beginning was his candor about the entire process and his insistence that if one person could be swayed to get their regular check-ups for the disease, it would all be worth it. The hours of interviews, he said, were worth it as he recounted, with his trademark smile and happy eyes, that several guys had told him they went and got checked out because they read Ken's story.

Ken's final years may have been spent battling illness, but he was much more: father, husband, coach, good friend and eternal optimist.

He was scared to death when he was first diagnosed. Ken told me. But, every time I would see him at a county meeting or around town, he always had a smile and an upbeat spin on life — no matter how dark the prognosis.

He had the audacity to routinely ask how me and my family were doing and he even took the time to counsel me on some home improvement projects.

Having been raised in the same church that his grandparents, mother and stepfather were members, gave him a strong spiritual foundation and an unshakable faith. When he was sick from treatment, he was very sick. He talked sometimes of feeling like the radiated areas on his body had been cooked, and that he was tired all the time.

Instead of quitting his job and staying home to rest, he soldiered on. He continued working, he continued coaching and he continued offering a pleasant smile and kind words.

I once asked him why he didn't just quit everything, sell his house and spend his days in some tropical paradise. He just smiled and told me he didn't want to be anywhere else but right here near his family and friends.

They say a man's character is judged not on how he behaves when times are good, but when they are their very worst.

Ken experienced the very worst a man can go through and he did so with a smile and the heart of a giver.

I've never had much faith in religion, God or church leaders, but Ken taught me faith is not a weakness as I once believed: faith is having the courage to continue against overwhelming odds without the benefit of knowing how things will turn out.

"I know the gifts and promises we've been given as Christians," Ken said in a 2007 story on his battle with cancer. "A lot of things are out of my hands and I just have to trust the heavenly father knows what's best."

What's on your bucket list? Don't let fear paralyze your dreams

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The movie with Jack Nicholson and Morgan Freeman was not a huge hit at the box office but it was one I thought about thinking and I like that.

So many times we stop ourselves from doing something we'd really like to do out of fear, money, time or commitments. Even though these fictional characters created a list from a desire to lead a full life before terminal illness ended theirs, don't you wonder sometimes about things you really want to do and what keeps you from doing them?

Maybe it's time to look at your own situation and realize that fear of making a mistake or a myriad of commitments should not keep you from doing what you'd like to do. Consider this: what excitement there is in just the anticipation of doing something new and the amount of satisfaction that comes from completing what you did. If you are confined to home due to illness or physical disability try setting a goal to learn a new language, make one new friend, finish one book, complete a crossword puzzle, exercise with small weights or bands. Small amounts of physical and mental exercise can bring renewed happiness in your life. Younger generations can create their list with parental guidance or a good family friend to help guide them to complete tasks they've wanted to do. Discouraging someone will only develop regrets later in life. If fear is keeping you from doing something you want to do then take a friend with you on your new journey.

I've spoken to individuals who have taken up dance lessons with or without their spouse, started horseback riding lessons, purchased a first home, sold their home and decided to travel the country by motor home. Sounds scary sometimes but by pushing the forward button on life we open new doors that will present new challenges and a fulfilling life. Your making a list gives you incentive as to what is relevant to you. It can motivate you during times of stress. The list becomes goals to look forward to. If your place in life is not what you pictured yourself doing, then do something about it. Travel usually ends up on most lists but not everyone wants to see the Great Pyramids. Instead your list may include looking up a friend from the past. Maybe your list includes relationships: forgiving someone who has brought sadness into your life.

Most lists are personal; including a resolve to be a better person or developing a closer relationship with a higher spiritual being.

Other lists are easily spontaneous: trying of new foods, learning to tell one good joke or enriching someone else's life other than your own. There is a difference between living a full life and living a fulfilling one. It's oftentimes people in our life and not places that matter the most. It's nice to see a sunrise or sunset in a new locale but sharing it with someone makes it even better. If you make it a practice to keep people and things around you that only bring you joy, you will find a sense of peace. Finding balance in your life and not stressing about things you haven't accomplished by making this list is not what it's about.

Whether you choose to travel or get a tattoo, write a book or book it to Bali, laugh more or lose more weight, writing down what you want to complete in this lifetime brings focus on what brings joy in your life. So what's on your bucket list?

Ms. Amelia Conduct stands in for 'More or Less'

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
Dear Ms. Conduct,

I am writing to you in the hope that you can help resolve a dispute that I am having with my husband.

A few evenings ago, we were dining out at a fashionable restaurant. I ordered the calamari appetizer, specifically querying the waiter in regard to it's preparation. I love a good calamari, but so often one is disappointed.

The waiter assured me that it was very fresh and the batter, light and crisp. Thus satisfied, I placed my order.

When the plate was brought to our table, it was accompanied by the vague but undeniable whiff of a stagnant tide pool. Prodding the heap of tentacles with my fork, I was dismayed that the batter disengaged easily and slid off, exposing the rubbery appendages in what appeared to be a viscous mire of oil.

I prevailed upon my husband to examine the dish and his answer was not, I am sorry to say, a complete surprise.

"Geez, Nancy (not my real name), why do you always hafta find fault with everything?" he told me. "Just eat the gosh darn octopus, willya?"

I am not one to make a scene, and so I tasted the dish, diluting it's odd pungency with sips from my bird bath martini. Not long after, I decided that a little fresh air would be advisable.

As I crouched outside next to a lovely fieldstone staircase with my head tucked between my knees, a pack of feral cats raced past me up the steps.

Surprised by the sudden movement, I stood up too fast, lost my balance and descended the same staircase in a backward summersault. Fortunately, there were only 10 or 12 steps, and I rolled to a stop sooner rather than later.

My husband, seated by a window, noticed and came out to fetch me.

"Ya didn't break nothin' did ya?" He maintained that he wasn't laughing at me, but rather with me, although I most certainly was not laughing. "Cape"

Your feet went straight up in the air!"

In fact, I didn't seem to be much worse for the tumble. My husband helped to unwrap my dress from around my neck and pull the dead leaves from my hair and we returned to our meal. The remainder of the evening was comparatively uneventful.

My husband feels that had I not over-reacted to the calamari and the cats, I might have spared him this embarrassment. I feel that I have marned beneath my

Who's right? Signed, Bruised in Butte Dear Bruised,

What were you thinking by ordering seafood in Montana? This seems to me to represent a pattern of questionable methodology inherent in your decision-making process. Sorry, Toots, but I'm going to have to side with your hubby on this one. Calm down, princess! Consider your geography and order the gizzards flambe next time.

STUPAK'S CHOICE STUPEFYING

Editor:

US Representative Bart Stupak crossed a line in his actions and statements regarding the Stupak Amendment to the Healthcare Bill, placing his personal and religious views over the rights and needs of women and healthcare reform for his constituents.

The Healthcare Bill already prohibited using federal funds for abortions. Stupak's Amendment went beyond that saying any insurance purchased through the health insurance exchange would not have abortion coverage, even if it is paid for entirely with private funds. Abortion insurance would have to be purchased as separate insurance. No one wants to have an abortion, so why would you purchase insurance for something you don't want or plan?

Connie Saltonstall
Charlevoix

SEPARATION of Church and State, he should not impose those views on others. Not only has he put the health and rights of women in jeopardy, he said in his press conference following passage of the bill that "we will take the healthcare bill down" if the Stupak Amendment is not included in the final bill. He will work to defeat healthcare reform for everyone because of his personal religious views.

Stupak's position does not support the law and it does not protect healthcare for the citizens of Michigan's First Congressional District. We deserve better.

Connie Saltonstall
Charlevoix

SICK OF STUPAK

Editor:

Congressman Bart Stupak seems to be leaving his strong pro-life position as he announced he will vote for the Democrat health care bill even if it requires tax payers paid abortions and also requires hospital, doctors and nurses to take part in those operations regardless of their moral positions.

The Government Waste Watch has recently published their rating for 2008 which shows Congressman Stupak's economic voting record as a high spender only beaten by Kirkpatrick and Levin (related to our Senator) and Dingell all from Detroit and tying the remaining Democrat MI congressmen with a score of four. By way of comparison, the Republican scores ranged from 39 (Candice Miller) to 81 (Congressman Hoekstra). Ironically both the high and low scoring Republicans are considering running for Governor of MI next year.

To continue to report of Congressman Stupak's record he has also recently, according to a recent chart in Human Events; voted to expand and hate crime bill to include sexual orientation, which might threaten ministers who try to express the bible teaching to their members.

Another vote that Congressman Stupak has been reported to have joined with Conyers & Dingell is to vote against the bill that would have restricted bringing the terrorists from Guantanamo prison to the United States. John Dingell represents an area that has a high concentration of Muslims in his District, Congressman Conyers can be considered an extreme liberal, it seems like strange bedfellows for Congressman Stupak.

It is best to have informed voters making selection in the ballot box. In is the job of the local media to fill that need. Today more than ever the public is interested in what is going on in Washington and what part their electors are taking in the issues. Too often the elected officials are not interested in having their constituents aware of these troubling votes; which put this burden on the local media to serve as the voter's informant.

The above items are intended to draw attention to the national issues that should be of interest to your readers. I have no idea who will run on the Republican ticket or obviously were he/she will stand on the issues. I would be curious if this year they would select a pro-life candidate so that Congressman Stupak seems to lessen his formally strong pro-life position. The 1st Congressional District candidates, in the past, have not been strong proponents of the pro-life position and tended to relinquish that position to Stupak in the past; will that change this year?

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation is gearing up for the next Holly Daze full evening fundraising event to be held Dec. 4 at the Castle.

Monies raised at Holly Daze are used to purchase hospital equipment as well as funding community health education programs. The foundation is hoping to purchase this year for the hospital includes the Gyrus, an advanced bipolar sealing and cutting system.

The cost of the Gyrus System is $15,000.

Community outreach programs the foundation is involved in includes the Read To Me program which provides age appropriate books to physician offices, the Fit Kids program which reaches into area schools to screen fifth-graders for the presence of risk factors for cardiovascular disease, the Circle of Strength program which provides support for survivors of cancer, and Diabetes Education programs.

These programs cost over $100,000 annually.

Holly Daze is the CAH Foundation's number one fundraising event.

"We'd love to have everybody know that they are all welcome. It's a good way to kick off the holiday season."

MARGE TESKE,
HOLLY DAZE COMMITTEE CO-CHAIR

14 years ago the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild hosted an auction and Christmas craft sale in the solarium of the hospital.

The fundraiser consisted of a silent auction and Christmas craft sale.

It was taken over by the CAH Foundation and evolved to include cocktails, dinner, and a live auction.

It was moved to the Charlevoix Country Club for a number of years then four years ago it outgrew the country club and was moved to the Castle.

"It started out as an auction of just Christmas things: trees, wreaths and other crafty items," said Marge Teske, Holly Daze committee co-chair. It's a fun little thing."

Baker Metal Works of Petoskey has offered a 10 percent discount on setting the gems into rings, pendants or whatever you would like.

This year guests of Holly Daze will have the opportunity to purchase a $25 glass of Champaign with a Christmas ornament attached.

Inside each ornament will be a semi-precious gemstone.

Ruby, topaz, Mexican fire opal, peridot, amethyst, tourmaline, citrine, zircon, garnet or aquamarine gems ranging from a quarter karat to one karat are all included.

"It's a creative idea that adds a little twist this year," said Kim Diller, Holly Daze committee co-chair.

"It is an affordable option for anybody that comes." "You don't know what you're going to get but you'll get something," said Marge Teske, Holly Daze committee co-chair. It's a fun little thing."

This aerial photograph provided by the City of Charlevoix shows the proposed site of the new Lake to Lake Charlevoix Trail, much of which was formerly a railroad used to haul St. Marys Cement factory's machinery and construction materials to the current facility site near Fisherman's Island State Park. No longer used by the cement company, the trail has seen some use by snowmobilers, but has not been opened up for biking, hiking and jogging.

the challenges and obstacles and the solutions that might be able to expedite the trail and move it forward.

So far, it appears as if all the major players in the planning process are in favor of the new trail system.

"I am personally for it, and I know some other (board members) that sound like it is a really good idea," said Charlevoix Township Supervisor Dale Glass.

"They (lake to lake committee) asked us to pass a resolution in support of it."

The board voted unanimously in favor of the measure during their regular board meeting on Monday, Nov. 9.

Glass said even with the township government's support, the committee will need to clear the trail idea with local property owners who may need to yield rights-of-way in order for the trail to work. "I think it's great," he said. "Give people a safe place to run and bike and snowmobile in the winter."

The nearly five-mile trail, which is covered with a hardpacked limestone mix, is already suitable for walking, biking and snowmobiling, according to Beemon.

"We're definitely not going to approach taxpayers on anything to pay for this," Beemon said. "We hope to get some state monies on this project as it brings together things specified in the Cool Cities (study): green transportation, cooperation between city and township and private companies."

Schmidt said St. Marys is committed to improving the Charlevoix area as much as possible and will continue to work through any challenges which arise during the Lake to Lake Trail project.

"This is a good idea," he said. "The efforts to get this done are ongoing and the more people coming in will add to the momentum."

Charlevoix falls to Tawas in regionals

BY BRIAN BEAUPIED
NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix keeper Nick Branch dove to his left, but the ball had already ripped the mesh behind him.

And just like that, 43 seconds later, Charlevoix's season came to a stunning end with a 2-1 loss to Tawas Wednesday night in a Division III boys' soccer regional semifinal game at Elk Rapids.

A direct kick awarded to Tawas with under a minute remaining was the difference between overtime, and a chance to continue in the state tournament, and the end of Rayders' season.

Tawas was given the free kick from 18 yards out after an apparent injury to a Charlevoix defender. Before the whistle, Charlevoix had regained possession of the ball and was looking to move out of its defensive zone.

"We didn't like how it ended up, but this is typical at this level at this part of the season," Charlevoix coach Josh Block said. "You have close games like this, you're going to get situations like that."

"That's a hard loss."

Earlier in the second half

Tawas had tied the game on a similar kick from about 18 yards away.

"That's a real dangerous place to be," Block said. "It gets really congested (in the box) and the goalie can't see very well and they've got a guy that can hit that ball hard and low."

That guy was Cody Jordan, who scored both Tawas goals. "Cody is fast and tough to beat," Tawas coach Ken Cook said. "He put an excellent shot at the far pole and it hit the net like a rocket."

Charlevoix scored first and controlled the tempo for most of the game, but had trouble keeping shots on net and taking advantage of its opportunities.

"Other than those directional kicks we shut them down in the field," Block said. "We had a few balls, where you know, we needed to get them on the net better than we did."

Ben Myers scored Charlevoix's goal less than ten minutes in, dribbling the ball to the right past three Tawas defenders and tucking the ball to the far corner behind keeper Nick Hulea.

Tawas was kept off the board in the first half thanks in large part to Brandi, who made several diving stops, including a leaping save made by deflecting the ball from his hands off the crossbar and harmlessly out of play.

Brandi, who set a school record with 11 shutouts this season, finished with eight saves.

"Nick has been great for us all season," Block said. "He's a great keeper and a great leader on the field. That's going to be our hardest spot to fill next year."

Hulea was equally as impressive in net for Tawas, making 11 saves and keeping his team in the game.

Charlevoix's season ends at 20-2, but culminates after claiming its first ever Lake Michigan Conference and district titles.

"We had a good run, we've accomplished a lot of things that we've never accomplished before," Block said. "I'm real proud of my team, I have no regrets."

Tawas will play Newaygo, a 2-0 winner over Reed City in Wednesday's other semifinal, for the regional title 7 p.m. Friday at Elk Rapids.

City drafting junk boat rule

BY KIM JAMES
EDITOR

Citing blight, potential for lowered property values and the public health and safety, Charlevoix officials are working to rid the town of junk boats.

Now in a year-long battle with a city property owner who refuses to clean his yard of debris, the city is working on amending its blight ordinance.

"We are not trying to eliminate boats in the city, we're just trying to limit the number of them and if they are allowed, then make them put them in the back yard," said Charlevoix City Planner Mike Spencer. "We are recognizing that we are a boating community and in Northern Michigan we have toys, and resort community people like to come up and use their toys — we're just clarifying the question, 'At what point do toys become neglected and become a yard full of junk?'"

Though blight in the city has always been somewhat of an issue,

Spencer said, it has really come to a head over the court case against Paul Osterberg, the blighted property owner in question.

Despite several attempts to contact Osterberg, he could not be reached.

The city took Osterberg to court in October 2008, but lost when it was discovered that the city's nuisance ordinance did not cover boats.

"It really depends on who you ask," Spencer said of the subjective title "junk." "Neighbors feel it is an eyesore and it's hindering down property values."

Osterberg was ordered to remove the miscellaneous garbage, dismantled and inoperable vehicles, and other junk from his property off West Carpenter near the municipal airport.

Inoperable vehicles," Spencer said, "does not cover boats. We simply seek to amend the language (in the city's nuisance ordinance) to include inoperable boats."

This boat is one of several located in a yard off Carpenter Street in Charlevoix the city feels is inoperable and creating an eyesore. City officials are currently working on an amendment to their nuisance ordinance to include what they are calling "junk boats."

This is the first in a series of updates outlining the water treatment and disposal options being considered right now by CMS Land and government officials. As part of the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project, millions of gallons of groundwater, high in alkalinity and containing trace amounts of mercury and other contaminants, are collected at the shoreline in order to protect the Bay Collection of this water will go on for the foreseeable future, but what to do with it for the long term remains a crucial unanswered question. Any final solution must answer the following questions:

- Does the solution protect human health and Little Traverse Bay?
- Does the solution provide a local solution to this local problem?
- Is it supported by sound science?
- Does it significantly reduce the mercury levels of the water?
- Does it relieve local road congestion and safety issues associated with tanker truck traffic?
- Does it minimize disruption to the community, economy and tourism?
- Is the solution economically reasonable?

Make a difference with Operation Christmas Child

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

You can give the gift of love this holiday season to someone in need.

It all starts with an empty shoebox. Since 1993, Operation Christmas Child has delivered shoe boxes full of gifts to children in boxes will be delivered by hand to children who need it most, regardless of their background or beliefs.

"National collection week is November 16th through the 23rd, and anyone can get involved," said Diana DeYoung who has been working with the organization for the last nine years. "Just take an empty shoe box and fill it up. It's that easy."

Shoe boxes are divided into three age categories: 2 to 4, 5 to 9, and 10 to 14.

Those donating can choose whether to buy for a boy or girl.

"Toiletries, school supplies, candy, and toys are the best items to put in the shoe box," said DeYoung.

Shoe boxes should be standard size. In addition, a $7 donation for shipping the box is encouraged as well.

"Just take an empty shoebox and fill it up. It's that easy."

DIANA DEYOUNG,

OPERATION CHRISTMAS CHILD VOLUNTEER

While some shoe boxes do stay in the United States, most go to other countries.

There are currently about 120 countries involved in Operation Christmas Child. In the last 16 years, more than 61 million shoe boxes have been packed, shipped, and delivered across the globe.

DeYoung works with churches and communities from Cadillac all the way to Sault Ste. Marie to organize shoe box drop-offs and shoe box stuffing parties.

"Last year our Northern Michigan region packed and shipped over 25,000 boxes. We hope to exceed that goal this year," said DeYoung.

Internationally, the organization hopes to give 8.2 million shoe boxes to those in need this season. Last year, donations reached just under 8 million.

DeYoung said this is a great way for people in area communities and churches to get together for the holidays and make a difference.

"I just love to see the people get involved and they're giving of themselves," said DeYoung. "It's the giving of ourselves that we will be the most fulfilled."

Charlevoix Towing New owner, location

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A local towing company is under new management and has expanded services to help serve customers throughout the region. In July, Josh Greenman and Steve Allen purchased Charlevoix Towing and Recovery on US 31, south of Charlevoix.

"After the purchase of the business, we moved right across the street," said Greenman. "Here we have more room, a better location, a full repair shop out back, a larger office and show-room."

Greenman and Allen added 7-day a week U-haul rentals to the business and a 7-day a week repair shop.

"We do everything in the repair shop from under car maintenance to transmissions," said

Greenman. "We also sell tires and batteries."

Greenman points out that the business is the only one he knows of in the area that offers 7-day a week repair service.

"A lot of times if your car breaks down on Friday, you have to wait until Monday to take it in. But often we can get your vehicle back to you that same day, or by the next morning," said Greenman.

Charlevoix Towing and Recovery is also the only U-haul distributor in the area that is open 7 days a week.

"We have people coming all the way from Sault Ste. Marie for U-haul pickups, it's hard to keep them in our lot," said Greenman.

For now, Greenman and Allen are the only two full time employees and say they've had a busy few months. Greenman, who worked as a mechanic before purchasing the business, does all the repairs. Allen has a background in business management. Both share office and towing duties.

"Everyday is different, you're never doing the same thing each day," explained Greenman. "Right now I'm working in the office, but pretty soon I'll probably get a call and need to go out. Everyday you see something different."

Charlevoix Towing and Recovery offers 24 hour towing services. The office is open Monday - Friday, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., Sunday 11 a.m. - 3 p.m.. For more information, call 547-7338 or visit their Web site at www.charlevoix-towing.com.

Americinn turns 5

To celebrate their five years of operation in Charlevoix, the Americinn will be renting 26 rooms on Nov. 20 for $5 each. The rooms include all Americinn's regular amenities like use of their pool, sauna and hot tub plus their large Americinn Perk breakfast in the morning. With the slow economy and many people with strained budgets, Americinn officials hope this will lift the spirit of the people that have supported them for five years. Anyone that stops in that evening and registers after the 26 rooms have been given out will get a free swim pass and also be entered into a drawing for a free night's stay.

Girls clinch districts

BY BRIAN BEAUDIEP
NEWS-REVIEW

As far as Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch is concerned, this could be history in the making.

The Rayders wrapped up their first district volleyball title since 2003, beating Harbor Springs 25-13, 20-25, 25-15, 25-8 in Thursday's Class C district final hosted by East Jordan. Charlevoix, 41-18-2, will now have a chance to win its first-ever regional game on Tuesday, and all in the comfort of their own gym.

"It's kind of exciting to be on our home court and I think it's been in the back of the players' minds," Grunch said. "The Rayders have never won a regional game, so it could be history in the making."

Charlevoix jumped out to a quick one-set lead before dropping the second, which actually proved to be a blessing in disguise. Down 18-8 at one point in the set, Grunch called the team together and told them to get back to basics.

"Our offense was struggling a little bit — hitting balls into the net and into their blocks," she said. "I told them to refocus and get back to the fundamentals, and that's what they did."

The Rayders rallied to within four points, but despite eventually dropping the set they had taken momentum, and would not relinquish it.

"We did a nice job in that game of playing together," Harbor Springs coach Mary Miller said. "They were talking and communicating, but that just broke down in the last game. Charlevoix just outpowered us."

Harbor Springs' bid for its first-ever district title fell short, with the Rams ending the season at 15-14-6. Nicole Shepard (14 digs), Haley Kloss (11 kills, 10 digs) and Steffany Wenz (two aces, 13 digs) stood out for Harbor in a losing effort.

Defensively Charlevoix was strong all game. The Rayders received a team-high 39 digs from Taylor Storm and 16 from Isis Hang.

"Hannah Storm and Isis Hang really played well defensively for us — we played great defensively all night," Grunch said. "And (setter) Jenna Way did a great job of delivering the ball even though (Harbor) keyed in on her a little bit."

Way had 37 assists and 15 digs of her own, helping to set up Katie Mays who had a team-leading 17 kills. Other Charlevoix standouts included Kelly Greyerbiehl (14 digs), Bobby Molter (eight kills), Allison Hankins (12 kills) and Sarah Potter (10 digs, three blocks).

"I'm just really proud of the girls, they played their hearts out tonight," Grunch said. "It was just a really great team win."

In a Manner of Speaking

When children give evidence of having difficulty speaking, it may be an early indication that they have a hearing problem. It is important to pay heed to these problems early on so that they may be properly diagnosed and treated as soon as possible. For instance, a child may have difficulty pronouncing certain sounds or combinations of sounds. With this in mind, parents should be on the lookout for a child who can speak complete words or sentences but consistently leaves out letters or sounds from words. For instance, a child may substitute a sound or letter for one that is more difficult to say, such as substituting a "w" sound for an "r."

P.S. By age 6 to 7 months, a child should be trying to make consonant sounds, especially "b," "d," "m," and "n."

Road manager to county: Please pass the salt

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Struggling to ready itself for winter's icy grasp, the Charlevoix County Road Commission recently requested $60,000 from the county's general fund for road salt.

Citing a "significant increase" in the cost per ton of salt, Charlevoix Road Commission manager Pat Harmon was relieved when the county board voted unanimously in favor of the measure on Wednesday Nov. 11.

"We order about 6,000 ton of salt a year," Harmon said.

"The price on that salt for the 2008-2009 winter was $47.78 a ton for the early salt (purchased in autumn) and $49.15 per ton for the late salt ... that comes in later in winter to get us through."

Harmon said the price increased by 21.5 percent to $58.08 and $59.37 per ton respectively for early and late salt.

"They don't tell you why (the price increased), but my personal thought is last year when that salt was delivered, fuel prices were high, and that's probably where they got stung," he said.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Joel Evans (R-District 4) said the decision to approve the expenditure was an easy one.

"We're concerned for the safety of our Charlevoix people and it was important that we have salt on the roads when there is ice on them," he said.

"I wouldn't call it ($60,000) enough to create a hardship. We have some money for emergency things that pop up and this was the right thing to do."

Harmon said three thousand tons of the salt will reside in the road commission garage just south of Charlevoix, and the remainder will reside in the Boyne City facility.

"I think we'll be OK," he said.

"I just hope we don't get another winter like last winter."

Since the salt is so precious on Northern Michigan's wintry roads, the salt is spread by a computerized device which sprinkles a predetermined amount per mile.

"The application rate stays the same regardless of how fast or slow the truck's going," he said.

With the salt issue taken care of, Harmon's next concern is manning his plow trucks.

The road commission will be advertising to hire at least three part-time snowplow drivers.

"Right now I've got one guy for every route, and if somebody gets sick with the flu and is gone for three days, I'm short a driver and that just complicates things horribly," Harmon said.

The road commission has approximately 20 drivers at any given time, but Harmon said he would like to have four or five more.

Harmon could not put an exact figure on the savings, but said he can cover his shortfall in labor much cheaper with part-time workers.

Another cost-cutting measure Harmon has taken was to contract the snowplowing of 1.61 miles in Ironton to a private contractor.

"I'd like to have more full-time guys on, but right now we just can't afford it," Harmon said.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously on Wednesday Nov. 12 to allocate $60,000 to the Charlevoix County Road Commission to pay for the 21.5 percent increase in road salt prices for the upcoming winter season. Pictured here is the road commission's Ironton maintenance garage at 11705 Shaw Road in Charlevoix which will hold 3,000 tons of salt.

County could save $150K on copays

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Seeking to mitigate the ever-increasing cost of medical insurance, Charlevoix County Commissioners could soon raise employee co-pay fees on prescription drugs.

The idea of raising co-pay rates from $5 per prescription to $10 for generic drugs and $20 for premium brand drugs was discussed during the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' Nov. 11 regular meeting.

"Nothing is changing on the insurance coverage whatsoever," said Charlevoix County Clerk and fiscal officer Cherie Browe. "We're just talking about increasing the cost of co-pays."

It costs $511 monthly to insure one of the county's nearly 180 employees, and taxpayers spent $1.7 million in 2008 on insurance to cover current employees and those employees who retired before Dec. 31, 1992.

Employees were notified of the impending decision via e-mail on Thursday Nov. 12.

"I understand that medical premiums are increasing," said Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan who currently receives the county's health care plan.

"I would have to see their final proposal and see how that will impact the people in my office."

Blue Cross/Blue Shield increased costs to the county by nearly 10 percent this year, which means the co-pay hike would come nearly $20,000 short of covering this year's increase.

"We were lucky," Browe said. "Emmet County's (insurance costs) went up 25 percent."

While the measure remains tentative pending a likely vote during their 5 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 25, meeting, the commissioners are apparently unani-

OPINIONS yours & ours

Looking for the signs of winter

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

It seems to be the time of year when we look for signs of the future.

What will winter be like?

That is a prime question, and I have heard a dozen different predictions.

Some people put their faith in the number of berries on the mountain ash trees.

More berries means that the winter will be more severe, so the trees make more berries to feed the birds.

Others focus on the behavior of birds or the coloration of caterpillars.

Some examine the Farmer's Almanac.

Anyone can predict with confidence that winter will be colder than summer and that there will be snow.

But anyone or anything proposing to tell us just how cold it will be or exactly how much snow there will be and when it will arrive has the burden of trying to see into the future.

Beyond astronomical events like eclipses or the turning of the earth, the future remains stubbornly unknowable.

Birds and other animals do plan for the future, but they know no more about what it will be than we do. What the birds and we are mostly doing is looking at the past and saying that the future is likely to be pretty much like the past.

I begin my seasonal bird watching about now when the feeder has its first fill of bird, deer and squirrel food.

The nuthatches, titmice and chickadees spend time in the maple trees around the feeder.

They hop up and down along the small branches, picking up and eating something from the bark.

Whatever they are consuming is too small for me to see, but they pursue whatever it is with considerable attention, carefully examining each branch.

There were more aphids than usual in those trees last summer, judging from all the aphid honeydew deposited on my vehicle. Remembering that, my first conclusion on what they were eating was based on how aphids get through the winter.

Aphids lay eggs at the end of summer, often only one egg per aphid.

The eggs are large compared to the size of the aphid, and should be good bird food, if the birds can find them.

Maybe those tiny birds are finding and eating aphid eggs good for us: fewer aphids next year. And good for the birds if the eggs are unusually abundant.

A look at a few of my bird books suggested other possibilities. Many of those small birds actually store food before winter.

They hid small insects and seeds in crevices in the bark of twigs and are able to remember where they put them when winter arrives.

Maybe my local birds are just beginning to use their winter stash of extra food.

Does this suggest that the birds know about the future? They like we, know there has been cold and snow in past winters. Some of the birds even store their winter tidbits on the underside of branches where their food will not be covered with snow or ice. They remember the snow and cold of previous winters, like they remember where their food stash is located, but they haven't a clue about how much snow or when it might arrive.

If they knew the future they would store more food for a severe winter than for a mild one, and they do not.

They store as much as they can every year.

It is all right to look for signs of what sort of winter we might have, but don't expect precise predictions from any bird or animal.

That includes the author of the Farmer's Almanac and the TV weatherman.

Columnist chronicles chronic tardiness

MORE OR LESS
Christine Gwidt

I swear. You're going to be late for your own funeral."

-- My mother, circa 1964.

The first time that my chronic tardiness inconvenienced anyone it was my original birthday and I was two weeks late.

I believe that had this unfortunate habit been nipped in the bud, perhaps I would arrive at appointments today in matching shoes with all of my clothing buttoned.

But my poor mother was so nervous when I was a toddler that she let the matter slide.

I don't want to demean her parenting skills.

It would have been difficult to exercise authority over an eight pound bundle of soft bones.

And at the time, my schedule was flexible and didn't impinge upon the public at large.

But as I progressed from infancy through childhood and beyond, my ability to get it all together in a timely manner didn't develop.

Or rather, it did develop, just not quite far enough. I've whittled it down from two weeks to ten minutes and there it stands.

While the improvement is dramatic, I'll admit that it's still a problem.

I've failed to catch the beginning of countless movies, paid for missed doctor's appointments and disrupted meetings that were in full swing.

I have had to find new hair stylists, dog groomers and boyfriends.

I have starved dinner guests to the point where a boiled shoe would provoke lip-smacking anticipation.

I have met friends for a hike while wearing bedroom slippers and attended parties with my wet hair stuffed under a baseball cap.

It is the reason that I have to start a number of conversations with, "I am so, so sorry..."

Apparently, I am not alone in this time management-challenged predilection.

Many self-help books have been written on the subject. And, according to the authors, a lack of punctuality has cost the tardy jobs, relationships and promotions.

I have contributed to daily stress, loss of self-esteem and a reputation for being dizzy. True, true and true.

And yet the consequences of this affliction, though dire, have not been enough to shave that final ten minutes from my blast-off.

In her book, "Never Be Late Again: 7 Cures for the Punctually Challenged," San Francisco author Diana DeLonzor states that some are addicted to the rush.

"It's the same reason we like sports," she says. "The suspense. Are you going to make it?"

Usually not. I've repented this behavior as I drive 20 miles over the speed limit with my skirt flapping outside of the car door, and I've come to a conclusion. My problem is this: I fervently believe that no matter how little time is left to me, I can still squeeze in one more task before Zero Hour.

I just know that I'll be able to wash all of the windows before my guests arrive and I'm convinced that it will only take a moment to dash off a pedicure.

I am supremely over-confident in my ability to complete lengthy projects in mere minutes despite repeated repercussions and evidence to the contrary.

I am desperately deluded and mistakenly optimistic.

But at least I'm in good company.

Celebrated wit and founding member of the 1920s Algonquin Round Table Robert Benchley is credited with saying, "Anyone can do any amount of work provided it isn't the work he's supposed to be doing at that moment."

I couldn't agree more. And I am so, so sorry.

LETTERS to the editor

MIND YOUR MORALS

Editor,

As a commentary to Ms. Saltonstall's letter in the Nov. 11 Courier, she seems to have forgotten her Christian upbringing — and I was there with her at the time — where she learned that God's law and the natural law take precedence over man's laws.

Her tired old clichés regarding a woman's "right" to her body are selfish and sophomoric and are out of touch with reality.

The reality is that a "fetor" is a living human being, who is given by God to the parents with the intent to be born, loved, nurtured and raised to maturity.

Using "religion" as a club to marginalize an otherwise principled stand by Rep. Siu Pak, is a ruse to make the argument appear to be that of one person's religious preferences over another's.

We may all be disgusted with politics interfering with public morality, but the fact remains that we must elect and send morally principled men and women to our public offices in order to have an orderly and just society.

May the morally principled elected officials continue to speak out boldly, that they may be heard and understood, and that our society may recover its moral conscience.

LISTEN UP, LEGISLATORS

Editor:

On Nov. 21, school district budgets across the state will have to absorb another $127 per-student cut in school funding for this fiscal year if nothing is done to stop it.

This is in addition to the $165 per-student cut that we have already absorbed.

The additional $127 per-student will cost Charlevoix Public Schools another $150,000 in revenue for this school year.

As a result, unless legislative action to counter the cut occurs, we will have no choice but to find significant savings in our current year budget, and will have to cut at least one million dollars from next year's budget.

The legislature has the ability to fill the gap in the school aid budget, and they have repeatedly failed to do so. Governor Granholm and the legislature are in a chess match, and, sadly, our children are the pawns.

We need to act now, by contacting Senator Allen at senjallen@senate.michigan.gov and House Minority Leader, Representative Kevin Elsenheimer at kevinelsenheimer@house.mi.gov to express the following points:

The game of chicken that the legislature and the Governor are playing is placing our State's future in jeopardy.

Charlevoix Public Schools and other school districts like ours cannot absorb the additional cut that the Governor is proposing with the proration. The cut will further diminish our ability to provide an adequate education to the children we are pledged to serve.

The structural deficit situation we face in our schools, and in Michigan, cannot be solved by cuts alone.

We expect you to work with your colleagues to develop short term and long term solutions to the structural deficit issues that are being faced by every school district and municipality in Michigan, and in the State's budgets as well.

We refuse to accept the premise that inaction is better than developing strategies to deal with the structural deficit issues we face, and we elected you to work with your colleagues and the Governor to develop those strategies.

Each day that you and your colleagues fail to work together to develop short and long-term strategies to ensure the health of public education and other important public services in Michigan, the situation worsens. We elected you to provide leadership for our region and our State, and we expect you to provide that leadership now. Michigan needs legislators, like you, to work together across party lines to solve problems that will be insurmountable without bipartisan action. We know you are capable of doing the job and we expect you to start now.

Clinging to partisan ideology now, whether it is democratic or republican, will mean more of the same for our schools and our State, neither of which can manage the issues we face without your action.

We expect you to act now to work with your colleagues to address these issues.

You and your colleagues have known for months that the school aid budget would be difficult to develop, at best. Instead of working on the issues months ago, you waited until the midnight hour to develop a budget that was under-funded from the beginning.

The same holds true for the legislature's failure to address the structural deficit issues we continue to face, and have faced, for several years.

Not working together to address these issues positively has placed every school district and municipality in Michigan in peril. That is unacceptable.

If the additional cuts take place, three-fourths of all Michigan school districts will be deficit spending by the end of the year.

You can edit these talking points in a fashion that meets your needs, but you can't fail to respond.

You can e-mail either Senator Jason Allen or Representative Kevin Elsenheimer, send them postcards with your personal note, or use the following website to take action now: <http://capwiz.com/mash/home/>

Each time we don't write or call our legislators, they get the false impression that we either approve of these actions or worse, we don't care.

We sincerely hope that you take the time necessary to let them know that we expect more than what they are giving us. We will, and we appreciate your company in that process.

WATCH FOR DEER
Editor:

Remember, motorists, that with fall and the hunting season in full swing, deer populations will be on the move.

This activity heightens the chance of a car/deer crash occurring.

Last year more than 60,000 accidents in Michigan involved deer.

Most often, you'll see a deer near dawn or dusk.

Motorists are encouraged to look beyond the beam of their headlights for eyes of deer that may be near the path of your vehicle.

Trying to dodge a deer is not a good idea.

Deer often move erratically and swerving may cause you to lose control of your vehicle. The best way to avoid a deer/car collision is to slow your car down, flash your headlights and/or blow your horn to try and scare the animal.

Deer travel together, if you see one chances are others are coming so please proceed with caution.

Remember to heed deer crossing signs.

If you do hit a deer, make sure you report it to your local police or the sheriff's office.

Seen here is Bamburgh Castle in Northern England, the site of the Bamburgh Research Project where Boyne City resident Julie Kolehmainen had the opportunity to participate earlier this summer.

She really digs archaeology

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Julie Kolehmainen describes herself as part history buff, part geek, part adventurer.

It's those traits that led her to what she calls her second career.

"I've always been a history buff, especially European history and the fall of the Roman Empire," said Kolehmainen. "This trip was really a life-changing experience."

This past July, Kolehmainen traveled across the Atlantic to volunteer on an archaeological dig in Northern England.

Kolehmainen and her husband are both retired engineers.

After several years of working in the auto industry, they moved north and opened the Subway in Boyne City.

"Over the years, I've become fascinated with archeology, and this April attended an archeology seminar at the University of Michigan," said Kolehmainen. "At the closing dinner, I started asking about how I could get involved."

When Kolehmainen returned home, she started researching summer archaeological digs, but most were already booked up.

She eventually found an opening with the Bamburgh Research Project.

"I spent two weeks in July volunteering at Bamburgh Castle, which lies north of Hadrian's Wall. The wall was in the furthest frontier region of the Roman Empire," said Kolehmainen.

"The castle is one of the most beautiful, preserved castles in England. It overlooks the North Sea and the beaches along this stretch were awe-inspiring.

During the two weeks, Kolehmainen and about twenty other students from around the world, learned various aspects of archeology, everything from using surveying equipment to identifying artifacts and cataloging finds.

"Towards the very end, I was working with a team of about four other people and we were digging and within about 15 minutes, I came across a two- to three-inch-long military looking piece," said Kolehmainen. "It had fossilized pieces on one side. The instructor said it was probably a medallion sewn into a garment during the Anglo-Saxon era."

Kolehmainen also found a Saxon cross, beads, a horse-shoe nail, and a lot of animal bones. Another team found a hoard of Saxon coins, a knife blade, pieces of pottery and a number of other artifacts.

"Volunteers and students typically stay at a campground just outside of town, but I decided to act my age and stay at a bed and breakfast," Kolehmainen joked. "I was the oldest female there, most were college students. There was only one other non student and he was a little older than me."

Most nights, the volunteers and instructors would have a BBQ and campfire at the campsite. There, they would

Central graduates
Central Michigan University is pleased to announce the following list of Summer 2009 graduates from the Charlevoix County area as follows:

Julie Feldkamp of Boyne City, a Masters of Arts Degree; Robert George of Boyne Falls, a Bachelor of Applied Arts Degree; Ruth Howell of Boyne Falls, a Master of Science Degree; Ronald Sober II of Charlevoix, a Bachelor of Science in Education Degree; and Jill Tabacka of Charlevoix, a Master of Arts Degree.

University of Montana Law School
A team from The University of Montana School of Law traveled to Boise, Idaho, Nov. 7 and 8, to compete in the regional American Bar Association Negotiation Competition.

UM's Negotiation Competition Team included Katie Mazurek of Charlevoix. The team competed in a field of 24 teams. This year's competition focused on employment law.

The UM team simulated representing an employee in negotations with his employer about returning to work after time away on medical and family leave. Each successive round overlaid the discussions with increasingly complex issues and disputes.

UM team members Mazurek and Rossi were unable to duplicate their appearance in last year's quarterfinal round.

"With 24 teams competing, we knew it was going to be much harder to get a repeat," Mazurek said. "But it was a wonderful learning experience, especially for our new team members."

Ellsworth closed due to illness

On Monday Nov. 16, Ellsworth Schools officials notified more and more of their students getting sick, and decided to close.

"In the morning we had about 20 percent out sick, and by the end of the day we had close to 30 percent, so we made the decision to close," said Ellsworth Schools Superintendent Lynn Spearing. The school will remain closed for three days in hopes of the illness running its course.

"We will be disinfecting thoroughly," Spearing said. Ellsworth is the latest in a series of school closings in recent weeks apparently due to influenza.

Ellsworth Schools have 223 students from kindergarten through 12th grade.

Ellsworth Schools will reopen on Friday Nov. 20.

Turkey day dunk continues

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Some of them are nearly naked when they line up on the frigid shoreline of Lake Michigan each November.

And the number of those brave or crazy enough to jump in continues to grow. "It's good fun," said John McNabb, co-founder of the Eighth Annual Thanksgiving Day Swim.

"It's a great way to give thanks on Thanksgiving and this year we have eight other Elks Lodges confirmed around the state, and they'll be swimming at their individual (home city) lodges."

The tradition began with a bet between McNabb's now 17-year-old son Doug McNabb and a family friend, a local builder.

"The builder didn't show up to I swam with my son and we did it every year," he said.

"The third year, someone overheard us and said if you're going to swim in Lake Michigan why don't you do it as a charity fundraiser."

From then on the event has been just that.

"The first year we did it for cancer survivors. The second year we did it for a woman in a terrible car accident who, after 24 plus surgeries later was able to walk down to the water's edge with us last year," he said.

laugh, tell stories, and even act out scenes from Star Wars. "I'm still in contact with some of them," said Kolehmainen. "We're all a bit geeky in some way — there were a lot of punk rockers, Star Wars and Star Trek fans. I fit right in."

Kolehmainen is already planning her trip for next summer.

"I would encourage anyone who has a dream to do it. It's a little intimidating at first, but you learn quickly and you get dirty right away," said Kolehmainen. "History is my passion and I feel like I've found my second career."

For more information on the Bamburgh Research Project, visit www.bamburghresearchproject.co.uk.

McNabb said. "We have raised over $10,000, and hopefully, by taking this statewide, we will be able to raise $20,000 from the eight lodges that are sponsoring this with us."

This year's charity is the Michigan Elks Major Project which helps children with special needs get the medical treatments they need.

There is no fee or paper-work necessary to participate in the swim which begins at 11 a.m. on Thursday Nov. 26.

However, people are asked to donate a voluntary amount to help the event's selected charity.

Participants are advised to arrive between 10:30 a.m. and 11:45 to get ready for the swim, which usually takes approximately three minutes before it is all over.

Members of the Charlevoix Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks Lodge #2856 will be offering hot cocoa and coffee for donations.

"Get there early because we take the plunge at 11 a.m. and it's over fast," McNabb said. "Three strokes counts as a swim."

Those wishing to donate money or sponsor another swimmer should call McNabb at (231) 622-2660.

McNabb and his son Doug founded the event, which started with a bet, nearly eight years ago. Each year the McNabbs and a growing number of participants line up at 11 a.m. on Thanksgiving to plunge into the waters at Lake Michigan Beach. Each swimmer is sponsored and the proceeds go to a different charity every year.

Exploring Options for Protecting Our Bay

OPTION: Continue trucking water to the Grand Traverse Water Treatment Facility for treatment and disposal into Grand Traverse Bay.

Of the approximately 150,000 gallons of water collected each day as part of the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project, about 60,000 gallons of the water is carried by tanker truck from the Bay Harbor development and East Park, south on US 31, to the Grand Traverse Water Treatment Facility. Each truck carries up to 11,500 gallons of water, weighs about 75 tons and makes a 140 mile round trip to dispose of the water. Once the water reaches Traverse City, it is treated and mixed with other wastes before it is released into Grand Traverse Bay.

Using the Grand Traverse Water Treatment Facility to dispose of the collected water is an option supported by science (approved discharge permits). However, this option relies primarily on mixing to meet mercury discharge standards. Mixing is a method used by waste water treatment plants across the state and country to meet discharge requirements. Mixing means the waste water is diluted so that the overall concentration of mercury is lower, but it does little to reduce the actual amount of mercury entering the lake. Additionally, the 140 mile round trip adds to congestion and wear and tear on local roads, and increases the potential for traffic accidents. Environmental gains also are offset by the known negative environmental impacts of truck traffic. Currently about 300,000 miles a year are driven just between Petoskey and Traverse City on Northwest Michigan roads to accomplish what can be accomplished locally. In addition, this option is neither a cost-effective nor a local solution to the question of how to treat the collected water.

ber of duties at the library, including managing the facility, staffing, budgeting, publicity and customer relations.

Before coming to Charlevoix, Meyerson worked at libraries in Wixom, Michigan and Denver, Colorado.

But she didn't always envision a career as a librarian.

"I graduated from the University of Colorado Boulder with a degree in business," said Meyerson.

"I didn't know what I wanted to do."

Meyerson considered a career in teaching, but felt the classroom wasn't the right fit.

After meeting a librarian in Colorado, she started looking into a career in library science.

"I met with some people in the library science department at Wayne State University and it just clicked, I said to myself, 'This is it, I love it, it's the perfect thing for me,'" said Meyerson.

In 1988, Meyerson received her master's degree in library science.

"My job really is the perfect fit for me because I get to use a lot of my business skills here at the library," said Meyerson.

When she's not working, Meyerson enjoys spending time with her husband and two children. She's an avid skier and races on a league each winter.

Meyerson believes the award is not just a reflection of her efforts, but that of her entire staff.

"I have the best staff around, we all have the same idea of what we're trying to do," said Meyerson.

"We're all trying to be the best we can to support our customers and our community."

feet — which would nearly double the current facility size — for a total cost of $3,000,000, $2,850,000 of which could be paid for by the grant.

New runway construction in 2017, for a total cost of $1,000,000, $950,000 of which could be paid for by the grant.

Designer Mark Buday, advised by the airport steering committee, unveiled his proposed schematic which included a waterfall and fireplace, small eatery and increased restrooms, in addition to more room for storage, parking and commercial space for two air carriers.

Buday asked for, and was granted, a work session with council members slated for early next month.

"We want to make sure this has the look city council wants," he said.

Steering committee member Don Seelye opposed the expansion plan.

"The thing that bothers me is the question that has never been asked: Do we need the terminal building changed?" he said. "The building we have is too big. It's empty now."

Carlson said in addition making room for more than one air carrier at the airport, the airport could generate more revenue with the expansion.

By building longer runways, planes may take on more fuel. The more fuel they buy at Charlevoix Municipal Airport, the more money the city earns on fuel surcharges.

Since the airport has been a contentious issue with some in the past, council said they will work to educate the public ahead of making any drastic decisions.

"The general concept with the new terminal expansion is to promote commercial activity," Straebel said. "The current facility is extremely limited."

Adoption gives the gift of family

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

"Some mommies carry their babies in their tummies, other mommies carry their babies in their hearts."

Mable Carson, Charlevoix resident, mother of four — soon to be five — and seasoned adoptive parent tells her children this as often as she can.

"It's important that they know, regardless of whether I carried them in my tummy or not, that I am their mother and have loved them their whole lives," she said.

What began for Mable and Brian Carson with the adoption of their son Levi over nine years ago has grown into, "the way we build our family," Carson said. "There are so many children in this world that do not have parents," she says, "they have no one ... we have a lot of love to give, and we can provide for them."

Both capable of having biological children, Mable and Brian have been married for over seven years and have two biological children of their own, Logan and Noah.

However, when the opportunity presented itself to pursue the option of adoption, the Carsons knew they could provide a loving and caring home for any child.

The solution was obvious, adoption seemed the ideal way to grow their family.

Like many adoption cases the Carson's journey has not been without its bumps in the road.

Their second adoption experience, in which Mable and "I just simply can't imagine life without her, or any of my other children for that matter."

MABLE CARSON,
ADOPTIVE MOTHER

Brian traveled to Sierra Leone and went through the whole adoption proceedings ended in a failed adoption when the United States denied their little girl's Visa.

Persistent and determined to give a loving home to a little girl and add a daughter to their family, the Carsons persisted and brought their daughter, Paige, home from Liberia in 2006.

This month, in fact, marks Paige's three year anniversary as a member of the Carson family. "It's wonderful," Carson said. "I just simply can't imagine life without her, or any of my other children for that matter."

Eager to give their daughter a playmate, and add another girl to the family tree, the Carsons are in the process of their fourth adoption, working with an organization by the name of International Adoption Guides, out of South Carolina.

Assuming all goes according to plan, they hope to bring 5-year-old Mehret home from Ethiopia early this spring.

Despite the distance, the Carsons are able to keep in regular contact with Mehret through other parents traveling over to Africa to pick up their own adoptive children.

"Every month, parents are traveling to bring their children home," Carson said. "Through them we are able to stay in contact with her, send her little gifts and get photos of her, it really makes the distance and the time we have to wait go by so much easier."

For the Carsons, however, spring cannot get here soon enough.

It's a game of patience, Carson explained. "It's difficult, but we are confident that she is in good health and safe," she said. "We cannot wait to bring her home."

"From physical appearances," Carson said, "it's obvious that some of my children are adopted."

Confident and assertive in their decision to grow their family by means of adoption, the Carsons are eager and willing to discuss the adoption, the process, the ups, downs and even the more personal and difficult aspects of the experience with anyone.

To other families considering the option of adoption, they encourage everyone to, "think outside the box, explore your options and don't let the financial worries or other fears prevent you from pursuing something that may be so right."

Carson added, "If you really have a heart for a child, whether you are single, or married ... regardless of your socio-economic status, if you really have a heart for a child, you've got to pursue it."

A miracle for Thanksgiving

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

They were minutes from being homeless in the days leading up to Thanksgiving.

However, thanks to the overwhelming outpouring of support of benevolent benefactor Bill Schutling, 25-year-old Renea Cole and her seven children have warm beds and plenty of nourishment.

"Everything looks good for them now. I just can't believe it," said Cole's aunt Jennifer Duhart, who spent Thursday Nov. 19, frantically contacting local shelters and media outlets in search of help for the family.

On Nov. 19 Cole told Charlevoix Courier the story of how her mother died of sarcomas on June 27, 2008, leaving Cole to care for her three younger siblings on top of the four children of her own.

Cole was barely making ends meet when her seasonal job began cutting back hours due to the usual winter slowdown.

Then she was evicted for an unpaid gas bill and had to leave Pine Cove Apartments with no place to go by Friday Nov. 20.

But, life is filled with unpredictable ups and downs, and sometimes they can land right next to one another.

Hours after the article detailing the Cole family's predicament hit streets, Schutling took action.

"I cried. I couldn't understand how something like that could happen. I couldn't understand the lack of humanity, how someone could throw a family out with no place to go," he said. "I went out there (Pine Cove) and sure enough there was a van backed up to one of the apartments. The kids were crying; the mom was crying, and I started to cry again."

Schutling added, "I apologized for what was happening and said this is never going to happen again — sure as hell it's not going to happen in Charlevoix."

ing to happen in Charlevoix."

It was pure providence, Schutling said, which alerted him to the family's plight.

"I had just finished handing out about 1,000 turkeys and $100,000 in cash to the poor and was planning on flying out for Washington, D.C.," he said. "This is truly a miracle that we were put together, because I was out of here."

In addition to buying the family food and clothing, Schutling has made arrangements for the Coles to stay at the AmeriCinn in Charlevoix until he can find them a permanent home.

Schutling has also offered to help the family with college costs and bought them a vehicle.

Now, instead of Renea and her 19-year-old sister ReAnna worrying about where they and the children, ages 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 14, will live, the family can focus

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Holiday events galore await anyone on the Charlevoix East Jordan area this Thanksgiving week.

"We will be having the song booklets with an air for the advertisements done by Northwest Academy elementary students," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Erin Bernis.

"From 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. there will be ornament making at the North Pole at Color Wear, and then there is a visit with Santa Claus at 6 p.m. before he goes and lights the tree."

As usual, volunteers from the Charlevoix City light and power will use their bucket truck to hang the handmade ornaments and more. At 6 p.m. is the Christmas tree lighting and caroling, 6:15 Santa will parade down Main Street and from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., there will be photos with Santa, hand-made stockings created by the Lions Club Ladies, and at the East Jordan Civic Center from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. there will be a soup cook-off.

East Jordan events include Thanksgiving dinner at 1 p.m. on Nov. 27 in St. Joseph Church on Nichol St., community night the evening of Dec. 3 in downtown East Jordan with open houses, special sales, refreshments and more. At 6 p.m. is the Christmas tree lighting and caroling, 6:15 Santa will parade down Main Street and from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., there will be photos with Santa, hand-made stockings created by the Lions Club Ladies, and at the East Jordan Civic Center from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. there will be a soup cook-off.

"Our community night has been an annual event for the past 19 years," said East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce Director Mary Facula. "What really makes this event special are the handmade stockings the Lions Club Ladies make. They create these unique keepsakes and then fill them with goodies supplied by the Lions Club."

Another major East Jordan event is the 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Dec. 7 holiday business after hours at House on the Hill in Ellsworth.

"It will be a wonderful networking opportunity for businesses to come together and this year we will be welcoming our new owners of House on the Hill," Facula said. "Your entry fee is a canned food donation, which will be divided between the Good Samaritan Food Pantry and the East Jordan Care and Share."

Benevolent benefactor saves Thanksgiving MIRACLE

"There was a time when I didn't have any money, and I worked hard and became very successful," Schulling said. "I was out jogging along the Potomac one night, this was 30 years ago, and there were all these (homeless) people sleeping on these grates. They didn't have anything; they didn't have any place to go — that experience really changed my life."

He added, "That's why I'm on this earth: to help others. It was a pleasure for me to help in this Thanksgiving miracle."

Green tribal housing going up in Hayes

Tribal Chairman Ken Harrington turns the first shovel full of sod during a groundbreaking ceremony Friday Nov. 20, in Hayes Township.

A multi-million dollar housing project for the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians slated for spring 2010 on 80 acres in Charlevoix County is happening much sooner than anticipated.

And, that may be why so many Hayes Township residents know little to nothing about the 30, two- and three-bedroom rental units off Murray Road.

"They (the tribe) had said they wanted to come to the township and just keep us informed of what they were doing, but they haven't done that," Hayes Township Supervisor Ethel Knepp said. "And, they're not required to do that. From my understanding, the tribe does not fall under any jurisdiction in the county or township."

On Nov. 19, Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians Tribal Chairman Ken Harrington said it was not the tribe's intent to neglect keeping Hayes residents informed. "I know we're not required to," Harrington said in response to Knepp's statement. "But, we want to be friendly neighbors. I think what happened is the schedule has been pushed up, and I've only been in (as chairman) 10 weeks and I've been a little bit busy trying to produce."

Apartments in the six "affordable housing" townhouses

"The tentative schedule for completion is next summer, so families can have children in by next school year," Harrington said. "And, the road construction won't start until spring, 2010."

The project, originally slated for next year, was pushed up after the tribe received a $2 million federal grant. The total cost of the project, according to Harrington, will be between $2.5 million and $3 million.

"We're very excited about it. It's going to be very green oriented," tribal planner Bryan Gillett said. "We think it will rate high on the International Green Buildings Council's LEED certification. It basically measures how environmentally friendly your building is."

Gillett said the efficiency of everything from the building materials, energy usage and where the site is located are taken into account in order to produce the most efficient structure possible.

"We have approved on the site plan a location for renewable energy, which could mean a windmill for electricity or biomass plant," Harrington said. "Our work group is leaning toward wind power for most of our projects."

Construction is to begin on the first two of six multi-family housing units with more to follow as funding is secured.

The reason no one had to be notified, said Hayes Township Zoning Administrator Jonathan Scheel, is that the tribe is a sovereign nation, and therefore need not do so.

"We would have liked to have some joint planning, but they haven't shown any interest in working with us," Scheel said, adding that cooperation helps entities maintain consistency across zoning rules.

However, Harrington said the tribe has its own planning department, and that tribal planners had already approved the site plan.

John Speigl, who lives several doors down from the proposed development, said, "I don't think much of it. It doesn't bother me, I just worry about the value of this place (his house)."

Harrington said the housing development will be built in the middle of the 80-acre parcel, and will not be seen from Murray Road.

Knepp said the housing units will generate no property tax for the township, but according to Harrington, the Township will be eligible to apply for some of the two percent of funds generated by electronic gaming at the casino.

Harrington said the tribal police department will patrol the development, and Gillett said the tribe will make an arrangement with the township to cover any fire or EMS fees generated by the development.

"I haven't seen anything on this yet except for one phone call I got about our requirements on fire sprinklers about a month ago," said Charlevoix Township Fire Department Chief Curt Thompson. "I've been a little concerned that ... I have not been brought into the circle on this."

As far as fire safety, Harrington said the tribe has its own OSHA safety inspector, and that concerns about the roads and other potential issues have been addressed.

"We have road design standards for that stuff," Gillett said. "We have our own zoning, and our own zoning statute and we use the International Building Code 2006 edition."

How to answer the ultimate question

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

I remember the first time someone asked me the hardest question. I was an novice hospital chaplain and he was a patient with a show-stopper diagnosis, and I guess because I was a "man of the cloth" he was looking to me for an answer that would help them make sense of his life unraveling.

What that person is really asking for is an explanation of the mind of God. While I think I understand something of His nature, it's clear I can't begin to fathom how He thinks.

And how could I? God Himself tells us we're not equipped to understand how He has reasoned out the universe He created, this life in which we find ourselves immersed. My thoughts are higher than your thoughts, He explains in Isaiah 55, and My ways are higher than your ways.

Albert Einstein, reflecting on life in his later years, wrote that he desired, ultimately, "to know the mind of God. Everything else is just details."

So while Albert and I are basically clueless on why God would let a terrible thing happen to a good person, I've come to believe the first problem we have is not with God.

but rather with our assumptions about God and our expectations of Him.

When this problem is presented in philosophy classes it is called the problem of "natural evil." It is worded as a logic question: If God is good, and if God is all powerful and all knowing, then how can he permit evil things to happen?

The difficulty comes in our understanding of what "good" means. We people tend to define good and bad in the context of our own situation, so "good" is what would make us comfortable, safe, and happy in our current difficulty. Viewed through pain and fear, our perspective is short-term and selfish. We want "good" and we want it now!

We tend to define "bad" in the same short-sighted way. If something brings us discomfort in the moment, it is, by our definition, "bad."

What is so hard for us to grasp, with our self-centered focus and our limited capacity to see things God's way, is that the thing that seems so good to us in the moment might be bad for us in the bigger picture. Conversely, the tragic situation we are bemoaning today might be viewed as a blessing with the passage of time.

A real-life tragedy from a town I lived in can illustrate. There was a popular high school couple, he the football star, she the cheerleader. Life was good. She turned up pregnant, and their situation turned bad overnight. Their supportive families dealt graciously with an embarrassing situation.

The kids were to marry and raise the child, stay in school, and with the family's help this tragedy would turn to triumph.

Now all seemed good. The boy received a motorcycle as a gift that he would use to get to work.

Again, all looked good. On his first ride the motorcycle got away from him at full throttle.

He went head first into a phone pole and died at the scene. In an instant, good turned to bad.

The girl gave up the child for adoption, and while that seemed bad to the girl the young couple who had been praying to adopt an infant thought of it as good.

At any point in that story everyone affected thought of the events as either good or bad solely on the basis of how it affected them in the moment.

While we people view things through a filter of self interest and short-sightedness, try looking at that story from God's eternal perspective.

Viewed through that lens, I propose to you that each event was neither good nor bad, but rather part of a larger plan and purpose only He could know.

How do we view things God's way?

Begin by acknowledging that while our life may seem all about us it is really all about Him.

Then believe He really does cause things to work out for the best.

What a paradox that while God loves us and is keenly interested in the smallest details of our lives, in the grand theater of life we are nevertheless all mere walk-ons.

We are bit players with only a small speaking part in a production so long and so grand we can not take it all in.

Only when we take the long view do we begin to understand the mind of God.

Turkey skins: the gateway to pork rinds

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

ing path of abstinence, or at least, moderation, I set about concocting an elaborate ruse to have it all.

The aroma of roasting bird that wafted from my grandmother's kitchen on Thanksgiving triggered the craving. The side dishes, while nice, were nothing compared to the turkey.

Or, specifically, the turkey skin. The crackling, golden-brown, slow-roasted, savory skin - that delectable annual treat - was the object of my compulsion.

And I was nearly alone in my predilection. My large family was made up primarily of skin-peelers. My number one enemy of all time, and my sole opponent in the Turkey Skin War, was my cousin, Barb.

Barb was a year younger, automatically making her a year cuter than me.

A natural-born crybaby and a tattletale, she was a watchdog for inappropriate behavior.

Everything offended her. This meant that nothing escaped parental intervention.

My two older cousins designed to include me in their play, but collectively, we shunned Barb. This was because every slight, real or imagined, elicited the same response.

"Mom-meeeeeee!" she screamed, heading for the house at a clip that precluded intervention. "Gr-maaaaaaaaa! 'Chris an' Lin an' Susie are, a) laughing at me, b) running away from me, or c) looking at me."

The grownups would pet her and settle her on the porch swing with a Popsicle before calling us in for a lecture. We were admonished to include Barb in our activities.

"But she always wants to sing and dance and she makes us watch her," we complained. "She wants the biggest stick when we have a parade. She tries to be the boss of us."

This was true. It was also true that we devised ways to thwart her ambitions that bordered on the sadistic.

We let her have the biggest stick, but we steered the parade underneath a hornet's nest.

We were her unwilling audience during her song and dance recitals, but we gave her scathing reviews. We could run faster and often left her in the dust.

So it really wasn't much of a stretch to lock her in the closet.

It was, in fact, genius. Thus disposed, I would be the only skin aficionado in sight. It would be mine - all mine.

"We're playing Hide and Seek," I told her. "Susie's it." I ushered her into the upstairs bedroom closet. "Get in here and don't make any noise."

I pushed a straight backed wooden chair in front of the door and ran downstairs to the kitchen.

"Where's Barbie?" my grandmother asked when I pulled on the skirt of her housedress, begging for the fatty flap over the stuffing.

"She doesn't want any," I lied smoothly. "She's busy."

"Busy doing what?" "Playing Hide and Seek. Can I have the tail, too?"

"I have to save some for Barbie," my impartial grandma said, rolling one half of the flap and the clucking stuffing into a tube and handing it to me.

"No, Gramma, you don't." I saw my plot rendered impotent, falling to ruin. "She doesn't like it anymore this year. She told me!"

My grandmother scorched me with her foolproof gaze long enough to make me squirm.

"Go tell the kids to wash up," she said. "Dinner's on the table."

I clumped upstairs to release Barb. "Skin's ready," I told her when I pulled the chair away and opened the closet door. She hadn't even tried to escape.

Barb and I are friends now. As adults, we are more alike than I ever could have imagined, both of us prone to inappropriate spates of singing and dancing. We both still love the skin.

And a lot more has changed now that I am the queen of my own kitchen. Nutritionally enlightened, everyone now knows that the skin is loaded with artery-clogging fat and cholesterol.

When family and friends seat themselves at my Thanksgiving table, I am oddly sated before the meal even begins. Resultantly, they are treated to healthy, skinless slices of breast meat and gleaming bald drumsticks.

I do it because I love them.

Columnist thankful for the gift of family at Thanksgiving families who have adopted children and raise awareness for families to think about adopting.

A LOOK AT LIFE

On this day which started a mere 10 years ago there is support for a collaborative effort among adoption agencies, the court system and advocacy groups to move the process in a kind and caring matter.

More than 25,000 children have been adopted from foster care on National Adoption Day since its inception in 1989.

As an infant I was given up for adoption and brought to my new home on Thanksgiving Day.

Family and friends gathered as we celebrated a holiday as well as the welcoming of a new infant coming home to this young Detroit family.

I was baptized a few days later but the blessing I received was overshadowed by the many blessings I received throughout my entire life.

As a rambunctious child and teen that tested the waters continually, I was fortunate enough to have parents who loved me unconditionally and provided me with the structure, creative freedom, guidance, and consistency that shaped me into the adult I am today.

My mom became my best friend and confidant; my father, the man I respected and admired.

It was only when my mom passed away and my father became ill that I would have a new chapter in my life unfold.

My father made one request and that was to find my biological mother.

He wanted to personally thank her for giving up a daughter and providing he and his wife with the baby they so desired.

With prompting from family and friends, I was given the support I needed to take this journey.

With much trepidation I moved forward.

The adoption had been a closed one and what information I could garner from the courts were but a few facts with names and dates deleted.

Once a birth certificate was found, my breath was taken from me as I realized for the first time I actually had a different name.

It sounded foreign on my lips; I began to say my name again and again until it would become familiar.

My next step was to write and send letters to geographic areas I felt there may be someone who knew my birth mother.

On the letter I left information including my pre-adoptive name, address, phone number and e-mail. As an after thought I quickly added information that I had gleaned from a social worker's notes.

Days passed and I heard nothing but by day seven I had received an e-mail.

The subject heading said it all; "At long last I have found my daughter."

Not long after the e-mail arrived, arrangements were made for reuniting a mother who wondered what happened to her baby and a daughter who needed to thank her.

The meeting took place during the midnight hour in the lobby of the Pellston airport.

No fanfare, no bright lights and cameras; just two people who took in the amazement and joy of seeing reflections - what I might look like in my future years, and for my mother a vision of a younger version of herself.

My father was finally able to thank the woman who provided the baby that brought joy to their family and taught them patience is truly a virtue.

Thanksgiving Day is still a big celebration in our home with a large gathering of family and friends which now includes my birth mom.

This holiday is a little more special now because when I look across the table and see my 'entire family' my heart is quietly leaping with joy and ever grateful for it's this day I truly celebrate my life and all that I am thankful for.

Thanks mom for giving me life and thank you mom and dad for adding me to your loving family.

promoting our lovely lakes and natural resources.

The history of the Indian people, of the voyagers and the growth of trade and commerce, of timber and early pioneers, is born of the water highways, the fisheries and the power of water-run mills.

Our history is the history of the Great Lakes, of ship chandlers, tragedy at sea, white fish that shimmered in sheets at our docks, of lighthouses, Mackinac boats, yachts and tugs, and passenger steamers.

Our history is one of natural resource devastation, and resource protection.

In 1870, the upper channel of Round Lake was deepened and straightened, and old timers recorded that Lake Charlevoix dropped four feet, leaving mud flats and adding acres of land around the lake. Just south of Charlevoix, Fisherman's Island invites families to enjoy protected wrecks of the most beautiful sand beaches in the world.

Our historic DNR fishery was the first fishery built on the Great Lakes.

Our pre World War II Coast Guard boat house remains, a tribute to the modern Coast Guard and the bravery and dedication of the men and women who braved icy waters to rescue those shipwrecked.

In Potter's Field in the Charlevoix Cemetery, 15 unmarked graves tell the story of the 1887 Champlain disaster off Fisherman's Island.

Though personal tragedy and victory, the waters and beauty of Charlevoix have inspired residents to build new lives and dream new dreams.

Eco-tourism is a growing market. The celebration and sharing of our maritime, Great Lakes heritage and the history of Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake could be central in attracting business opportunities and in creating a better community.

GENEROUS HUNTERS

Editor:
The annual hunter's banquet was a success for Charlevoix Area Food Pantry.

We wish to thank everyone involved in the 8th Annual Hunters' Banquet.

The event was started by the local Knights of Columbus Council in 2002 to raise money for the Charlevoix Area Food Pantry at the Congregational church and 100 percent of the net profit has been turned over to them for the wonderful and blessed work that they perform for the needy families in our area.

This year, the Knights of Columbus in conjunction with the VFW Post 1153 and a bunch of wonderful local bear hunters, raised $3,118.14 for the Food Pantry.

Some of the individual caregivers involved are the bear hunters and pig cooks Greg and Jason Whitley; Pat Elliot, Roger Pittman and Bob Denise.

These guys also raised $2,055 on ticket sales for a shotgun.

Ken and Birdie Whitley, snuffing for the pig; Jason Whitley baked beans; Gary and Beth Schmidt, macaroni and cheese; Terry Amuck for the wonderful cookouts; Terry Left for the rolls, coleslaw and potatoes; Fred Parsons and Greg Whitley who were guest speakers; VFW Post 1153 for their donation of the hall; Ed Holm who was involved in everything to assure a successful event, to all who bought raffle tickets and donated items for the auction, and most of all thanks to all the people who came and enjoyed themselves for the benefit of the Food Pantry.

GIVE THANKS

Editor:
In this season of giving thanks for our many blessings, the greatest gift we enjoy is the priceless legacy of freedom left to us all by America's Founding Fathers.

One of our highest responsibilities is to keep that legacy intact for the generations who will follow us, because without a heritage, every generation starts over.

We as citizens of the United States of America must pledge ourselves to defend that legacy and heed Lincoln's warning: "We shall nobly save, or meanly lose, the last best hope of earth."

As you give thanks this year, please consider making a personal commitment to the preservation of our freedom and regardless of what your beliefs are concerning political or religious views of the on going wars, never condemn or blame the soldier for the politician's war.

We all need to pray for the safe return of all our military, from every corner of the world, that they may share with you and your loved ones the joys and blessings of the season.

FOOD PANTRY GETS FEED

Editor:
The Charlevoix Community Food Pantry would like to thank the Knights of Columbus and all of those who attended the recent Hunters' Banquet.

The food pantry received over $3000 from the proceeds of the banquet and the shotgun raffle.

That money will allow us to purchase enough emergency food for local residents for several months.

What a generous community we live in.

SEPARATE CHURCH, STATE

Editor:
Dear Mr. Congressman Bart Stupak:

I respect your personal position on abortion but I do not respect your imposing your view on everyone else.

This is a country built on separation of Church and State, not only to protect the State but also to protect all Churches, all religious points of view.

We are also a country that respects individual rights.

NO woman wants an abortion. This is a dreadfully difficult decision between a woman and her doctor.

CONGRESS should not be involved in anyone's medical choices.

Further as I understand the message of Jesus, there is the issue of free will ... we have individual responsibility for our actions, to behave ethically and morally.

We do not want the state (Rome or Washington) determining our morals on any issue.

Listen to your constituents in northern Michigan. We are all hard hit by the economy. Too many people in your district have no health care insurance. Are you walking away from them?

Polls show, over and over, that the majority of Americans want health care reform with the public option.

It is vital you vote for health care reform for all the people.

DREAM BIG

Editor:
Dream Big ... It could happen to you.

Could I ever have dreamed that one day I would enjoy the same privilege of being chauffeured about as the Queen of England and first lady are?

Five years ago, when I was 71, I decided to give up driving to the surprise, and somewhat dismay, of my family and friends.

However, to my delight, I soon discovered the great service of the Charlevoix and Petoskey bus drivers, who drove me to all of my appointments and destinations.

What a blessing.

And I am doubly blessed, not only by their cheerful attitude, but by their ready assistance to help me with my bags of groceries and even to holding an umbrella over my head when it rains.

So, dream big ... it could happen to you also.

This is the second in a series of updates outlining the water treatment and disposal options being considered right now by CMS Land and government officials. As part of the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project, millions of gallons of groundwater, high in alkalinity and containing trace amounts of mercury and other contaminants, are collected at the shoreline in order to protect the Bay. Collection of this water will go on for the foreseeable future, but what to do with it for the long term remains a crucial unanswered question. Any final solution must answer the following questions:

- Does the solution protect human health and Little Traverse Bay?
- Does it provide a local solution to this local problem?
- Is it supported by sound science?
- Does it significantly reduce the mercury levels of the water?
- Does it relieve local road congestion and safety issues associated with tanker truck traffic?
- Does it minimize disruption to the community, economy and tourism?
- Is the solution economically reasonable?

OPTION: Truck water to deep injection wells in either Antrim or Otsego Counties for disposal.

Class I wells inject hazardous and non-hazardous wastes into deep, isolated rock formations that are thousands of feet below underground sources of drinking water. There are approximately 550 Class I disposal wells in the United States. The geology of the Gulf Coast and the Great Lakes is best suited for these types of wells, and most Class I wells are found in these regions. There are currently 24 Class I disposal wells in Michigan.

Antrim County: Both the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency have approved an Antrim County well as a safe method to dispose of the non-hazardous water collected at the environmental project. In addition, testing at the Alba site confirmed what early research had already indicated: that the area's groundwater is located almost 2,000 feet safely above the water disposal zone. Despite the regulatory approvals and strong science supporting the well, legal proceedings against the well were initiated. The proceedings are currently "stayed," meaning CMS requested the process be put on hold while a consensus concerning water disposal is sought.

The proposal to install a well in Antrim County would be scientifically sound and reduce mercury going to the bay but would not be a local solution and does not address traffic, trucking and cost issues.

Otsego County: Currently, approximately 60 percent of the water collected at the Bay Harbor site is treated and then trucked to a deep injection well, similar to the one proposed for Antrim County, in Otsego County. This well has been safely operating since 1986. While this well has a track record of safe disposal, using the Otsego well as a long-term option is not a local solution, and requires the continued trucking of water over significant distances. About eight trucks make the 120 mile round trip every day to dispose of the water resulting in more than 350,000 miles on the road. When combined with the mileage to truck water to Grand Traverse County for disposal, upwards of 750,000 miles are driven every year to accomplish what can be accomplished locally.

A Thanksgiving Miracle

As you know not all stories end happily. This is a very unhappy story with an ending that will warm your heart.

For some 17 years at Thanksgiving I come back to my cottage in Charlevoix from my home in Washington DC to hand out hundreds of turkeys and financial help for our less fortunate. This year was the same. The volume of help needed this year was 20 times greater because of this recession. I had finished our Thanksgiving gift giving with the help of my friend Tim.

Kim Taylor of the Courier came up to me in Oleson's grocery store in the early evening and asked me if I had read the News-Review story written by Ben Gohs. I told her I had not. She handed me the paper; I read the story of how the young Cole family had been thrown out of their apartment with no place to stay because they could not pay their gas bill. No one was willing to help them. They had no food, no money, no transportation, no place to go and were going to live on the streets of Charlevoix in the Michigan winter weather – unbelievable and unacceptable.

It was reported that no shelter would take them in because they said she had too many children. Let me ask you a question... What is a shelter if not a place to help children?

What in the world! How do you turn people away when they are desperate?

I told Kim that this was beyond horrible; it showed a complete lack of humanity by the apartment management, DHS and the justice system. This is a sterling example of citizens paying bureaucrats to do their job and they do not do it.

I also told Kim that this was not how we treat anyone in our city of Charlevoix. The children are 1,4,5,7,8,10 & 14 years of age – Can you believe that the authorities would do this to a family and its babies? I can not!!

Thanks to the timely effort of Ben Gohs from the Courier and me bumping into Kim Taylor the children's lives have been and will be changed forever for the better.

Immediately, Tim and I drove over to their apartment and we found the 7 children and 3 young adults piling their belongings into a borrowed van with no place to go or live.

Help had finally arrived – extra cash to live on, gift certificates from K-Mart, food from Glen's grocery store, a warm dinner, a place to stay - the American for a week thanks to the help of Cindy Perkins. We got them an apartment with a kitchen, living room and a couple of bedrooms. The kids were all excited about the swimming pool. Since their car did not run, the family had no ability to get around. I bought them a Dodge Durango from our own Charlevoix Motors thanks to the help of Ralph Rosenthal. I promised the children that if they wanted to go to college, I would help.

Below please see the picture that shows this Thanksgiving Miracle after they were given a helping hand. Here is the family and the loving children and I with the Santa Claus Christmas bears I got them - ready to start their new happy life.

I apologized to them all for what had happened to them and told them it would never happen again. I also told them that we love them and will always be there for them.

So on this day of Thanksgiving, we must always remember that everyone is important and that it is our duty and responsibility to help those of us that are less fortunate. We must never turn away from others when they ask for our help.

I am very happy to tell you that this Thanksgiving spirit is well and alive in Charlevoix Michigan for many, many other folks of our little town have now, after reading to this story, come to the aid of this wonderful family.

In closing I must tell you that Tim & I cried at the plight of this family. We were literally crushed at their circumstances. The positive way that it turned out was a Thanksgiving Miracle for us all. I think it was the highlight of my life's work.

Wishing you a Happy Thanksgiving!

Area athletes, coaches earn post-season honors

Fourteen players from area schools and three coaches were honored by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association for the 2009 season.

State runner-up Petoskey had five players earn All-State honors in Division II. Charlevoix had three players and Boyne City had one honored in Division III, while three players from Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy and two from Harbor Light Christian earned All-State accolades in Division IV.

Petoskey coach Scott Batchelor (Division II), Charlevoix's Josh Block (III) and Burt Lake NMCA's Rusty Chatfield (IV) were named district coach of the year in their respective districts. Each led their respective teams to district championships.

It was the 20th — and final — district championship for Batchelor as Petoskey's boys' coach; Block led the Rayders to the first district boys' soccer title in school history; and Chatfield guided the Eagles to their first district championship since 2004.

Petoskey seniors Joe Keedy, Michael Swabash and Dan Etter were named to the All-State first-team in Division II, while junior goalkeeper Brad Lehky earned a spot on the second-team, and senior Dom Fantozzi received honorable mention.

The Northmen finished as the state runner-up, falling to Hudsonville Unity Christian, 2-0, in the title game.

Keedy, a striker, led the Northmen with 17 goals and tied for second on the team with 11 assists. Swabash, who played both midfield and defense, was second on the team with 10 goals and added five assists; and Etter, the sweeper, was the backbone of Petoskey's outstanding defense that surrendered just 14 goals in 27 games.

Lehky posted 16 shutouts and finished with a 0.56 goals-against average, while Fantozzi finished with eight goals and a team-high 12 assists.

In Division III, Charlevoix's Ben Myers was named to the All-State first-team, defender John

"They played great all season and they complemented each other very well. They deserved it."

JOHN BOYER,
PETOSKEY BOYS' TENNIS COACH

Shea was named to the third-team, and goalkeeper Nick Brandi earned honorable mention.

Myers, a junior forward, posted a team-best 27 goals as the Rayders finished 20-2, winning their first Lake Michigan Conference and district championships. He is the first player in Charlevoix history to earn first-team All-State soccer honors.

Shea, a junior, anchored a solid Rayder defense that allowed just 13 goals, while Brandi posted a school-record 11 shutouts.

Boyne City's Brendan Baic received honorable mention.

In Division IV, Burt Lake NMCA sophomore Paul Chatfield was named to the second-team, while Harbor Light Christian senior Ben Cole earned third-team honors. NMCA's Aaron Chatfield and Will Lovitt received honorable mention, as did Harbor Light's Andrew Fila.

Paul Chatfield led NMCA with 33 goals and 17 assists as the Eagles finished 21-5.

Cole closed an outstanding career with 31 goals and 15 assists, both team highs. The Swordsman finished 18-4-1. Cole closed his five-year varsity career with 107 career goals and 81 assists.

Football: VanOrman honored

Petoskey High School football coach Kerry VanOrman was named the Division 3 Region 2 coach of the year by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association.

VanOrman led the Northmen to an 8-2 finish including 4-1 (second place) in the Big North Conference, and a second straight playoff berth.

In seven years as Petoskey's coach, VanOrman has led Petoskey to a 35-32 mark, including wins in 20 of its last 24 starts.

Tennis: Northmen earn All-State

Petoskey junior Tyler Romanick and sophomore Cam Muller, who played No. 1 doubles for the Northmen this fall, received Division III All-State honorable mention by the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association.

Romanick and Muller compiled an 18-8 record last season and were regional champions.

The duo helped lead the Northmen to a qualifying berth in the Division III state finals, where Petoskey finished tied for 11th.

"They played great all season and they complemented each other very well," Petoskey boys' tennis coach John Boyer said. "They deserved it."

Holly Daze nearing; get tickets now

BY TINA SUNDELIUS
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation are urging everyone to get their reservations for this year's dazzling Holly Daze in as soon as possible.

"The bottom line is that the hospital is important to the community and this fundraiser brings in about 20 percent of our revenue for the year," said Lyn Jenks, Committee Chairman for Holly Daze.

"Our program provides for equipment and program support for the hospital."

Holly Daze will be held at the Castle on Dec. 4.

"There are a lot of really unusual and fun things in the silent auction as well as the live auction," said Jenks.

Some items to be auctioned include four tickets to a Red Wings and Colorado Avalanche game, a trip to Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, a Lab puppy, cruises, dinners, a private medieval dinner at the Castle for a party of 10, and East Jordan Ironworks new manhole cover-design The Treasure of Lake Charlevoix to list just a few.

If you haven't received an invitation and would like a tremendous evening and a chance to support the hospital you can call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation at 547-8501 and make reservations over the phone.

The evening includes cocktails, Hors d'oeuvres and silent auction at 5:30 with dinner served at 7:30 p.m. and the live auction beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are $100 per person and are tax deductible.

New DURA bldg. status

BY JENNIFER HENDERSON
NEWS REVIEW

The East Jordan City Commission opened its Nov. 3 meeting with a public hearing regarding the designation of Industrial Development District status to the former DURA building located at 117 Lake Street. Sheri Rhoads, of the Northern Michigan Economic Alliance, explained that the special status would allow the city to grant tax abatements to manufacturing businesses who use the space.

Floyd Wright, who owns the building, described the designation as, "a marketing tool to attract manufacturers," and said he had recently spoken with a businessman who was contemplating moving his trailer business to Tennessee, but would have additional incentive to stay in the area if he could operate his business in an area that might receive a tax break. The commission supported a resolution designating the area as the "117 Lake Street Industrial Development District."

The commission also heard an update from Larry Fox of C2AE, the engineering company that will be upgrading the water and sewer system in several locations in East Jordan.

The cost of the Vance, Pine and Elizabeth Streets project would be $1,005,600 and the cost of the Maple Street project would be $1,369,400.

Fox reported that through grants, the city could pay off this expense at a 2.5 percent interest loan over 40 years. Parks Director Tom Cannon requested permission to approach the Michigan Waterways Commission about a flexible rate schedule for seasonal slips at the city marina. Cannon would like to be able to adjust the rates based on the size of the boat. For example, a 38' boat would pay less than a 42' boat, even though they would both occupy a 45' slip. Cannon said he believed this flexibility would result in a greater number of slip rentals. "While reducing fees, income will probably go up because we'll be encouraging more boats. Most of us would like to see that harbor full," Cannon said. The commission approved Cannon's request.

DEC. 11 DEADLINE

Kiwanis essay contest. Second Annual Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Vandenberg Essay Contest.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is sponsoring an essay contest open to all Charlevoix area students currently in the fifth-grade. Students are to explain, in one to two pages, which non-profit group they think an award of $50 should be given and why they have selected that particular charity.

There will be multiple student essay contest winners and an award ceremony will be held in which winners and their parents will be invited.

Each student who wrote a winning essay will be presented with a $50 check and the students in turn will present their check to their favorite charity.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club hopes to encourage fifth grade students to think about all of the good things that the various charities do to help our community. The essay contest is named after former Charlevoix Kiwanis Club member Merle Vandenberg. Merle served Kiwanis as president of the local club and as a Lt. Governor.

He was a teacher and dedicated his life to helping Charlevoix area students. Essay contest application forms will be available at Charlevoix Middle School, St. Mary School, and Northwest Academy. Home school students may pick up an application at Round Lake Book Store in Charlevoix.

Essay must be submitted to their fifth-grade teacher by Dec. 11, or to Gayle Gennett.

Call Gennett at 547-5598 for more information.

Christmas Choir.

"City of Light" is the 2009 annual Christmas Cantata, created and arranged by Tom Fetteke, which will be presented by a Community Christmas Choir, at 6:00 p.m. Saturday, December 12 and Sunday, December 13 at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix located at the corner of US-31 and Meech Street in Charlevoix.

We are reminded of the mystery surrounding the revelations of a great light to come from the prophet, Isaiah, and the oppression felt in Bethlehem from the Innkeeper. Mary will share what was on her heart in that lowly stable, and a grown up Shepherd remembers all he experienced on that special night. We are also reminded the light of the world was kindled for us in a rough, straw filled manger where God became flesh and dwelt among us more than 2000 years ago, and that same great light continues yet today.

There is no admissions charge, but an opportunity for giving to the Community is available via donations to the Charlevoix Food Pantry.

DEC. 12 and 13

Going Digital

Many consumers are finding that the digital technology found in today's hearing instruments allows for a finer sound differentiation and selectivity than do conventional analog instruments. The difference rests with the fact that, while traditional analog instruments amplify all sound waves indiscriminately, digital hearing instruments convert the waves to zeros and ones that are processed by a microchip. This allows for the amplification of certain frequencies and muting of others. A digital hearing instrument can have preprogrammed sound levels (like equalizer settings on a stereo system) that fluctuate to compensate for the amount of background noise, making the instrument more sensitive in quiet rooms and less sensitive in loud environments. These instruments meet the expectations of many discerning consumers.

P.S. Digital hearing instruments can reduce background noise, cancel out feedback, and use sophisticated directional microphones that tune out competing sources of sound

or old shack?BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The fourth oldest house in Charlevoix may be filled with history, but it could soon be replaced by asphalt.

The struggle may have not made headlines until now, but the verbal tug-of-war between city officials and local conservationists lives on in the whisper of e-mails.

"I'm concerned about the building because it played an important role in the history of Charlevoix," said Charlevoix resident and business owner Rachel Wright of the former Charlevoix County Land Conservancy Building located at 108 Park Ave.

Wright, who owns the Alcove Cafe just down the street from the old building, said if the house is destroyed, so too will more than 100 years of history.

"It was built in 1870, by hand, by a shipbuilder named Campbell. He built the home for a woman whose husband had just died and he ended up marrying her," Wright said. "The house remained in their family until the city acquired it."

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority bought the house in 1995 with the expressed intent of utilizing the site's parking lot with the potential for expanding the lot across the entire site.

Holiday shopping underway

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM

Local business owners hope their cozy shops, unique gifts and friendly spirit will convince holiday shoppers to stay local this season.

"For many folks, holiday gift shopping is a chore and it shouldn't be," said Keith Carey, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority. "Downtown Charlevoix can help make your holiday shopping experience a fun, family tradition."

No matter who you're shopping for, you're bound to find something in downtown Charlevoix.

"Downtown Charlevoix offers the true 'Currier and Ives' holiday feel," said Carey. "We have it all - twinkling holiday lights, beautifully decorated store windows, a community Christmas tree and plenty of seasonal spirit."

Mary Adams, owner of Consign and Design, says the holidays are a busy time of year for her store.

"Our shop is kind of set up for shopping local," said Adams.

"We have the work of several local artists here including paintings, pottery and jewelry."

Adams also points out that they carry a large number of brand name items, many of which are discounted during the holidays.

"A huge percentage of our items are half off," said Adams.

"And we also carry a lot of holiday decorations."

Kilwin's also hopes to entice shoppers with good deals.

"Right now we're having an ice cream sale, buy one get one free that will last until the end of the year," said Kay Seelye, the shop's owner.

Seelye said holiday sales

FDIC

From posterity to parking lot?

HISTORIC?

"A public hearing was held in 1995 to determine the best use and public parking was discussed as a use for that entire site, so this is nothing new," said Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority executive director Keith Carey.

However, Carey said, the fate of the building has not been predetermined.

"The building is aesthetically and structurally in poor shape," Carey said.

"It would take a minimum investment of $40,000 to $60,000 just to address the major issues: electrical, plumbing, foundation; and then we have estimates that it could cost another $100,000 or more to take care of the rest, and for what? — is it necessary for the city to be competing with private property owners over additional office or retail space?"

He added, "It's not on the tax rolls, it's DDA owned and it's not serving a purpose right now. And, right now it could be potentially difficult to sell that parcel during this real estate market and recoup the $200,000 it cost just for the purchase price."

Wright said she is not asking the DDA or city to eat the cost, but to wait one more year and see if an individual or group is willing to assume care of the property. Carey said the DDA would be happy to give the house to anyone willing to move it at their own cost.

"The house is significant because of the role it did play in the community — it's location," Wright said.

"If you move the house you still have a house but it is no longer qualified to be on the national register of historic sites."

The Charlevoix Historical Society cannot assume responsibility for the house because they already have three properties: Depot Beach train depot, the Harsha House Museum and the navigational aid at Lake Michigan Beach known as the lighthouse.

"I'm just asking them (DDA) for a year," Wright said. "Delay the this for one year ... if we cannot find sources of money or get groups together, then go ahead and do something else with it."

Carey said the DDA simply doesn't have another year to wait.

"By piggybacking the construction of a parking area (at 108 Park Ave.) with the street work planned for Park Avenue, we think we can realize significant savings," Carey said.

Carey could not say exactly what those savings would be on the street project planned to begin in Spring, 2010, but that they could be significant.

"Right now we can get 23 cars parked as they are supposed to be parked (at 108 Park Ave.)," Carey said.

"But, we could dramatically increase the number of parking spots and still have an aesthetically pleasing buffer."

He added, "To do this, we would have to have a decision made by the end of January, 2010 — that would be the last possible time."

The tentative new lot could allow for at least 50 parking spaces.

Regardless of the savings, Wright wants to see a public hearing on the matter.

"I think it's the wrong decision," Wright said. "Them saving money doing it is irrelevant. I think we should take our time and do the right thing."

Carey said the DDA has already been down the path of lending the property to a non-profit organization which promised to care for the building.

"For 10 years the land conservancy was supposed to be maintaining and improving the house and property," Carey said. "But I think they bit off more than they could chew, and there wasn't anyone here in city hall holding the tenants accountable," Carey said.

The bulk of the funding for the project would come from the city's traffic fund which receives dollars from sources including parking fines.

Carey said he plans to meet with the joint historic study committee and local historic commission to formalize his offer to sell the house for $1 as long as the new owners move the house at their cost.

Parties interested in purchasing the house should contact the Charlevoix DDA by calling 547-3257 or e-mailing kcarey@cityofcharlevoix.org.

The building pictured above is located at 108 Park Ave. It is one of the oldest houses in Charlevoix, which is why some people would like to see the structure saved and used as a historic space. However, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority owns the building, and it will likely be demolished to make room for a larger parking lot on the property later this spring.

GENEROUS CITIZEN SETS GREAT EXAMPLE

EDITORIAL

Two Fridays ago the readers of the Petoskey News-Review and Charlevoix Courier were introduced to the Cole family headed by 25-year-old Renae.

The young mother was frantic. She had four of her own children and three young siblings in her care in the wake of her mother's death a year ago.

She had no money, no car and no place but the streets to go. She had come to Northern Michigan from Detroit to make a better life for her family.

Her teenage sister stopped going to college down state so she could help her sister care for the seven children and the family of nine had been here less than a year.

It's never easy for strangers in a strange land, but the family muddled through until they could go no further and they were on the brink of homelessness.

Then it happened: happenstance, providence, divine intervention or plain old luck—a giver with both the means and the heart to do good came along and helped seven innocent children and their caretakers avoid the uncertainty of living on the street.

That giver was Bill Schuiling, a private citizen who made the choice to comfort those in disstress. He didn't stop to ask them their race or religion or nationality. He didn't stop to ask them for an accounting of their money.

He didn't admonish them for being poor.

He didn't shame them for the number of children.

He simply opened his heart and his mind and helped those most fragile in our society: children whose only mistake was being born into poverty.

This story had a happy ending, still others are hurting.

Those who care can hope and wait and pray for another miraculous act of humanity or we can get out there and do the work ourselves.

Bill has said that giving isn't only a wealthy man's game. He said anyone with time to volunteer or $10 to spare can change a life. He's correct.

Thanks to all those who give to their local food pantry, donate blood, work on community projects, send used clothing and home supplies to the Rainbow Shoppe and anyone who takes the time to aid a person in need.

If we can work together as people, and show even a little of the humanity Mr. Schuiling has shown, we can make this holiday season, and the upcoming year a heck of a lot brighter.

Diamonds not always a girl's best friend; the boorish side of bling

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwidt

I like a shiny bauble as much as the next gal. Maybe that's an overstatement. Strike that. I reach for that piece of jewelry to pull together an ensemble and preview the result, more often than not, I will return it to the box from whence it came. For some reason, it's just never worked for me. Wrought in plastic or platinum, jewelry has enjoyed a prominent place in the world's heart and history.

From pterodactyl talons tied with animal gut to the Hope diamond, man and womankind have adorned themselves with their age's version of bling. And I do enjoy a good display on someone else. I just can't support the weight myself.

Culturally, we have been conditioned to lust for the lavish. When Julia Roberts reaches for the contents of Richard Gere's proffered velvet box in "Pretty Woman," I am disappointed that he misses snapping the lid down on her fingers and possibly popping off a press-on nail or two. Her honey burst of laughter—overtly calculated to convey her character's winsome earthy charm—spikes the aspirations of impressionable girls while simultaneously braying a death knell for the self-respect of heart-of-gold hookers everywhere.

With the advent of the urban music scene, bling has become a badge of honor.

The bedecking of every digit and appendage that will support swag is now de rigueur. For the trendsetters and their crew, opulence is no longer optional. Glittering gems imbedded in chunky gold pendants, rings and teeth confirm the solid financial status of the host, often from a great distance.

I am further mystified by the popularity of necklaces that proclaim the wearer's name. Most recently revived by the Carrie Bradshaw character in "Sex and the City," the look seems like something that would appeal more to schoolchildren than to fashion-forward career

Women who have ever had a job requiring a name tag would probably agree that the disadvantages of strangers having easy access to one's name far outweigh the benefits. Displayed in elegant, 24-karat script or scrawled in felt pen, the effect is the same. Unless, one falls victim to amnesia, what's the point?

I concede that I have an unusually low threshold for bling. When I do drape myself in something, or other, I feel fettered. I don't wear rings. I know this sounds crazy, but my fingers are claustrophobic. The same goes for choker necklaces, earrings, bangle bracelets and wristwatches.

If pushed to the wall by a special occasion, I can work with pins, brooches and the occasional pendant. At times, the delusion that I have evolved beyond garish all the way to chic will prompt a hopeless purchase. But too often I've been lulled into selections that seemed like a good idea at the time, only to fall short when pressed into service.

While many may compliment their appearance with glittering accoutrements, it doesn't take much to transform me into a sparkling eyecore. I don't wear jewelry so much as I wear me. I somehow always feel that it may jump ship, mid-scene, to someone with a more highly developed fashion sense.

In fact, this has happened more than once. If someone admires an item that is awkwardly straddling my throat or limb, I will most likely take it off and hand it over as a gift. My sense of relief and freedom is at least equal to the surprise of the recipient. (Although, interestingly enough, none of them have whined like show ponies). And any subsequent remorse that may arise due to the inappropriate dispensing of pricey trinkets to someone with whom I have only a vague acquaintance is fleeting.

So if you have a hankering to add to your collection, come and sit by me. You may preface our conversation with unrelated subjects such as travel, dogs or music to put me into a generous frame of mind.

When you notice that I am tugging at the chain around my neck and gasping slightly for air, make your move. Something as simple as "What a lovely necklace," will suffice. It will only take a moment for me to unclasp the thing and drop it into your hand before I head for the buffet, free at last.

War and peace and the words that drive us to them

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

In 1878, the "sun never set on the British Empire," and "Britannia ruled the waves." Russia was threatening to seize Istanbul (Constantinople at the time) and control of the entrance to the Black Sea. War seemed imminent, but a large contingent of the British fleet frightened off the Russians.

A tiny bit of unimportant history, except that it provided the English language with an important word.

An English music hall ditty of that time (like a Jay Leno monologue today) had these words: "We don't want to fight, yet by jingo if we do, we've got the ships, we've got the men and the money, too."

From that song and the political climate of the time, we get the word "jingoism," a synonym for bellicose, chauvinistic or excessive patriotism. It is difficult not to be struck with some of the similarities to our own time when the sun never sets on the many parts of the American military around the world, and we certainly rule the waves.

The jingosts wanted to go to war then and they still do.

Chauvinism as part of the language also comes from considerations of excessive patriotism.

Chauvin was a character in a French play from the 1830s who exhibited blind patriotism in support of Napoleon.

As is usually the case, the Greeks had a word for human characteristics like chauvinism or jingoism. The Greek word is "hubris" and usually translates as overweening pride or self-confidence.

To the Greeks, such a characteristic ordinarily resulted in tragedy. They contrasted "hubris" with "sophrosyne" which means prudent, self-controlled or reasonable.

Sophrosyne has not made its way very far into the English language, but it is available and potentially useful.

Dating back to the Vietnam War, we have had our own words for those who demonstrate jingoistic tendencies. At that time, people in power were either "hawks" or "doves."

Hawks were supportive of that war and the doves preferred peace. There was, as now, very little middle ground. The language used then is important. Who would want to be a dove? Doves are, after all, just hawk food. And hawks are like smaller eagles.

I believe we should reach back into history for words to characterize those who currently believe we must "win" a war or be labeled wimps or even doves, and promote war as the first choice in international policy making.

We could hope that those in power would be more prudent than chauvinistic, more reasonable than hubristic and more carefully patiotic than reflectively jingoistic.

For now, let us not call those who seek war and promote winning at any cost something as noble as hawks. Let's call them what they truly are.

Let's from now on refer to them "hubristic, chauvinistic, jingosts." That is a label that it seems to me would not be desired or sought by anyone.

Maybe with language we could discourage that pattern of thinking. Could we come to prefer leaders who demonstrated sophrosynistic behavior?

We can only hope.

LETTERS to the editor

GRATEFUL FOR GRUB

The Community Food Pantry would like to thank the staff at Shabby Girls Salon for sponsoring the "Cram the Cooper" food drive Nov. 20 and 21.

Over 1,300 pounds of food was donated and close to $200 in cash.

This food will go a long way toward feeding those in our local area who find themselves in need this winter.

We appreciate Glenda, Wendy and Brian for giving up their week-end and we are grateful to all of the shoppers who gave so generously. Sue Dixon, president Community Food Pantry

COOPER CRAMMED WITH GENEROSITY

Shabby Girls Thanks the community for making "Cram the Cooper" a success.

The first-ever "Cram the Cooper," sponsored by Shabby Girls Salon & Day Spa was a success thanks to the generosity of the Charlevoix community people.

The weather even cooperated providing two dry and sunny days for the event held at Oleson's Grocery store in downtown Charlevoix.

People from all walks of life and every age group participated in donating non-perishable food items and cash to help provide for families in need through the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

The result was a "crammed Mini-Cooper" with 1,300 pounds of donated items which flowed out the top of the moon-roof.

Also, $182 in cash was donated to help purchase items needed by the food pantry. Many other items were also donated to make this event a success.

Shabby Girls would like to thank the following for their contributions: Bob Borths and the staff at Oleson's Grocery store for the space and support; Paul Cascani for the donated color posters; the many businesses around town for placing the posters; the Charlevoix Courier for helping to get the word out; Diane Shull for donating the bouquet of balloons; Tom and Pam for donating a pizza after loading the truck with all the food; and Ken and Karen Stolpmann for boxing the food, weighing the food, and loading the truck.

Glenda Wilhelm Charlevoix

PAUSE FOR POSTERITY

In 2007, Charlevoix adopted the "Downtown Blueprint," a plan that reflected the preferences and visions of hundreds of its citizens, and was the result of months of public meetings and analysis.

The consultants who wrote the plan for us summarized our wishes for the downtown in this way: "A historic, waterfront Downtown that is full, vibrant, friendly, and refreshing; a walker-friendly and bike-friendly Downtown with tons of great shops and the most beautiful water views; a family-oriented, year-round Downtown that is a place people want to go to and spend hours and hours; a destination that has retained its quaintness, uniqueness, and historic character."

The people of Charlevoix own an historic building at 108 Park Ave.

Built in 1870, it is the fourth oldest structure in the city. The houses on either side are the second and third oldest.

Preservationists believe the structure to be sound, but the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, without soliciting public comment and without obtaining a formal assessment by a preservation architect, has decided to raze it and build a parking lot.

I have heard that bids for the demolition have already been solicited. Our city officials claim that "the DDA owns the building," and can therefore do whatever it wants.

That apparently includes ignoring its own plan, the wishes of citizens, and several studies that have recommended no more parking lots on the side streets.

There is money languishing in the parking fund, and "some people," according to our city planner, are asking why it hasn't yet been spent.

I propose that we delay for one year, and take the time as a community to consider options that may be of greater value to the citizens of Charlevoix than another downtown parking lot.

Raechel Wright Charlevoix

SUMMIT SUCCESSFUL

I want to thank all of the community members that helped to make the Northern Michigan Summit Against Abuse and Assault a success.

Specifically the Charlevoix Ministerial Association for their help and support and the pastors that attended the events.

Basyle Tchividian, the grandson of Billy Graham, said that he had never seen five different pastors from different denominations praying together united on this issue as happened at the end of the Healing and Worship Service.

I want to thank Pastor Chip Sauer for hosting the event at the Community Reformed Church, and the Family Of Faith Church for the volunteers they supplied and the endorsement and support of the event by Pastor Arp.

Thanks also go to the United Methodist Women who volunteered and cooked and served food, they did an excellent job.

Gratitude also goes out to the merchants of Charlevoix who donated flowers and gifts for the speakers.

Thanks also goes out to the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church for their musical participation in the event, to the Ragmuffins for their excellent opening of the event with their dance, and the praise and worship band for the music provided.

Forgive me if I failed to mention you as supporters, as there were so many who helped.

May the Lord Bless You All

Ragamuffins show 'Girl Power'

BY TINA SUNDELIUS
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Ragamuffin Children's Theater presented a girls-only empowerment musical last Tues. at the Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix schools first-through eighth-grade girls visited the high school on Nov. 24.

Ragamuffin founder and director Kathleen Whittaker greeted the girls by exclaiming, "This is the beginning of a movement that is going to sweep across the country and eventually across the world."

The full costume musical was filled with a message to inspire the girls to live a great life and realize the beauty within themselves.

Whittaker began by relating to her childhood feelings and acknowledging that she knew that "There was something more about her than other people didn't know about yet."

"If you don't quite know it yet, you're special," Whittaker added.

The show featured the Ragamuffins singing and dancing the message of what it takes to make your dreams come true.

"You have to say no to some things so you can say yes to things that really count, like family," said Whittaker.

Longing for popularity and lack of confidence was addressed by the Ragamuffins and the message that every girl is created unique just the way she is, was presented through song and dance.

The topic of choosing a Prince or an Ogre was covered as well as the need for a girl to be herself.

"You have to be yourself because you are you, there could never be a more beautiful you," said Whittaker.

In between exciting musical, dance numbers Whittaker was joined by Christine Sell and Charney Closson on stage to discuss the issues presented by the performers repeating the message that each girl has something inside herself that this world needs.

"Stand to your feet, declare my life matters, I count, I'm going to live beautiful," said Whittaker.

Homegrown singer and one-time Ragamuffin Jetty Rae sang prelude and concluded with "The Climax" and was joined by over half the girls in the audience on stage.

"It was so deep, it made me feel like I belonged somewhere. It made me feel like I am beautiful," said Leah Talarca, Charlevoix eighth grader.

Whittaker wrote and choreographed the production.

"I've worked with girls for 25 years. I've seen how they're bombarded everyday with messages that seem to crush and defeat them," said Whittaker.

"I hope they find something they could take personally into their lives." Whittaker began the Ragamuffin Children's Theater as a ministry in Sept. of 2001.

"I had a vision to raise up a generation of world changer girls that would live their lives bigger," said Whittaker. "For a cause bigger than themselves."

More information on the Ragamuffin Children's Theater can be found at Ragamuffintheater.com.

Jetty Rae and Lisa Ritchie join the Ragamuffins at a presentation of So You Want To Be A Princess at Charlevoix High School last Tuesday Nov. 24.

Western Michigan University students officially graduate at the end of the University's four academic terms. These terms and the month they usually end in are: fall semester, December; spring semester, April; summer I session, June; and summer II session, August. The University conducts formal commencement ceremonies for all but summer II session graduates (August).

Lindsay J. Withrow graduated with a bachelor's of business administration/sales and business marketing earlier this June.

WMU's next formal commencement, the 2009 fall-semester exercises, will take place Saturday, Dec. 19. Go to www.wmich.edu/commencement for information about the ceremonies planned. The official list of fall graduates is expected to be released in February.

"Cram" a success

The first annual "Cram the Cooper," sponsored by Shabby Girls Salon & Day Spa was a success thanks to the generosity of the Charlevoix community people. The result was a "crammed Mini-Cooper" with 1,300 pounds of donated items which flowed out the top of the moon-roof. Also, $182 in cash was donated to help purchase items needed by the food pantry. Many other items were also donated to make this event a success.

don't really pick up until mid-December, but they offer a number of items for those on your gift list.

"We go through a lot of stocking stuffers this time of year," said Seelye.

"We sell lots of trays with chocolate dipped items such as pretzel rods and rice crispy treats. The trays are great for a party or office gift."

Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike, believes there is no reason to shop out of town this season.

"People will still go to the big box stores, but if people do decide to stick around Charlevoix, they'll find great deals on everything they're looking for," said Morris.

Morris says his sales usually pick up in December, and then again after the first of the year.

Revolution Bike carries everything from bikes and fitness equipment to snowshoes, snowboards and clothing.

"Almost everything in the store is at least 20 percent off this time of year," said Morris.

And with a struggling economy, shopping locally is more important than ever this holiday season.

"By patronizing neighborhood shops and eateries this season, residents can expect to experience personal service, enjoy unique gift ideas, and most importantly, help their community by supporting local job providers," said Carey.

"Downtown offers convenient parking, great holiday sales, and the shopping experience you simply cannot find at a mall or in front of your computer."

To help shoppers get into the holiday spirit, Downtown Charlevoix's 3rd Annual Flurry Fest and Merchants Open House will take place on Saturday, December 5th.

Rare book donated

BY DAVE MILES
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

The Charlevoix Historical Society recently received the donation of a rare and extremely relevant book rescued from the toss-out bin of the University of Iowa library in Iowa City. Timothy Barrett, Research Scientist and Adjunct Professor at the University's Center for the Book, spotted the volume that was once in the possession of the Iowa State Library in Des Moines and marked "Withdrawn."

It is a translation of the letters that Jesuit Father Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix wrote to his friend the Duchess of Lesdiguières in France describing his "Travels In North America," 1720-1722. The book was published in London in 1763, two years after Father Charlevoix's death. Prof. Barrett wondered if it might have some value.

He consulted with his sister, Barbara Lucas, who has visited Charlevoix, to discuss what the next step might be. Together they determined that if the book belonged anywhere, it was the one place in the United States that received the name of the intrepid explorer, journalist, and important historian who gave Charlevoix County, later the town, his name.

They had it appraised, and found the book destined to be thrown out is worth $3,500. It now resides at the Historical Society's Harsha House Museum. The relevance of the work is contained in the following

Music, hot chocolate, reindeer and shopping top Flurry Fest

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now in its third year partnering with the merchant open house in downtown Charlevoix, the annual Flurry Fest has become a Charlevoix mainstay.

Festival spokesman and chief organizer Keith Carey said this year's festival is slightly shorter and in a new location, but the holiday atmosphere will be as vigorous as ever on Saturday Dec. 5 in East Park.

"We're taking it to 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. and we are moving it to East Park and not going to close Bridge Street this year," Carey said. "We had talked about doing that in the past, but really wanted to give East Park a full year of use before we did that."

While Flurry Fest kicks off at 3 p.m., it is merely a portion of the day's lineup of events.

At noon, Santa will get a ride to the Christmas tree at the northwest corner of East Park by the Charlevoix City Fire Department.

Youngsters will have the chance to tell the big man what they want for Christmas. Bring a camera and get a picture of the moment.

Charlevoix Cinema III owner Bill Supernaw is donating a kids' movie with cost of admission a can of food to be given to the local food pantry.

The movie begins at 1 p.m. and allows parents time to do some shopping downtown while the little ones are entertained.

Then, at 3 p.m., Flurry Fest kicks off with the Petoskey Steel Drum Band.

Crazy Richard the Madd Juggler, a complimentary hot chocolate bar where people will be able to vote on their favorite of a half-dozen locally made hot chocolates.

Santa's reindeer will also attend Flurry Fest. They will be around from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. in East Park.

In addition to the festivities in East Park, local merchants will be offering special holiday sales, entertainment and treats throughout the various storefronts in Charlevoix.

"Hopefully this event provides ample opportunity for families to get together and also do some shopping," Carey said. "We've tried to create a community event to appeal to local residents, but also folks who may be in town to enjoy an early holiday vacation."

This is the third in a series of updates

outlining the water treatment and disposal options being considered right now by CMS Land and government officials. As part of the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project, millions of gallons of groundwater, high in alkalinity and containing trace amounts of mercury and other contaminants, are collected at the shoreline in order to protect the Bay. Collection of this water will go on for the foreseeable future, but what to do with it for the long term remains a crucial unanswered question. Any final solution must answer the following questions.

- Does the solution protect human health and Little Traverse Bay?
- Does it provide a local solution to this local problem?
- Is it supported by sound science?
- Does it significantly reduce the mercury levels of the water?
- Does it relieve local road congestion and safety issues associated with tanker truck traffic?
- Does it minimize disruption to the community, economy and tourism?
- Is the solution economically reasonable?

Exploring Options for Protecting Our Bay

OPTION: Dispose of the collected water in a deep injection well in Emmet County.

Class I wells inject hazardous and non-hazardous wastes into deep, isolated rock formations that are thousands of feet below underground sources of drinking water. There are approximately 550 Class I wells in the United States. The geology of the Gulf Coast and the Great Lakes area is best suited for these types of wells, and most Class I wells are found in these regions. There are currently 24 Class I disposal wells in Michigan.

Two years ago, CMS Land began the process of identifying a suitable location for a disposal well and examined the available geological information around Emmet County. The company's analysis of the data indicated that there is a low likelihood that a well drilled in this area would be able to meet the project's water disposal needs. Instead, based on the abundant scientific data and the proven track record of disposal wells operating in Antrim County, a permit application was submitted to develop a disposal well there.

In contrast to the previously discussed well locations in Antrim and Otsego counties, there is very limited well data available in Emmet County. While the initial research into an Emmet County disposal well wasn't promising, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality asked that CMS reexamine the area and submit an application for a local well as part of a thorough exploration of all local options. CMS is honoring that request and recently submitted permit applications to the MDEQ and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. If the regulatory agencies approve the application, CMS would then be required to test drill the well to verify the geology before receiving an operating permit.

An Emmet County well, near the project site, would be a local solution and ease trucking and congestion concerns. When appropriately sited and constructed, disposal wells have a proven track record of safe disposal. However, as shown in the map above, there are no disposal wells located in Emmet County. This lack of local scientific data opens questions about the suitability of and likely legal challenges regarding the construction a disposal well in Emmet County.

Next: Send the collected water to the City of Petoskey water treatment plant for disposal.

FEELING THEIR PAIN

Editor:
My heart melted when I read the first article in the paper in regards to the Cole Family. (Petoskey News-Review, Friday Nov. 20)

But when the second article came out yesterday (Petoskey News-Review, Tuesday Nov. 24), I could do nothing but cry over the huge response this family received.

It's nice to know that there are people out there that really do care and want to help.

My husband had the opportunity to work for Bill Schuiling when there was some construction going on at his home in Charlevoix.

At that time my husband worked for J. Arnold Painting. He always told me that Bill was an amazing man.

We always hear of ways this man has helped the community without expecting anything in return.

I know how this family feels.

But the difference between this family and mine, is that we have a place to go and we have made the decision to leave our rented home to avoid eviction. As mom's, we tend to do everything in our power to make sure our kids are safe and healthy but when the resources fail because of the size of your family, things tend to look a little gloomy.

The wonderful state that Michigan is in is just getting worse and worse.

I am a mother of 8 wonderful kids, 4 of which were diagnosed with Cystic Fibrosis. My husband works for the post office part-time and I am working part-time with a convenience store in East Jordan and I am also a volunteer with the EJ Ambulance Dept. When my hours were cut from 40 to 16, we panicked.

So as far as feeling her pain, I'm there.

Please forward a huge thank you to Bill and a massive hug to Mrs. Cole. This has truly been a miracle.

Thank you
Tina Holm

Pine River Inc. on 'Extreme Makeover'

years could we have been able to showcase our product to that many people in that short of a time period."

Combined, over 20 million estimated viewers saw the e-log on its first two appearances on Extreme Makeover: Home Edition.

"It's difficult to get that type of publicity any other way," Way explained.

Energy efficiency and ease of maintenance are both goals of the Extreme Makeover: Home Edition design process. Thus, it was no surprise when Pine River Inc. was contacted yet again to participate in an extreme home makeover for the third time in less than nine months just this past summer. The response was a resounding yes.

This time the show's designers wanted to make use of Pine River's newer product, e-timber. Similar in concept and design to e-logs, e-timber is both energy efficient and easy to install, making Pine River Inc. yet again a perfect match for Extreme Makeover: Home Edition.

"Again, we got to be a part of something huge," Way explained, "and for our third experience I got asked to stay and be a part of the reveal."

"This time I really got the opportunity to get involved in more than just the building process," Way said. "I was scheduled to leave upon completion of the project and the producers and design crew asked me to stay and be a part of the reveal."

As far as Extreme Makeover goes, the reveal is the big part. The deserving family, after a week away gets to come home and discover their new home for the first time. Tears flow freely and emotions run high as the designers, builders, volunteers and community members come together to welcome the family into their new home.

"To be a part of something that powerful is an amazing thing," Way explained. "It's completely and totally over the top - the final results are, as the show name implicates, nothing short of extreme."

According to Way, Pine River Inc. and the e-log will make their third show appearance on air sometime in late January or early February. For more information on Extreme Makeover Home Edition and the e-log products, visit www.e-logssiding.com or contact Pine River Inc. at (231) 758-3400.

Smart Financial Moves Can Help Brighten Holiday Season

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

If you're like many people, you're watching your dollars extra carefully this year as you do your holiday shopping. And that's a good thing, because even in the best of times, it's never wise to go overboard on gifts. But by making the right moves during this holiday season, you can also help ensure that you stay on track toward your long-term financial goals.

Specifically, what steps should you be taking during these weeks? Here are a few suggestions:

- Avoid racking up big debts. In a time of economic uncertainty, the last thing you want is to take on a new debt load. Everyone in your life who is important enough to receive a gift from you will understand if you don't splurge on presents you can't afford. And winter can be pretty gloomy when you're trying to pay off big credit card bills from the past holiday season.

- Establish a gift fund. For next year's gift-giving season, you may want to open a special "gift fund." Of course, it's not easy for any of us to find "extra" money after we're done paying our bills, so the best way to set up your gift fund may be to have the money moved automatically each month from your checking or savings account to another liquid account — one that you wouldn't normally touch for your day-to-day expenses. Even if you can only afford to put in a small amount each month, you might be surprised at how much you'll accumulate in a year.

- Don't touch long-term investments to pay for gifts. Some people tap into their long-term investments to pay for holiday gifts, telling themselves they'll re-fund the investment when they "get caught up" — but that rarely happens. In fact, once you cash out part of an investment to pay for a gift or an everyday expense, you'll set yourself back in your pursuit of your financial objectives — so do whatever you can to help preserve those investments. Apart from setting up a gift fund, you'll also want to make sure you have a reasonable amount of "cash" and cash equivalents in your investment portfolio.

- Protect yourself from identity theft. Victims of identity theft can testify that it's an enormous — and possibly expensive — hassle. Unfortunately, identity theft seems to go up during the holiday season, so take steps to protect yourself. When you go out shopping, just take one debit or credit card with you — and look around whenever you use it. Identity thieves have been known to copy down credit card numbers and even photograph credit cards with cell phones. Also, if you're shopping online, make sure you're on a secure web site. One way to check for a secure site is to look for "https" in the Web address, along with the icon of the locked padlock on your browser's status bar.

- Shop early for bargains. As you probably know, the best bargains come during stores' "after-holiday" sales. By taking advantage of these sales, you can stock up on gifts for the next holiday season.

By following these suggestions, you may be able to remove a lot of the financial stress that often accompanies the holidays — and that, by itself, can help you enjoy the season even more.

We are reminded of the mystery surrounding the revelations of a great light to come from the prophet, Isaiah, and the oppression felt in Bethlehem from the Innkeeper Mary will share what was on her heart in that lowly stable, and a grown up Shepherd remembers all he experienced on that special night. We are also reminded the light of the world was kindled for us in a rough, straw filled manger where God became flesh and dwelt among us more than 2000 years ago, and that same great light continues yet today.

There is no admissions charge, but an opportunity for giving to the Community is available via donations to the Charlevoix Food Pantry.

ing passage which Father Charlevoix wrote on July 31, 1721: "I departed from Michillimackinac the Day before Yesterday at Noon, and I am detained here in a little island that has no Name..." The only coastal island between the Straits and Grand Traverse Bay is Fisherman's Island a few miles south of Charlevoix. He described having followed the coast by canoe and "... entering the Bay (Little Traverse), and was surprised at it. It is certain that this Bay, having no other Outlet, discharges itself into Lake Michigan... I went at first five Leagues to the West, to get into Lake Michigan, I then turned to the South, and this is the only Route we have to take for a hundred Leagues to the River St. Joseph... Yesterday I went three leagues further, and a high wind obliged me to stop at this island." He would have "turned to the south" at North Point/Mt. McSaub.

Father Charlevoix wrote his next letter on Aug. 16 "The first of August, after having sailed across a Bay that is thirty Leagues deep (Grand Traverse), I left on the Right the Isles of Castor (Beaver Islands), which appeared to be very well wooded; and some Leagues further, on the Left, I perceived on an Eminence of Sand a Kind of Bush, which, when we are over against it has the shape of an Animal lying down. The French call it L'ours qui dort (the sleeping Bear), and the (Native Americans) the Bear lying down."

Father Charlevoix does not mention making landfall in what would become Pine River/Charlevoix before traveling "three leagues further" to the island, but he does later describe the "condition," as he called it, of rivers leading from the eastern Lake Michigan shore into inland lakes, a phenomenon he encountered repeatedly down the coast. The Lake Michigan-Round Lake-Lake Charlevoix chain may have been the first one he saw.

EMS/fire deal offered

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Following months of calculations and deliberation over fees the City of Charlevoix charges local townships for fire and emergency medical services (EMS) services, officials have a solid proposal.

The city is now offering fire, ambulance, emergency first responders and paramedic services as a packaged deal to all the townships it currently serves in order to save everyone money.

"The basic idea is economies of scale: our ultimate goal here is to look at the feasibility of consolidating services of a fire district or larger regional fire authority," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Strachel. "We think that there could be substantial cost savings for all taxpayers if the city and townships would work together."

The city currently offers fire and EMS services to itself, the townships of Marion, Norwood and Eveline, and EMS services alone to Charlevoix Township which has its own fire department and Hayes which gets its fire services from Charlevoix Township.

The city pays $394,127 currently for its own fire and EMS, with nearly $100,000 of that subsidizing some local townships' services.

Some presents are worth the wait

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

We are into counting down mode again for grand-baby number six. Realizing that it has snowed a few inches of the white stuff I am getting worried about the arrival of our next little addition. Mind you, our daughter lives only thirty minutes from the hospital, but considering her labor rarely lasts the length of one Oprah episode, I am a bit concerned. Seems we have this thing for having winter babies in our household and their coming quickly. I reasoned it must be the longing for spring that encourages this behavior and our high energy level which makes delivery quick. Waiting for a baby to arrive is the likes of watching a kettle boil, but just like every good soufflé, they're ready when they're picture perfect. I still believe in the belly button check. If it's out, the baby is ready just like the timer on a turkey. With the economy still adrift and fewer people having health insurance I wonder if there will be an upswing in the number of midwife deliveries. Thirty years ago new moms spent four days in the hospital recouping; now it's down to two because of cost rather than the needs of the new mom. With DVDs and CDs on every topic will home health care be the next step? "Here is how you stitch a flesh wound" I hear the soft spoken doctor explain on his latest CD which also comes with a set of surgical tools. Years ago it was the norm to be born at home with the assistance of a midwife, neighbor or very close friend. Labor would take hours to days, and in my own father's case, he claims that since he was stuck so to speak, he has no memory for personal names and dates. Something he left mom in charge of. Actually I know very few men who can remember any date unless it was a victorious sporting event; so dad I am not buying your theory. I am also reminded of babies and mothers lost without proper care and the numbers we have saved with the advantages of technology. Though nature should take its course it's always nice to have an expert nearby. Speaking of experts, our son-in-law completed his paramedic program. There is nothing that beats the hands on approach to reviewing how to perform the task at hand so I hope he is up to delivering a baby if need be. I've always been the type of person who likes to complete many projects at once. My husband was quick to point out a news item that occurred this past Thanksgiving Day; maybe you saw it as well. "Woman delivers grandchild and bastes turkey- both events met with success." "Wow," I exclaim. "Good job multi-tasking." And then realize that could have been me. We are now into the full moon phase. A time when most of us are affected is some form. My counseling caseload increases during this time period. Police calls are usually up and in the morning while driving to work you can view more road kill. Okay not a pleasant thought, but the phases of the moon do affect tides and also the arrival of newborns. I have visions not of sugar plums but a delivery in the living room between presents and a crèche. Lights twinkling from the Christmas tree, spiced egg-nog for the grandparents and a baby the size of a large Christ-mas stocking wrapped up with a bow. Yep this new present could get interesting and we are patiently awaiting its arrival, okay some are more patient than others. E-mail Gayle Gennett at news@charlevoixcourier.com

History vs. progress, the great debate continues

EDITORIAL

Turnabout is fair play. Cliché, right? Well, it may be, but it's also apropos to the 108 Park Ave. situation. The problem is, we can see both sides of the issue. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority purchased the 139-year-old house with adjoining parking area with an expressed interest of developing the property for the good of the city's downtown business district. Potential uses included beautification of the area, economic development and/or infrastructure improvements like additional parking. Now, the DDA's executive director Keith Carey will be the first to tell you he doesn't think Charlevoix has a parking problem. However, he is concerned with the current eyesore status of what may or may not be a historical structure. If the DDA decides to go forward with their tentative plan to demolish the building and create a public park and parking lot in its stead, it will be done primarily with the city's parking fund dollars. If the DDA acts quickly, they claim they will realize significant savings by pairing their project with the Park Avenue street and sewer repairs slated for spring 2010. Of course, they cannot say just how much saving of the green there will be. Some argue the building should be saved for a year to allow time for a conservation-minded entity to save it. After all, the house was built for a widow by a wealthy shipper who ended up marrying the woman

As one of the oldest houses in Charlevoix, we can see how it could make an attractive maritime museum as some have suggested—providing some serious structural and aesthetic improvements were made. This move by the DDA may seem to be done in haste, but the DDA has been holding the property for nearly 15 years, during which the Charlevoix Land Conservancy was allowed to use the building for a dollar a year. The conservancy's true cost was a promise of major renovation and upkeep of the facility. Aside from installing a new roof, the conservancy defaulted on their end of the agreement. Now the DDA, a group conceived to improve the city's economy, is holding a dilapidated house with questionable historic significance. Even if the DDA had the estimated $140,000 to $160,000 to bring the building up to code, would that be the best use of taxpayer dollars? The property already cost the DDA nearly $200,000 to purchase. Now officials and preservationists are faced with the question of what is in the best interest of taxpayers, visitors and the City of Charlevoix itself. The DDA has advised that it will hire a historical architect to inspect the house. If this official finds the property to have historical significance, then perhaps putting the brakes on the proposed project is in order. Either way we hope both sides will move forward with caution and careful consideration. Charlevoix needs an empty eyesore like it needs a demolished monument.

Every great American novel begins with a good start

MORE OR LESS

People often ask me (well, a couple of people have, and I'm sure more would if I cornered them at a party), "How can I break into the glamorous world of speculative writing?" Ah, that is a very good question. Most aspiring writers set their sights on the novel. I've never written a novel, but I'm sure I could. I've read plenty of them, and it doesn't take that long. The novel is the current literary equivalent of Brangelina, making it the most marketable commodity in publishing today. Good long reads are what the lit set craves. Big, steaming slabs of protein forked out with gusto. The delicate hors d'oeuvres or glittering aperitifs found in short story collections have fallen on hard times. And if we are to follow the money (and why else would we attempt such folly?), a novel is really the only option. The germ of a future classic could be lying dormant in any of us. Remember that first grandiloquent rush of young love when you shared with your darling the minutia of your childhood experiences, opinions, dreams and fears? There's probably enough material there for a trilogy. Suing up for the game is as vital to the process as the plot line. The writer must possess three attributes: Dizzying delusion, the ability to function without much exercise and someone to bring in sandwiches.

Often, the most challenging aspect for the newbie novelist is to construct a compelling beginning. Within a few carefully crafted words, the reader must be drawn into the narrative.

Consider the classics: "Call me Ishmael," or "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times," for instance, are widely regarded as humdingers. From what I can garner, a good start is key. Since even the longest journey begins with a single step, I have compiled a selection of powerful openings for a variety of genres in the event that I should ever follow the muse into a lengthy commitment. Borrow freely from the following to jump-start your own endeavours. There're plenty more where these came from.

Whodunit: He could tell by the fly on her lip that she was dead.

Angry Young Anglo-European: As far as Duncan was concerned, it was all (crap). Romance (Period): "Oh Topsy," Elspeth exclaimed, lifting the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel into her arms and pressing a pink-hued cheek to the little animal's silken fur. "You are ever so lovely with that cunning blue bow tied 'round your neck!" Romance (Modern): "Ouch! Get off a my hair." Chick Lit: Alexis broke a heel from her Manolo Blahniks in an air grate near Central Park. Gothic Horror: The turrets of the old castle pierced the sky in a way that made Charlotte's heart thud.

Modern Horror: The (sweating/swarthy/un-kempt) man looked into the mirror and grinned, exposing a mouthful of shining metal teeth filed into pointy stubs. Sci-fi: Judy leaned forward, reaching for the ejector switch. "Ready?" she said to the guy sitting next to her in a spacesuit. Coming-Of-Age: "I just hate Bobby Jergens!" Tilda threw herself onto her best friend's canopy bed. "He's so stuck-up!" Children's Story: Beatrice Olivia Adams-McPhee ruled the whole house from her pink nursery. Substance Abuse Memoir: I was one of the lucky ones; I made it. Folksy American Memoir: I was born on the same day that Pa found a four-leaf clover in the hayfield. Crime: "It's impossible," said coroner Lynn Maxwell, nearly dropping her scalpel, "Nobody has one of those." Mystery: At first, everything seemed normal. Epic (Historic): Picture 8,000 people standing on a hill in the desert. Amazing, eh? Epic (Modern): Cornelia Pettigrew stared at the attorney who had just announced that her dad left his whole empire to her ne'er-do-well brother. Political expose: "Ouch.

Get off a my hair." Biography (Historic): Elisabeth Ross always hated the nickname, "Betsy." Biography (Modern): "Oh Tinker-belle, you're my BFF," Paris Hilton exclaimed, dropping the catatonic Chihuahua into her Fendi handbag, snapping the Swarovski crystal clasp and tossing it down beside her in the limo. Hopefully, these examples will inspire an outpouring of literary achievement. Armed with an intriguing hook and a little perseverance, you too may one day be able to say, "I wrote that!"

LETTERS to the editor

CKD LEACHATE IS NOT WATER

Editor:

Friends of the Jordan River Watershed Inc. (FOJ) welcome the new efforts to reassess the cleanup of Cement Kiln Dust (CKD) Leachate contamination at Bay Harbor and Little Traverse Bay (LTB).

We hope the Regional Stakeholders Group (RSG) can correctly identify and facilitate proper local cleanup alternatives. We are heartened that in CMS' recent public outreach, CMS recognizes that trucking 200,000 gallons of leachate per day to distant injection wells is not economical and poses increased risks. CMS' David Menegier states, "Trucking the water, because of its increased public safety and transportation risks, environmental concerns and costs, is not a realistic long term remedy. We absolutely need... to identify a local solution to a local concern."

FOJ especially wants to acknowledge the groundswell of citizens who spoke out and supported our call for better cleanup options and the Courts of Law for issuing and upholding an injunction against an Albia Injection Well. Perhaps, now, serious and comprehensive consideration will be given to these massive problems.

Despite these positive developments FOJ is concerned about CMS' concerted efforts to "spin" the story about the extent of CKD contamination at Bay Harbor and in LTB. Recent newspaper ads, while professionally produced, fall short of a true characterization of the problems, denying the public real choices and facts needed to properly mitigate this Superfund Site. One example is CMS' improper use of the word, "water". CKD leachate is not water. It is no more water than coffee, milk or household bleach. CKD leachate is strongly caustic and toxic (MDNR Toxicology Reports). CKD leachate is a Public Health Hazard (Northwest Michigan Public Health Agency Advisory). CKD leachate is a highly regulated industrial waste (EPA, MDEQ and U.S. Congress). Its physical and chemical properties bear little resemblance to water. To repeatedly describe CKD leachate as something as benign as water is disingenuous and belies the fact that this toxic pollutant is a serious short and long term environmental contaminant with direct threats to public and ecological health. Furthermore, our calculations indicate that it will take hundreds, and more likely, thousands of years to dispose of the leachate based on current methodology. None of the "alternative choices" proffered by CMS consider this timeline. Neither do they answer the following questions: Disposed of where? For how long? At what cost? Paid by whom? How long is perpetuity? Is this responsible and ethical? Failure to address these and other issues destroys the credibility of this process and makes a proper solution unlikely.

Other important issues are omitted in these ads. What about the estimated 50% of total leachate which bypasses the collection system and enters LTB unabated every day? Why has an Environmental Assessment never been performed? What are the risks to the municipal water supply for the City of Petoskey? Why has EPA's 2005 Order of Consent "To Remove, Isolate or Contain the CKD" been ignored? What effect does irrigating the golf courses with over 1,000,000 gallons of water per day have? Why isn't deep well disposal of 200,000 gallons of "tainted water" per day considered a diversion from LTB? Class I industrial waste injection wells, 2000 feet deep, are actually shallow by modern standards and not proven safe. How can the RSG be expected to realistically arrive at consensus by the EPAMDEQ imposed deadline of October 2010? What then?

Similar omissions, mistakes and deceptions were made prior to the development of Bay Harbor when CKD was declared benign or "inert". The known threats of the vast piles of CKD were dismissed, down-played and ignored leading to their widespread dispersal instead of removal or containment. This lapse in oversight led directly to the exacerbation of CKD leachate contamination along LTB and compounded the myriad of problems we face today.

As the RSG grapples with these difficult issues and the public is finally invited to participate in the process, accuracy, transparency and candor are requisite for a successful outcome. Smoke & mirrors and pseudo-choices will not suffice to solve these problems. They are too large with ramifications so great as to be taken lightly.

At least now, the public is informed and engaged. Let us put all the issues on the table and in the public arena and solve them together. FOJ will be an honest and diligent partner in these proceedings and expect all others to do the same. Dr. John W. Richter: President of the Friends of the Jordan River Watershed Inc.

CROP WRAAP

The 2009 Charlevoix County CROP Hunger Walk was a huge success! On Saturday Sept. 26, 100 area walkers and volunteers came together to raise more than $20,066 for Church World Services, which works to combat hunger locally and globally. Our local Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan food pantries will receive approximately $5,000 to aid local residents in need.

This year's CROP Walk was done in memory of Dorothy Stahl.

Again, thank you to all who worked so hard to make this year's CROP Hunger Walk such a resounding success.

Special appreciation, also, to Ironton Congregational Church for continued use of their church on walk day, Dave Phillips for donating his time and services to cater a beautiful lunch for all the walkers and volunteers, At Your Service for their generous donation and also to the Charlevoix County Sheriff for providing road support along M-66 on the day of the walk.

ENGAGEMENT

Ward - Linne

Kelly Elizabeth Ward and David William Linne happily announce their engagement. Kelly is the daughter of Captain Bernie Ward III and Sandra Ward of Charlevoix, Michigan.

The Wife-to-Be has been immersed in the boating world since birth.

She holds a US Coast Guard Master's License and is crawling towards a business degree from Ferris State University in her spare time.

Kelly is employed at Ward Brother's Boats, her family's Round Lake business, and as a private boat captain. It was on her dock that she first met and fell head-over-heels for David who also holds a Master's License and works as a fulltime captain of a private yacht.

David was born to the late Robert and Ernie Linne. He was raised in New England by a sailing and skiing family.

David attended Springfield College, Massachusetts then moved to Florida to pursue a maritime education.

After a chance encounter with Kelly at her family's Michigan marina, the Husband-to-Be enthusiastically exchanged the warm embrace of the Florida sun for the tender glow of Kelly's dimpled smile.

The couple recently purchased a home in Charlevoix, Michigan where they live happily with their two Golden Retriever puppies.

A February wedding is planned on a tiny Bahamian island in hopes that the wedding photos may be blessed with tan faces and sandy toes.

dates of the school, the new tradition, Rockin' Rayders of the day are honored.

The Rockin' Rayders of the day are any students that have been noticed by any of the teachers in the school. Picking two kids each day, teachers choose students that work hard, participate, and have the great, shining, positive attitude that is encouraged through out the school. These are students who have improved or have done something really great recently.

After the Rayder of the day is selected, teachers write a certificate mentioning why they have been selected, and it's then posted in the cafeteria for the day. Later it is put in the pot for the "Rayder of the Week" drawing, which occurs on Fridays.

The "Rayder of the Week" gets a gift certificate or special treat.

Students have been recognized more and more ways this year for academic achievement or overall positive behaviors.

"As a staff, we have been very focused this fall on trying to foster a culture that recognizes all students for their academic success or improvement, as well as qualities and behaviors that are positive and helpful for all. We are really trying to incorporate incentives and rewards for all students, so they feel valued at our school and care about performing at their highest level."

"It's nice to get noticed, especially for things other than the cliché things the same kids got noticed for over and over last year," Senior Rockin' Rayder, Cory Russell said.

Rockin' Rayder is just one more way the staff at Charlevoix High School is showing the students how much they are appreciated.

Hunting, a Family tradition

The Farmer family men were able to bag three nice bucks this deer season. Here brothers Justin (far left) shows off his eight-point buck while Jorden holds up his antlers from a 14-pointer he shot. Dad Dwayne Farmer managed to bag a great big 10-point deer. All of the animals were taken south of Charlevoix during both the bow and rifle seasons.

13 COA director candidates apply

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

439-9346 - szucker@petoskeynews.com

Charlevoix County officials will have 13 applicants from which to choose as they work to fill the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging executive director's position in the coming weeks.

In August, the commission director of more than 10 years, Sue Bergman, stepped down because she was moving to Ketchikan, Alaska, to take a job as a public health nurse and to live closer to family in that area.

Bergman's departure came at roughly the same time the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners was considering hiring downstate consultant David Emmel of Abbott & Emmel Consulting to help the commission on aging work through some organizational and bylaw restructuring.

Because of the timing of Bergman's resignation, the county board of commissioners hired Emmel — at a cost of $10,000 per month — not only to perform the consulting functions, but also to serve as the agency's interim director until a permanent replacement for the position can be found.

At the commission's Nov. 25 meeting, Emmel, who helped develop an updated job description for the director's position, said he had received 13 applications for the position before the submission deadline.

He said two or three of the applications are from Charlevoix or Emmet counties. The commissioner asked Emmel to pore over the applications and narrow the field down to three or four top candidates with whom the commissioners could set up full interviews.

No timeline for when the interviews might begin was discussed at the meeting and a call to Emmel seeking that information was not returned before press time today, Thursday.

At its Wednesday, Dec. 9, meeting the county board of commissioners is also planning to conduct a public hearing on some proposed changes to the commission on aging's by-laws.

The commission on aging oversees a host of services for senior citizens in the county, including senior centers in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Beaver Island.

The agency is overseen by its own appointed board which serves in an advisory capacity to the county board of commissioners.

The commission on aging's operations are funded through several sources including the Charlevoix County senior millage.

20 years of sex, drugs and rock-n-roll

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

rbrougham@petoskeynews.com

Chances are, if it's a rock band that toured sometime in the last 20 years, Duane Roy has seen them in concert.

In 2009 alone, he's traveled to see some big names such as Metallica, REO Speedwagon and Bryan Adams.

But for Roy, who lives in Ontario, some of his best concert memories over the years took place at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

"The first concert I attended at the Castle was Whitesnake, Anthrax and Autograph in July 1987," recalled Roy. "The atmosphere of Castle concerts was the biggest thing and is very hard to put into words."

For the past several years, Roy has been working on documenting Castle concerts, along with stories from fans and band members. Those stories are available in his new book, "Castle Stories, A Rock and Roll Scrapbook."

"The biggest bands in the world played the Castle and it was only a few hours from our doorsteps. We were lucky to have such a great venue," said Roy.

From 1969 to the mid-1990s, the Castle hosted a number of concerts. Big names such as Ozzy Osbourne, Aerosmith and Bon "Anyone who likes sex, drugs and rock-and-roll mixed in with some humor will love this book."

DUANE ROY,
AUTHOR OF "CASTLE STORIES"

Jovi all rocked the 6,500-square-foot stage.

"This book is for anyone who attended a Castle show or music fans in general, but there are a lot of children of Castle concert attendees that want to read about his place their parents are always talking about," explained Roy. "And of course, anyone who likes sex, drugs, and rock-and-roll mixed in with some humor will love this book."

Roy asked concert attendees and some band members to submit their Castle concert stories for the book. And Roy admits that he received so many great stories, he couldn't use all of them.

In 2001, Linda Mueller purchased the property. The purchase brought an end to the Castle's concert-era.

"The first thing I did was take the stage out so history wouldn't repeat itself," said Mueller. "I knew the community didn't want to support that type of scene anymore."

Mueller said she has read a few chapters of Roy's book, and while she doesn't necessarily approve of some of the personal stories told in the book, she believes Roy has a great passion for concerts and called him a gifted story teller. "He has a good way of putting his stories and memories together," explained Mueller. "His book gives you a real good feel for those times. He did a nice job of documenting that phase of the Castle."

Mueller believes it's the first book ever written about the Castle.

Roy said he had such a good time researching and writing "Castle Stories, A Rock and Roll Scrapbook," he's looking to do more Castle related projects in the future.

"I would also like to write the definitive history of the Castle in a large hardcover format, and I really think that there is enough interest out there for a full length documentary about the Castle. But those are pretty big ideas that would require some serious time and dedication," said Roy.

Those interested in purchasing "Castle Stories, A Rock and Roll Scrapbook," can do so at Roy's Web site, www.duaneroy.com.

Roy said the book will eventually be available in Charlevoix.

Roy is also hoping to host a book signing party in Charlevoix after the holidays.

FLURRY FEST

Brecklyn Santos (above) pauses from telling Santa what she wants for Christmas long enough to pose for an intruding camera man. The 2-year-old was among dozens of others who came to the corner of East Park to see the big man and put in a good word. Six-year-old Evan Beane of Charlevoix (bottom page) gets a little pre-Christmas loot from Santa Claus on Dec. 5 in downtown Charlevoix. Santa posed with children for pictures, heard their requests and then handed out boxes of goodies to the kids. The people pictured (upper right) seem to be in good spirits despite the long line to see Santa Claus on Saturday Dec. 5. There was plenty of snow to greet old St. Nick, who was brought in via the City of Charlevoix Fire Department so his reindeer could rest up for the big night. Phil Milazzo (directly below, left) and Darrell Futo of the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club roasted chestnuts for those who attended Flurry Fest last Saturday.

Attendance up for hospital fundraiser

Charlevoix, will be used to help purchase equipment for the hospital, fund outreach programs such as the Wellness Wednesdays which offer blood pressure, cholesterol and other health screenings for a minimal fee, and more.

"The money raised for our community education programs does not come from anywhere else," said foundation community health education director Kathy Jacobsen.

"The highlight of the event was seeing everybody who came out to support the hospital."

Jenks said the event could not happen without numerous volunteers who worked to get great auction items and sell more tickets than last year.

"The most important thing about this event is the work we can do to mitigate risks and keep people healthy and happy and out of the hospital," she said.

10 Reasons to Shop Local First

16 days - the official Christmas countdown. 16 days to find the perfect gift for mom and dad. 16 days to prepare a delicious meal for family and friends. With a daunting to-do list and a dwindling timeline, it seems impossible to accomplish everything. However, the Charlevoix Chamber has a solution: Shop Local First. Below are 10 Reasons to Shop Local First.

1. Significantly More Money Re-circulates in Charlevoix. When you purchase at locally owned businesses rather than national chains, more money is kept in the community. This is due to the fact that local businesses often purchase from other local businesses, service providers, and farms. Purchasing local grows the business as well as the Charlevoix tax base.

2. Non-Profits Receive Greater Support. Local business owners donate more to local charities than non local owners.

3. Unique Businesses Create Character & Prosperity. The unique character of Charlevoix is what brought us here and keeps us here. Tourism businesses also benefit because Charlevoix doesn't look like every other place.

4. Environmental Impact is Reduced. Local businesses make more local purchases requiring less transportation and usually set up shop in town centers rather than on the fringe. This generally means less to sprawl, congestion, habitat loss and pollution.

5. Most New Jobs Are Provided by Local Businesses. Small local businesses are the largest employers nationally.

6. Customer Service is Better. Local businesses often hire people with more specific product expertise and they invest in their employees for better customer service. Also if they do not have the product on-hand they will often order it for you, saving you time and the inconvenience of having to look elsewhere.

7. Local Business Owners Invest in the Community. Local businesses are owned by people who live in this community, which means they are less likely to leave and are more invested in the community's future.

8. Public Benefits Far Outweigh Public Costs. Local businesses require comparatively less infrastructure and more efficiently utilize public services relative to chain stores.

9. Competition & Diversity Leads to More Consumer Choices. A marketplace of hundreds of small businesses is the best way to ensure innovation and low prices over the long-term.

10. Investment in Charlevoix is Encouraged. A growing body of economic research shows that in an increasingly homogenized world, entrepreneurs and skilled workers are more likely to invest and settle in communities that preserve their one-of-a-kind businesses and distinctive character.

Charlevoix is known as "Charlevoix the Beautiful," shipping local first enables the community to continue this tradition and maintain its unique, captivating self. So before you take a road trip to Traverse City or Elgin, stroll the sidewalks of Charlevoix and shop local first.

BOYNE BIKE PATH MEETING SET

BY STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

439-9346 - szucker@petoskeynews.com

Charlevoix County officials are seeking more input from property owners along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road on a non-motorized path that has been proposed along the road.

To that end the Charlevoix County Parks Committee has scheduled a public input session on the proposed path at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 10, at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., Charlevoix.

While the meeting is open for all to attend, Charlevoix County Commissioner and parks committee chairwoman Shirley Roloff said at last week's county board of commissioners meeting that she organized the meeting specifically to solicit input from as many property owners along the route as possible.

She said the commission has heard from many owners opposed to the separate path, but has also heard that there may be some owners who might be agreeable to the proposal.

Over the past several months, the proposed path has been a contentious issue, coming up for at least some discussion at nearly every county commission meeting. The issue has pitted cyclists, who say safety concerns make a separated path the better choice, against a number of outspoken property owners, who say a separated path (not along the road shoulder) is a violation of their property rights.

Much of the issue centers around the fact that in the 1950s Boyne City-Charlevoix Road was re-aligned to create a straighter route. In the process of the re-alignment, the county obtained road right-of-way easements from adjoining property owners that allowed the county to use the property "for highway purposes only."

A number of property owners have argued that a non-motorized trail is not a high way use and have vowed to put up a legal battle if the county proceeds with any plans for a separate path in the right-of-way adjoining their properties.

Earlier this year, the Charlevoix County Road

Commission, citing the uncertainty of their legal standing on the issue and the lack of funds to mount a prolonged legal battle, said it would not pursue a separated path.

In the spring, the road commission will be putting out a bid package to reconstruct a 2.74-mile section of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road from Nelson Road to Sumner Road.

On Oct. 28, road commission officials asked the county commission for direction on pursuing a grant that may have paid for about $228,000 of the estimated $380,000 cost of adding 5-foot-wide bike lanes along the shoulder of the road. The remaining $152,000 would have to come from some local source.

At the meeting, road commission manager Pat Harmon explained that the application needed to be submitted to the state within a week for the road commission to reasonably consider doing the widened shoulder work at the same time that the road reconstruction project takes place.

After hearing extensive comments at the meeting, the county commission gave the road commission no direction on applying for the grant.

Harmon said the road commission will proceed with its bidding on the road reconstruction project without consideration of either configuration of the proposed non-motorized path.

Exploring Options for Protecting Our Bay

OPTION: Send collected water through underground pipes to the Petoskey Water Treatment system for treatment and release into Little Traverse Bay.

Discussions with City of Petoskey officials have been ongoing over the past two years in an effort to develop a plan that would allow water from the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project to be sent to the city's water treatment facility for treatment and release into the bay.

In a number of ways, reaching an agreement with the City of Petoskey to take the water meets many of the goals needed for a long-term solution. It is a scientifically proven method that allows the water to be released in a manner that protects the bay and public health (the Grand Traverse Water Treatment Facility is currently mixing, treating and releasing water to the bay that is trucked from the project to Traverse City). It is a local solution to a local problem. It would basically eliminate truck congestion on local roads and is more reasonable from a cost perspective.

However, despite the extensive study of both city and CMS representatives, a number of technical challenges still need to be addressed before this option can be considered viable. Technical issues that need to be overcome include reaching agreement how much project water the city can accept without compromising its discharge permit. If the plant is not able to accept the entire amount of water this option would result in a partial solution which would still require extensive trucking. Additional challenges, from the CMS perspective, include: the extent of infrastructure improvements to the water treatment plant required; the ability and necessity of installing a dedicated pipeline along an already crowded right of way on U.S. 31 to transport the water collected from East Park and Bay Harbor to the treatment plant; and the ability to install a one million gallon water storage tank above the wastewater treatment facility. The box to the right contains a question mark in the mercury removal category because the mercury contained in the water collected at the environmental project is predominantly dissolved mercury. This type of mercury is much more difficult for treatment plants to remove than the elemental and less soluble mercury typically found in municipal waste water streams. If a dedicated line is able to be installed, it would result in considerable public disruption during the construction period.

Rayder girls start with win

HARBOR SPRINGS — Christine Morgan and Ashley Dominic each made three of their four fourth-quarter free throw attempts Thursday as Harbor Light Christian held off Alanson, 39-35, to win its season and Northern Lakes Conference girls' basketball opener.

"It was very much a typical first game for us," Harbor Light coach Clark Hewitt said. "Alanson, they've got some good athletes and they play really hard. We knew we were going to be in a battle. Fortunately, we got out to a good start which really helped us right to the end."

"It's nice to start out with a win in the league."

Logan Kleinhenz scored 14 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Harbor Light; Morgan finished with 10 points, nine rebounds and six steals; and Dominic added seven points.

Katie Biang had 13 points and four steals, and Sarah Matthew added nine points for Alanson. 0-2 overall, 0-1 league. Matthew and Jade Kiogima had 10 rebounds apiece for the Vikings, who made just seven of their 18 free throw attempts.

The Swordsmen jumped to a 15-5 lead after one quarter and maintained their 10-point advantage, 22-12, at half-time. Alanson started the third quarter with a 10-0 run for a 23-22 lead, but the Swordsmen answered with a 9-2 surge for a 31-24 lead headed into the fourth.

Alanson crept to within two points in the final stanza, but could get no closer. Harbor Light did not hit a field goal in the final eight minutes, but made eight of its 14 free throw attempts down the stretch to hold Alanson at bay.

"Free throws won it tonight for sure," Hewitt said. "Alanson played well. We were very fortunate to come out with the victory."

NON-LEAGUE

Charlevoix 49, Cheboygan 26

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayders jumped to a 17-3 first-quarter lead and extended it to 30-11 at half-time in topping the Chiefs in a non-league game Thursday for their first of the season.

"It's always good to win at home," said Charlevoix coach

Bret Erskine, whose team dropped its season opener to Frankfort, 65-34, on Tuesday. "We started a little better than we did the other night. I thought we played really well in the first half."

"All in all it's a learning experience. We're trying to learn to play with each other. I think they took a nice step tonight."

Taylor Storm and Jenna Way scored nine points each to lead the Rayders, while Katie Mays added eight, and Madison Way finished with seven. Sarah Potter led the Rayders on the boards with 12 rebounds. Lynzie Gotshall had 10, and Mays added eight.

Charlevoix won the Junior Varsity game, 42-38. Sydney Carlson scored 17 points and Kelly Greyerbiel added seven for the Rayders.

Gaylord 74, Boyne City 30
GAYLORD — Brittney Deerfield had a game-high 17 points and six steals as Gaylord rolled past Boyne City Thursday in a non-league game.

Also for Gaylord, 1-1, Bailey Gooding had 16 points, eight rebounds and eight assists. The Blue Devils jumped out to a commanding 25-9 first quarter lead and stretched their advantage to 39-16 at the break. Gaylord then limited the Ramblers to 14 second half points.

For Boyne City, 1-1, Rachel Butler finished with seven points.

Basketball: Petoskey wins
Alyssa VanWerden scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Petoskey freshmen girls' basketball team to a 50-32 victory over Cheboygan Thursday in the championship game of the Petoskey-Trophy Case Ninth Grade Girls' Basketball Invitational.

Also for Petoskey, 2-0, Liz Fraser had nine points, while Annie Hansen and Hannah Scholten had eight points apiece.

In the consolation game, Charlevoix defeated Harbor Springs, 50-19.

Anna Way had 12 points and Katie Hybl added 10 for Charlevoix. Katie Barkley had 10 points to lead Harbor Springs.

Charlevoix Stingrays set local record

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

439-9309 or news@charlevoixcourier.com

For the first time in more than a decade that the Charlevoix Stingrays swim team has existed, four swimmers in the same class have qualified for a state meet.

Christina Barutt, 8; 8-year-old Bailey Birdsall; 7-year-old Abby Cunningham and 8 year-old Caroline Jarema will all be competing in the Michigan Team Swim League State Championships in March, 2010 in Midland.

"What's exciting about these girls is we've had other kids qualify, but this is the first time we had four kids in an individual age group qualify," said Stingray coach Betsy Granstra. "They all love swimming a lot and they enjoy being at practice and they've kind of pushed each other through and motivated each other."

She added, "They're learning the competitive aspect of swimming."

The girls are among approximately 70 team members who swim for the Stingrays at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Granstra said the numbers fluctuate throughout the season, but the team continues to grow overall.

"It's open to everyone. We have a couple kids from Boyne City, Petoskey, home school and public school kids," she said. "We have seen over 70 different kids since the start of the season in September. It's pretty exciting."

Granstra added, "Last year we topped 70 for the first time and that was cumulative. It's not even January and we've already hit that number."

Swimmers ages 5 to 18 may join the team at any time during the season.

"All they need is a swimsuit, towel and a pair of goggles would be a good idea," Granstra said.

She added that the swim team offers great exercise, camaraderie and socialization for the kids while teaching them how to better themselves.

"Swimmers work on skill proficiency and endurance, all in a fun and safe environment," Granstra said.

The 2009-2010 season has just begun, so there is plenty of time for kids to compete.

"We're excited to have success early on and I'm sure there will be more kids to follow in their footsteps," Granstra said.

Another plus, Granstra said, is that team members may practice according to their own schedule, whether they can attend once each week or four days per week.

Gulls flying away after four decades

RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
419-9342 - rbentley@petoskeynews.com

For Patricia Blanchard, owning a downtown Charlevoix retail shop has been fulfilling in several ways.

But as the economy soured around Michigan and the United States in recent years, the Shop of the Gulls owner noted that the experience has included challenges, too.

These economic challenges are a factor in her recent decision to close the store — which carries clothing, gift items and kitchenware — effective at the end of January 2010.

"We watched our sales drop with job losses," the 55-year-old Blanchard said. "We don't have necessary things that people need, but that people enjoy."

The seasonal nature of local retail trade contrib-

PATRICIA BLANCHARD,
OWNER, SHOP OF THE GULLS

uted to the challenges, she added.

And as the economy worsened, Blanchard said dealing with some vendors proved difficult.

Some of these went bankrupt, while others were tough to deal with for smaller retailers.

Blanchard is Shop of the Gulls' third owner.

The store had been operating for about 40 years when she acquired it in 2003.

Since that time, her daughter, Nicole Harbison, has been managing the store.

Her stepdaughters, Brooke and Kallie Blanchard, also have helped out there during the summer months.

Patricia Blanchard said she has enjoyed meeting and serving customers.

The challenge of figuring out a successful product mix — such as attending trade shows and figuring out what to buy — has been satisfying for her, too.

The decision to close Shop of the Gulls was something Blanchard said she has struggled with for more than a year.

Hoping for lower costs and a turnaround in the economy, management relocated the store to its current space from another one two blocks to the north, but the sought-after improvements didn't materialize.

Hoping to liquidate her entire inventory, Blanchard said a sale — in observance of the Shop of the Gulls name's retirement — will continue through January Normal business hours of 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday will remain during that time.

The Shop of the Gulls space is owned by Charlevoix Development Co., which Blanchard said will be seeking a new retail occupant.

Outside of the store, Blanchard already has a full-time human resources/administrative job.

And, she said she'll be concentrating on that when Shop of the Gulls closes. She doesn't anticipate future involvement with retail.

"I think I stepped in at the tail end of what used to be a good opportunity as a business owner," Blanchard said.

Kiwanis essay contest
Second Annual Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Vandenberg Essay Contest

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is sponsoring an essay contest open to all Charlevoix area students currently in the fifth-grade. Students are to explain, in one to two pages, which non-profit group they think an award of $50 should be given and why they have selected that particular charity.

There will be multiple student essay contest winners and an award ceremony will be held in which winners and their parents will be invited.

Each student who wrote a winning essay will be presented with a $50 check and the students in turn will present their check to their favorite charity.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club hopes to encourage fifth grade students to think about all of the good things that the various charities do to help our community.

The essay contest is named after former Charlevoix Kiwanis Club member Merle Vandenberg. Merle served Kiwanis as president of the local club and as a Lt. Governor.

He was a teacher and dedicated his life to helping Charlevoix area students. Es-

This plaque and 15 unmarked graves are all that remain of one of the greatest tragedies in Charlevoix history.

History tucked away in cemetery

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

rbrougham@petoskeynews.com

Tucked away in a forgotten corner just outside downtown Charlevoix, lie the pieces of a story that's nearly 125 years old.

"It's probably long since been forgotten," said Joseph Smith, a longtime Charlevoix county resident.

"Except for maybe maintenance crews working in the cemetery, I bet most people don't even know this spot exists."

In a far corner of Brookside Cemetery, 15 unmarked graves stand along with a memorial plaque. The plaque reads, "In memory of those fifteen unidentified individuals, who lost their lives in the Str. Champlain disaster near Charlevoix on June 16, 1887."

The plaque was placed at the site in 1977 by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The Champlain was a wooden, propeller-driven vessel built in 1870.

The Champlain made runs from Chicago to Cheboygan, with stops often in Traverse City, Elk Rapids, and Charlevoix.

Shortly before midnight on that fateful day in 1887, with more than 50 people aboard, the unimaginable happened.

While traveling between Norwood and Charlevoix, the Champlain caught fire.

"Evidently there was a lumber camp on Fisher-man's Island near where the ship caught fire," explained Dave Miles, Director of the Charlevoix Historical Society. "It's been said that the fire on the ship was so intense, it was glowing white."

In a document written in 1886 that compiles survivor and eyewitness accounts of the tragedy, stories of the events that unfolded that night paint a horrific picture.

W.E. Albright of Chicago, one of the Champlain's passengers, stated, "We heard the most unearthly shrieks. I afterward learned that it was the poor engineer, who rushed up to the upper deck with his clothes all on fire. I ran out upon the guards, and seeing that the boat was all on fire, I returned to the cabin and told the ladies we would have to go out on the bow and get on life preservers. An attempt was made to lower the boats, but we were running so fast it could not be done. The flames kept crowding us more and more out upon the bow."

Mary Wakefield, a Charlevoix resident, had boarded the Champlain in Chicago with Mrs. Kehoe and Mrs. Kehoe's young daughter, Mabel. Wakefield said the captain of the vessel told her and Mrs. Kehoe that they needed to jump ship in order to be saved.

"The captain gave Mrs. Kehoe a cabin door as she went into the water, but she was unable to hold on to it after she came up the first time. It floated away from her and she drowned," recalled Wakefield.

"I went into the water with little Mabel. I held her up and kept her head out of the water by holding her clothes in my teeth until we were picked up and assisted to the shore."

Of all the documented passengers, nine were from Charlevoix. In the end, 18 people were reported to have perished in the disaster.

"Fifteen of the bodies were recovered and sent elsewhere for burial," said Miles.

"But three bodies that couldn't be identified are buried in the potter's field of the cemetery. It's probably a big misconception that all of those graves are those of the crew members of the Champlain."

The identities of the other twelve people buried at the site remain unknown.

"Over the years, people who died here and weren't identified had to be buried somewhere, so many of them ended up in the potter's field," said Miles.

"It's kind of a shame that the memorial is way back there in a spot most people don't know about," said Smith.

"You really have to know where to look. But it's such an interesting piece of Charlevoix history."

The Champlain was rebuilt and put back into service with a new name.

It sank off the coast of Wisconsin four years later.

Emma Lee recovering after brain surgery

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Emma Lee

Last month, 6-year-old Emma Lee Antkowiak was having issues with dizziness and balance.

Doctors in Traverse City discovered Emma Lee with a brain tumor and she was rushed to Grand Rapids.

It was found to be non-cancerous.

And after several days recovering in the hospital, Emma Lee was transferred to Mary Free Bed where friends say she continues to improve each day with the help of therapy.

"We're all sending her letters," said Kerry Smith, a secretary at the Beaver Island School.

"All the students and the staff have been sending her letters and we've been in communication with the family."

In addition to letters, other islanders are working to make wishes come true.

Jessica Keehn Anderson wrote a story about Emma Lee and submitted it to Macy's and the Make a Wish Foundation.

The theme for this year's campaign is, "Believe!"

Entrants are to write a story on why they believe, and Anderson wrote about Emma Lee's situation and the outpouring of support and prayer.

If Emma Lee receives enough votes, she and three other family members will be flown to New York City next Thanksgiving.

Handel's Messiah

Handel's "Messiah" soloists including Michelle Arayzaga (left) will be performing with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra. A quartet will join the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra and Chorus in a performance of Handel's "Messiah." At 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 17 at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Petoskey.

This is the fifth in a series of updates outlining the water treatment and disposal options being considered right now by CMS Land and government officials. As part of the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project, millions of gallons of groundwater, high in alkalinity and containing trace amounts of mercury and other contaminants, are collected at the shoreline in order to protect the Bay. Collection of this water will go on for the foreseeable future, but what to do with it for the long term remains a crucial unanswered question. Any final solution must answer the following questions:

- Does the solution protect human health and Little Traverse Bay?
- Does it provide a local solution to this local problem?
- Is it supported by sound science?
- Does it significantly reduce the mercury levels of the water?
- Does it relieve local road congestion and safety issues associated with tanker truck traffic?
- Does it minimize disruption to the community, economy and tourism?
- Is the solution economically reasonable?

Exploring Options for Protecting Our Bay

OPTION: Secure National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits to treat, remove mercury and safely release collected water to Little Traverse Bay.

Under the U.S. Clean Water Act, the NPDES permit program controls water quality by regulating the release of pollutants into waters of the United States. NPDES permits are used to regulate discharges to the Great Lakes from wastewater treatment plants and a wide variety of other facilities and sites. CMS Land plans to submit two separate NPDES applications due to differing amounts of mercury contained in the water collected at Resort Township's East Park and the Bay Harbor development.

A permit application will be submitted for the Bay Harbor development soon that calls for using the best proven technology to actually remove about 90 percent of the mercury contained in the water collected as part of the environmental project. Research commissioned by CMS Land indicates that technology has been identified that will reduce the mercury concentration in the collected water from about 110 parts per trillion (ppt) to about 10 ppt before release to the lake. For reference, the state standard for mercury discharge to Lake Michigan is 1.3 ppt while the federal standard for drinking water is 2,000 ppt. Because proven technology is currently not able to reduce the mercury concentration to 1.3 ppt, regulators would need to approve a variance to allow discharge to the lake.

In November CMS Land applied for an NPDES permit to reduce the alkalinity (pH) of the water collected at East Park, mix it with clean ground water and then release it to Lake Michigan. Scientific analysis indicates that the mixed water will meet mercury standards for release to the bay.

CMS continues to investigate scientific processes that may prove to be even more effective in removing mercury in the future.

Utilizing NPDES permits meets all of the objectives to be considered an appropriate local solution. The process is supported by science. The mercury content in the collected water would actually be reduced by about 90 percent making the NPDES the most environmentally friendly option being considered. An additional benefit is that NPDES permits must be reviewed every five years and require that contaminant reduction measures are implemented if required and possible. The NPDES option is relatively economical and would be a local solution, removing the majority of the tanker trucks from the roads and relieving local traffic congestion and public safety concerns.

Mt. McSauba to open Dec. 19

RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS-REVIEW

439-9342 • rbentley@petoskeynews.com

Mount McSauba, Charlevoix's city-run winter recreation area, is on track to have skiing available starting Saturday, Dec. 19.

"If we can be open by Christmas break, that's our goal," said city recreation director Ike Boss.

Boss

With young adults and families being among Mount McSauba's core users, Boss said the holiday break tends to be the most feasible time to plan for an opening.

With snowmaking equipment supplementing the natural snow that's been accumulating in recent days, Boss expects recreation staff will have the desired three-foot base of snow in time for the Dec. 19 target date.

A $250,000 groomer acquired last year will be used to help even the snow accumulation out.

Mount McSauba's sledding hill, which offers free admission, already is open. Boss hopes the ice rink will be ready for skating — which involves a $1 charge — by Dec. 19 as well.

The ski area features five runs and four rope tows. McSauba also includes a terrain park for snowboarding.

Cameras in place at the terrain park let parents view their children's activities there from the ski area's lodge.

During the holiday break period, Mount McSauba will be open 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily except for Christmas and New Year's Day.

After the holiday season, the operating schedule will shift to 5-9 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday and 11 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Mount McSauba has one skiing and snowboarding price structure for residents of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township and Hayes Township, and another for non-residents.

For residents, the adult charge for skiing and terrain park use is $12, with a $10 fee for students. The resident cost for equipment rental is $10.

Non-resident user charges are $15 for adults and $12 for students, with equipment rentals priced at $12.

Coping with holiday stress and poverty

selves permission to feel sadness and grief," said Bamberg. "People should be clear with themselves and accept that these types of feelings are there and are valid."

Bamberg points out there are two main causes of stress this time of year — economic stress and the stress of past losses.

"Many people can't manage the way they used to be able to because of the economy,"

Fr. Charlevoix book update

The article of Dec. 2 on the donation of the 1763 book of Father Charlevoix's letters to the Charlevoix Historical Society was incorrect regarding the actual method of donation, due to incomplete information at the time the article was written.

The book was not found in the "toss-out bin" at the University of Iowa as stated. Withdrawn with many others from the State of Iowa Library in Des Moines and transferred to the University in Iowa City, the book was discovered to be a duplicate of a volume already in the University's collection, so it was placed aside.

A few years later, it caught the eye of Prof. Timothy Barrett of the University's Center for the Book in a collection of timeworn volumes that might be candidates for research into binding and old paper-making techniques, his specialty.

But its excellent condition did not make it a candidate for conservation. Prof. Barrett's family has enjoyed a summer home on Beaver Island for years. He is familiar with Charlevoix, and thought the book would be of singular importance to the citizens of the region that Father Charlevoix explored and reported on. Prof. Barrett therefore worked with the Iowa librarians to release the book from the collection.

said Bamberg. "If that's the case, the person needs to really think about how they feel about the holidays and what is most important and not try to overextend themselves."

Bamberg also urges those who are dealing with the loss of a loved one should accept that feelings of grief are valid during the holidays. Those dealing with grief should be open to discussing their feelings with trusted friends and family members.

Bamberg encourages anyone who is feeling extremely stressed or overwhelmed to get help. She stresses that asking for a little help is not something to be ashamed of. And she urges those who are feeling stressed and overwhelmed to stay away from food, drugs and alcohol as coping mechanisms since they can often make the stress worse.

The North Country Community Mental Health Office has a 24-hour Crisis Line at (800) 442-7315 for anyone who would need help.

The company received a rank of 2346 by Inc. magazine - as part of the publication's 2009 annual list of the fastest-growing privately held companies in America.

"This is our third consecutive year to receive the Inc. 5000 honor, and it goes hand-in-hand with our efforts to keep growing the business," said company President and CEO Dennis Wojan. "Even in the face of a tough economy, we've persevered to continue development of new products. We

"The ranking reflects our employees' hard work and focus on achieving continuous improvement," said Keith Demeuse, Wojan Executive Vice President. "Our goals include ever-better execution in areas such as design engineering, customer service, supply chain and manufacturing quality."

According to the publication, the Inc. 5000 list has served as evidence of the significant accomplishments of entrepreneurial companies. "As an Inc. 5000 honoree, Wojan Window & Door shares a prestigious pedigree with some of the most successful businesses in the country," said Inc. Editor Jane Berentson in her award letter. "We recognize the creativity, dedication, and hard work that have gone into building the company into what it is today."

City could face $300K shortfall

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What was to be a brief summary of the city's 2010-2011 goal-setting plan turned to talk of fiscal distress.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel announced that the city may be facing a $300,000 shortfall next year due to shrinking property values and rising costs.

"This is just a ballpark first blush look at where property values are going, and let me couch this by initially saying this was determined from a very small sample of properties," Straebel told council during their regular Monday Dec. 21 meeting.

"It looks like residential value is going to be going down about 10 percent commercial about four percent and industrial about nine percent."

Also mentioned was a potential loss of $53,000 in revenue to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA). Councilman Dennis Kusina asked how the DDA will be able to pay its bond payments with a potential $53,000 shortfall.

Straebel said, though it has not yet been enacted by the Michigan legisla-

Forty-one year old Jacques Pierre Battiste of Boyne City was traveling northeast on M-75 North when he lost control on a curve. His 2007 Pontiac G6 left the roadway, rolled over then struck a tree. Speed and alcohol were both factors in the crash.

Battiste received an injury to his right hand and was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by the Boyne City Ambulance.

The Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the Boyne City EMS, Melrose Township Fire Department and an off-duty East Jordan Police Officer.

Wiesner resigns as Gladstone City Manager

This article originally appeared in the Escanaba Daily Press on Dec. 16

BY LAURA MERRI

The Gladstone mayor and city commissioners are re-naming close-mouthed about former city manager Michael Wiesner's recent decision to resign from his position.

The announcement of Wiesner's resignation came after his evaluation which took place in closed session during Monday's city commission meeting. The city commission voted unanimously to accept his resignation, which took effect Tuesday.

Wiesner came on board as Gladstone's city manager on Feb. 23.

"It's been an experience working for Gladstone and I wish the city the best in the future," said Wiesner.

Mayor Darrin Hunter declined to discuss any details about Wiesner's evaluation or the reasons behind his resignation.

"We as a whole are moving forward," he said. "We're going to have this play out so we as a commission as well as the city staff and city as a whole will have an understanding of what direction we're heading in."

City commissioners and all other city department heads were instructed, during a meeting Tuesday morning, not to comment on the issue and to direct any questions from the media to the city's mayor.

Wiesner received a mixed evaluation when his performance as city manager was last reviewed in August.

At that time, the commission determined his strengths lie in budgeting and financial analysis, and his areas of weakness were in communication and understanding the community.

The commission set up goals for Wiesner to achieve by his next evaluation date, which was Monday. These goals included: continuing to work on the budget situation for this fiscal year and multi-year projections; improve communications and develop a better understanding of the community and city staff; and work toward developing policy and procedures for the city.

ing — he really did a lot," Duhart said.

Schubling, a resident of both Charlevoix and Washington D.C., was in town giving turkeys and cash to needy families as he does every year.

He just happened to hear of the family's plight as he was readying to head back to D.C.

He stopped what he was doing and went to the family immediately.

He purchased the family a vehicle as they had had none before; he gave them money for food and other essentials and paid for hotel rooms until they could find permanent residence.

"He even got them a U-haul and helped them into a nice four-bedroom house in a decent neighborhood down there," Duhart said.

"He said believes God put him on the earth to help people and I think he really is an angel."

Duhart said she really misses the children and hopes the family will come back to the area some day.

"I ask people continue to pray for them," she said.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Sometimes less really is more

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Check. Tree up and decorated? Check. Gifts dropped off to the Community Christmas project? Check. Money sent to Salvation Army? Check. End of the year tax donations sent? Check. Now it's time to settle in and plan a Christmas meal. Pizza sounds good right about now. I could always add a little parsley and cranberries to give it a festive look. Seems like this season brings with it lots of extra work, particularly for women folk.

I'm not trying to bash the male species but for some reason women create more work for themselves and need to step back and lessen the load by sharing and not trying to make Christmas look like a television commercial.

I'm not certain how to answer the question, "Are you ready for Christmas?" No, I'm not ready for the holidays unless "ready" means I planned the perfect Martha Stewart dinner, purchased lots of presents, sent lots of cards and decorated the house to look like Better Homes and Garden.

"Yes," is the answer if I complete fewer things with more thought and don't add on extras that I'm reminded of through television and radio commercials.

In the last few years our focus has been to do less and help others.

Nephews and nieces were surprised when presents no longer became a priority and money and time spent on others in real need replaced our typical Christmas.

Fewer cards are sent and focus on family and friends have taken the form of visiting, attending an event or playing games.

Our activities bring us together without the focus of receiving a gift of anything other than love and attention.

I haven't forgotten little folk as they wouldn't understand so grandkids get one gift and not so expensive to put me over budget and worrying about how to pay for it next year.

Christmas is just a few days away and taking a brisk walk through our lovely town admiring the lights, our community Christmas tree and window displays beautifully created by caring hands is a treat. Caroling is making a comeback too as I've witnessed more groups and friends getting together sharing their vocal talents.

I haven't lost the Christmas spirit thinking about things I should do, instead just reframed my thinking to do things I really enjoy doing.

I am not at the point where I feel the need to escape to swaying palms and sunny beaches for Christmas because it doesn't seem like Christmas to me without a little snow.

Ahem, I mentioned a little snow.

I would like a light and fluffy dusting reminiscent of a Norman Rockwell painting which on cue can melt shortly after New Years.

Shoveling gets old as well as cleaning off the car three times a day. My wipers stick to the window like a wet tongue on a cold steel pole.

I now remember to leave them up and exposed making my car look like a remote control toy but at least it works and saves the wipers.

Not wanting to fall onto a patch of ice I've learned to wear boots with the tread of an army tank.

Not very attractive but a neck brace or cast would be less alluring.

Bundled in my hand knit scarf I brave the wintry breezes coming off the lake and join the mass of others who by reason of insanity, liking snow or can't afford to live elsewhere are going about their lives.

We wonder who we are waving hello to on most days as we all begin to look alike under all our get up.

It's easier to recognize someone by their car instead of facial features but even the cars have Mohawks of snow across their roofs and new dents and bruises from bumping off the sides of snow drifts making them unrecognizable as well.

Facemasks become the norm not only worn by robbers but by Northern Michigan residents staying off frostbite.

My heart is warmed by knowing I'm joined by others who accept the weather good or bad and make the most of it by spending time to visit and catch up.

Silly as it may seem, even though our lives can be eventful our conversations are usually about the weather.

Mine, however, include the birth of our new grandson who fortunately was delivered in the hospital and not by the Christmas tree.

He arrived during our strong winter blast which closed most schools and a few businesses.

I am grateful for a husband who didn't sleep but kept a car cleared of snow and aimed for the hospital at any given moment.

From our family to yours, may your Christmas be merry and bright and knowing it's OK to do less during the holidays so you'll sleep tight.

Surviving Santa: Struggling with childhood memories

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwidt

Every year at some point during the weeks before Christmas, my mom would get together with her sisters, lasso us kids, and we would all head downtown to Smith-Bridgman's to see Santa. That venerable, and now defunct Flint department store on Saginaw Street was the place to shop. It had a soda fountain on the mezzanine where I chugged Tall Texans - a bland, fizzy float that was too light on the chocolate syrup, but so big that I had to kneel on the lunch counter stool to reach the straw. It was in that eight-story retail emporium that a tweedy, brittle saleswoman told me, at age 12, that I was scrawny. I got my first bra in their lingerie department, and that is something I can never erase. But my most vivid memories of Smith-Bridgman's Department Store involve the yearly Santa sojourns.

My cousins were always wild with excitement. They memorized their lists and repeated them while we stood in line. "Chatty Cathy, Colorforms, two-wheeler," they chanted, rising up inside their boots to count how many kids were in front of us.

Standing in that line of children roasting in their snowsuits, I felt exactly the same way I did when we had to line up in school for a vaccination. There, the nurse would quickly notice that I was pale and sweating, and whisk me to the front of the line like a gutless VIP. Post-inoculation, I was revived with cookies or orange juice.

But the attending elves in Smith-Bridgman's had no medical training. I was obliged to stand undiagnosed and wait forever to be placed upon the lap of a stranger. While my cousins crooned snatches of "Jingle Bells" and vibrated with repressed glee, I was fighting with my stomach for control of my breakfast.

The Santa was different every year. Sometimes his beard was straight and snowy white. Other years it was silver-grey and curly. His whiskery maw was stained yellow and damp with saliva. One year Santa wore square black-framed glasses, like an accountant. None of them passed muster, and the annual ritual of confessing my gift list to these imposters seemed so wrong.

"I wrote him a letter," I told my mother, attempting to beg off. "I don't have to see him in person."

But the real prize was not the experience - it was the picture. Black and white five-by-sevens of the look on Santa's knee were snapped and packaged inside of festive holiday folders. My mom and all of my aunts collected them, so my participation was not optional.

The Santas seemed to sense my fragile state. Perhaps they'd had encounters with other nauseous tots that ended badly. Whatever the reason, they regarded me with a suspicion nearly equal to my own and spoke in whispery, un-Santa-like voices.

"What do you waaaaaant for Chrisssss'mas, little girl?" they hissed from inside the avalanche of white hair, their eyes recessed and glittering like a beast in a cave.

Who called anyone little girl? Villains, maybe. The Big Bad Wolf. That's it.

Delivered by my own mother into this peril, I was initially mute. I had to save myself and the quickest path to salvation involved articulating some believable patter to placate the creature and get him to set me down.

"Chatty Cathy. Colorforms, uh-hh," I bared my teeth in a conciliatory smile. "Two-wheeler." While he growled on this proper gander, I accepted his candy cane and bolted. Every year, my escape felt like a Christmas miracle.

But I'm glad I did it, because now I have the pictures. I stare them with the tree ornaments and revisit them every year, although I know them all by heart.

They range from a chubby two-year-old staring with slack-jawed horror into the face of evil, to a savvy kid of seven who has perfected a glassy, faraway gaze and is ticking items off on her fingers. I find them interesting, the progression documenting an ability to adapt to that which I could not change. It's a talent that still comes in handy.

And now that I'm a sensible adult, I can see that these Santas were only human. One skinny guy is so lost in the costume that his head is eclipsed to the size of an almond. His slivered face is hapless and impossibly sad. I wish that he could have known that I'd never forget him.

I sat down to watch the films before I shipped the discs off. There I was, along with my younger sisters, childhood moments captured in time.

There were birthday parties and puppies, Easter outfits and graduations. And Christmas.

There were years of Christmas mornings, with presents under the tree and we kids still in our pajamas, unwrapping and demonstrating for the camera our new bicycles and dolls and record players and cowboy outfits.

As I watched I thought how, in those films, everything about Christmas seemed perfect.

The child waving to the camera didn't have a clue how hard life really was.

Christmas in those old movies was a winter wonderland, but it was not until I became an adult that I came to understand how difficult digital video she gave me the green light to have them transferred to DVD.

trayal of Christmas is nothing like reality of our lives.

And as a counselor, I see in my office people for whom Christmas can become a season to be dreaded rather than anticipated, and endured rather than celebrated.

For many of us Christmas is a time when the failures in our lives become more pronounced, our regrets more profound.

Our cumulative mistakes seem to weigh more heavily on us when we celebrate a season in which all of life is supposed to be "good", whatever that means.

When we look at Christmas like it was a Norman Rockwell illustration, where everything is wholesome and fulfilling, we come away thinking everyone else's life is perfect and ours, by comparison, is a shambles of strained, sometimes shattered relationships.

Indeed, where old movies and television ads portray Christmas as a time when healthy, loving families gather to celebrate their bond and bestow expensive gifts on one another, many of us dread having to spend even an evening with people for whom we have little affection.

Christmas reminds us that for many people families are made up of people with whom we would otherwise never associate.

Throw in a few close encounters with ex-spouses and their families and Christmas turns into a tense time.

If our vision of Christmas as a parent is to gather our children around us by the fire and recite the Night Before Christmas, then the reality of Christmas among today's fractured families can be a huge letdown.

For many divorced persons, the occasion only makes our failed marriages more regrettable and causes us to miss our children all the more.

And for those of us who are missing someone who has died, Christmas can be a time of renewed mourning.

When we imagine Christmas through the lens of retail advertising, where great gifts abound for everyone, we are more likely to regard our shopping list as anemic in comparison.

Retail advertising, with all of its implied expectations, can lead us to a fresh encounter with our failures when we realize that between these tough times and our disappointing careers Santa is doomed to be a flop.

The reality for many of us is that Christmas, the way it is marketed and portrayed, presents an unattainable standard of abundance in every area.

For most of us, our lives rarely measure up to the season.

For many of us Christmas is an annual exercise in disappointment, an unwelcome reminder of loss and wounded relationships.

But for the person who has Christ in their heart Christmas never disappoints.

All the unflattering comparisons we can make between the idealized holiday season and the reality of daily life isn't an issue for the committed believer.

For the believer Christmas is about something altogether different.

When the focus of Christmas is on the arrival of a savior and not Santa, joy comes from deep within that divine relationship.

There is no occasion for disappointment.

Do we have regrets and failures in our history? Of course.

But with our hand in the Savior's, we walk above our circumstances, now and throughout the year.

He carries the weight of our mistakes, and comforts us in our disappointments.

He's the Jesus who gets us through the holiday. Maybe that's why it's called CHRISTMAS.

YOUR GIFT TO UNITED WAY CAN CHANGE LIVES

As the year draws to a close, we would like to thank the hundreds of people who have already contributed to Char-Em United Way's 2009/2010 campaign.

Every day we meet people who have had to find new ways to care for their families and their homes and who have found help through services provided by United Way partner agencies.

We have all have come to understand better what happens when a community chooses to help one another through United Way.

As the economic downturn continues to hit our community hard, many generous people want to do what they can to help.

But what is the best way to make an impact with a limited charitable budget?

Most of us have a few charities that we know well and to which we regularly make donations. But how can we impact the broader community need?

Two of our United Way Leadership Circle donors said it well in our video, "When you want to impact the whole community, giving to United Way is the way to do it. When you write a check to United Way you know the money will go back to the community."

They are right. Char-Em United Way is the most effective way to impact the challenges facing our community now and in future years. You can be sure that your donation to United Way will be well invested.

Char-Em United Way has taken action to identify the most pressing needs in our community and ensure that the personal investments we make in United Way will have the greatest impact on those needs.

Here in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties we are working to:

Give families opportunities to be self-sufficient and financially stable; help kids be so

RAYDER BASKETBALL LOOKING TO IMPROVE

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now with two losses under their belts, the Charlevoix Rayders boys' varsity basketball team is looking to improve.

Head coach Keith Haske said the loss of some seasoned seniors has left him with a really young team.

"We are really going to suffer through some growing pains," he said.

"But, I have great faith we will end up being a really great basketball team it just may take awhile to get there."

While he has a couple strong seniors, Haske said

"I really enjoy our kids and think they've been working hard. It's a matter of bringing it all together."

KEITH HASKE,

RAYDERS VARSITY BASKETBALL COACH

he must look to developing the entire team from top to bottom.

"I think we're going to rely heavily on our underclassmen this year," he said. "They're really going to have to step up and learn what it is to be varsity players."

Tough competition down the road the Rayders will face includes last year's rival McBain, to whom the Rayders lost in last year's regional finals.

"I think the most important thing is to play games," Haske said.

"Rebounding has been our weakest area, and we'll continue to work on that."

If the Rayders stand a chance at improving on last year's record of 19-5, it could be the 26-year veteran coach Haske who leads the team there.

"I'm just excited," he said.

"I really enjoy our kids and think they've been working hard. It's a matter of bringing it all together."

CHARLEVOIX GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAMS RELOADS FOR 2009-10

BY BRIAN BEAUPIED
(231) 439-9301 bbeaupied@petoskeynews.com

For a roster rich with upperclassmen, Charlevoix High School girls' basketball coach Bret Erskine doesn't necessarily feel he has an older or more experienced team.

"It's a work in progress, we're trying to retool and get in basketball shape," said Erskine, whose team was a perfect 14-0 in winning the Lake Michigan Conference championship last season and finished 21-4, bowing to eventual state runner-up McBain in a Class C regional final. "We have a lot of upperclassmen but we're not necessarily older or more experienced. We lost eight seniors from last year, so it'll all be Seniors Sarah Potter, Madison Way, Taylor Storm and sophomore Jenna Way return, and are joined by a quartet of junior newcomers.

Erskine said he hopes his players are quick learners as it is going to be a trial by fire for his first-year juniors who he expects will see a lot of playing time.

"I think we'll be a lot better ter at the end of the year than in the beginning," he said. "We're learning every day and we want to peak at the end of the year."

Regular-season success is nice, but it's the end of the year that really matters, Erskine said.

"I keep telling the team that the season is just like having 20 scrimmages," he said.

Rayder wrestlers ready to rumble

COACH GOLOVICH WRESTLES WITH YOUNG TEAM

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Now well into the 2009-2010 wrestling season, Charlevoix Rayders coach Craig Golovich is looking to motivate his young team.

The Rayders began the season with a full team filling every weight class until Golovich's 290-pound heavy weight quit at the last minute.

"We've always struggled to fill weights, which is why it was so great that we had 'em all full," he said.

"But, he just didn't want to do the work."

Golovich added, "So many teams are not full. We have not faced somebody yet that had not had all their weights."

Unless they can find a heavyweight to fill the slot,

"We might not be the best technical team, but if we can keep them in good condition and they can go six minutes and still have gas, we can win matches."

CRAIG GOLOVICH,
RAYDER WRESTLING COACH

the Rayders will automatically lose points in that category at each meet.

Now coach Golovich must rely on the rest of his weight classes to do well in upcoming meets.

"Conditioning is the big thing. Last week I seen a couple guys die in the third," he said. "In 19 years we've won a lot of matches our kids had no business winning, but they were in shape. And, guys lose wind and if you've got the wind it's like a horse race — win by outlasting 'em."

Golovich said some of his talent to watch for includes Jacob Roache at 215 pounds, Chris Kele at 160 pounds, Ryan Penfold at 130 pounds and senior Jordan Farmer.

This year's team has five sophomores and three freshmen and a lot of potential.

"It's just a matter of getting the guys motivated," Golovich said. "We just took runner up at the Mancelona Invitational last Saturday (Dec. 5). We lost by 4 points to Rudyard and we took second."

Golovich said he will continue to push the fundamentals of wrestling and working on conditioning.

"We might not be the best technical team, but if we can keep them in good condition and they can go six minutes and still have gas, we can win

Teacher authors second children's book

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Nicole Sterrett loves children.

An avid reader, Sterrett spends her days teaching second grade at Charlevoix Elementary School and mothering her four young children.

And, in her spare time, over the past three years she has authored and published two books for children.

"I love watching kids grow. I really enjoy being in the schools and teaching them and showing them things they need to know," Sterrett said.

"I guess that's where the idea came from for recycling in our curriculum and I found it really difficult to help the kids with that... there was not a lot of age appropriate material out there."

A self-proclaimed

"As I was working on the first book I had some ideas about not just recycling, but things that kids could do to be more green and earth-friendly."

NICOLE STERRETT,
CHARLEVOIX SCHOOLS ELEMENTARY TEACHER

cling nut, Sterrett was eager to find a means to share her love for the earth and the environment with her students.

In her quest for an appropriate educational book she came up empty handed.

"The logical solution seemed to be to write one myself," Sterrett said. "I never really had plans to write a book, it all came Sterrett's first book, Let's Save Our Planet You Can Plan It! is really more a guide to conserving energy, cutting down on our carbon footprint, conserving natural resources and respecting the environment."

The childlike drawings

The second book, Nicole explains, was a logical and natural companion to the first book.

"As I was working on the first book," Sterrett explained, "I had some ideas about not just recycling but things that kids could do to be more green and earth friendly, and it lent itself perfectly to a second book."

She added, "Let's Save Our Planet You Can Plan It!" is really more a guide to conserving energy, cutting down on our carbon footprint, conserving natural resources and respecting the environment."

and illustrations present the ideas and concepts in a easy to understand and child friendly way.

"It is all geared toward children and written specifically for their age level," Sterrett said.

While eager to get her books into the public market, for the time being, Sterrett is thrilled to have informative, usable and child friendly material to use in educating her students.

"Other teachers have used the books in their classrooms as well," Sterrett said.

"It's really a great feeling of accomplishment. I am thrilled that people are able to use it."

For more information or to purchase one of Sterrett's books contact Charlevoix Elementary at 547-3215 or visit www.xlibris.com.

Boyne City American Legion veteran of the month

The "Veteran of the Month" for December 2009 is Eugene Raymond Belford.

Born on Nov. 30, 1918 in Peoria, Ill., Belford completed the eighth grade in Duncan, Ill. and left school in 1931 to do farm work to help support their family during The Great Depression.

In 1937 he went to Boyne City, Mich. and enlisted in The Civilian Conservation Corps.

Belford was assigned to Camp Ludington, where he worked for three months, building trails in a National Park and was then transferred to Camp Ocqueoc, west of Rogers City, where he built and graded fire lanes, fought forest fires and drove trucks.

His final assignment was at Camp Wolverine where he worked as a utility-man until discharged in 1939.

Belford returned to Illinois and farmed until the fall of 1939 when he returned to Boyne City going to work as a truck driver.

On Aug. 22, 1940, in Boyne City, Belford married Ruby May Fitzpatrick and in 1942 he went to work at Howes Leather Company as a leather sorter.

On May 9, 1944 Belford was inducted into the Army entering into active service at Fort Sheridan, Ill. and following basic training, where he qualified with the M1 rifle and was awarded The Sharpshooter Medal, and attending specialty training, he was assigned to The Military Police Platoon, 5th Infantry Division.

On Oct. 22, 1944, Belford departed the USA arriving in the European Theater of Operations on Nov. 2, 1944, where he participated in battles and campaigns in The Ardennes, The Rhineland and Central Europe.

Returning home, Belford went to work for Hodgkins & Douma Incorporated in 1946 where he worked his way up to Construction Foreman before retiring in 1987. Belford enjoyed woodworking, gardening, shopping for groceries, Saturday morning sessions with his friends at the local coffee shop and interacting with his family and friends.

On July 27, 2009, Belford answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Ruby and family.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman between 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. at (231) 536-2447 or on Saturdays call (231) 582-7811.

The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of Lake and Main in Boyne City.

Prescription medication relief available

If you don't have health insurance or need medicine not covered by your insurance plan, you can benefit from the FamilyWise prescription drug discount card being distributed by Char-Em United Way. This card could lower the cost of your medicine by an average of 39 percent.

Char-Em United Way is providing these cards free-of-charge to everyone in our community.

There are no age restrictions, no income restrictions, no limit on how many times you can use it and no waiting to get a card. In fact, you can cut this one out and use it today.

"As employers continue to cut jobs and benefits, healthcare costs are one of the top concerns for people in our community," said Savannah Zednick, Administrative Assistant and Program Coordinator of Char-Em United Way. According to the Michigan Surgeon General's Health Status Report, Healthy Michigan 2010, "Michigan has a lower percentage of uninsured residents, on average, than the United States, but has over 1.1 million uninsured residents. Residents at the greatest risk of being uninsured are young adults (particularly those ages 21-24), minorities, and the working poor."

The FamilyWise prescription drug discount cards are one way for us to help individuals and families in our community and make these prescriptions a little more affordable," said Zednick. The prescription cards were first made available by United Way in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties in April 2007. Since that time

1,729 prescriptions have been filled in the two-county area using the card for a total savings of $42,963. The cards can be obtained from the Department of Human Services, Friendship Centers, Community Free Clinic, Petoskey and Charlevoix Public Libraries, Manna Food Project, K-Mart Pharmacies or by calling United Way at 487-1006.

People with Internet access can print a card by visiting the Web site at www.familywize.com, as well as look up drug prices and the list of participating pharmacies. Local businesses and employers can also get cards to give to their employees.

Locally, the FamilyWise prescription drug discount cards are accepted by Central Drug Store, Huff Pharmacy, Kelbel Pharmacy, Medcap Pharmacy, Glen's K-Mart, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, Rite Aid, Walgreen, and Wal-Mart. They have no usage or age limits, income requirements or registration forms, and can be used immediately.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Rayders outgun Gaylord for first win

It was the kind of game that might have Charlevoix coach Keith Haske sporting a couple new gray hairs this morning.

Keegan LaBlance made a 3-pointer with under two minutes remaining and was a perfect 4-of-4 from the free throw line in the final minute as the Rayders held off Gaylord, 89-84, Tuesday for their first boys' basketball victory of the season.

The Rayders, 1-2, led by 10 points at the half and they remained up by 10 until Gaylord mounted a comeback with about four minutes remaining.

The Blue Devils took a two-point lead before an Andrew Plude 3-pointer put Charlevoix back in front for good.

"It was a real up tempo game that went back-and-forth there at the end," Haske said.

LaBlance had a team-high 23 points, while Dylan Putman added 16, and Plude and Ben Meyers added 10 apiece. Casey Helstrom collected eight rebounds while Meyers led the Rayders with six assists.

Kevin Dutcher led the Blue Devils with 27 points.

Offense has increasingly improved for the Rayders, whose 89 points was a season high. They are averaging 70-plus points through their first three games, but are allowing more than 84.

The Rayders square off against longtime rival Traverse City St. Francis in the Rayders' Lake Michigan Conference opener on Saturday.

"We gave up way too many easy baskets," Haske said. "I thought (Gaylord) shot well, but we've just been giving up too many easy points."

Saturday's game is a varsity doubleheader with the girls' contest beginning at 6 p.m. followed by the boys' JV game.

LaBlance won the JV game, 48-46. Andrew Potter had 16 points and Colby Herriman added nine for the Rayders.

Gaylord won the freshman game, 64-39. Charlie Hamilton scored 20 points for Charlevoix.

Cedarville 70, Harbor Springs 62.

CEDARVILLE — Harbor Springs tried to rally from a 13-point fourth quarter deficit, but Cedarville held off the Rams for a non-league win.

Rourke Sylvain led Harbor Springs with 17 points and John Matthews added 13, while Mike Vandermus hauled down 11 rebounds.

"It was an up-and-down game," Harbor coach Jeff Morse said. "They made a couple of runs and we made a couple of runs. They just made a couple more than we did."

"Getting back in the game had a lot to do with our defense. We stepped our pressure up, got some steals and forced them back into transition."

Connor McLeod led Cedarville with 21 points.

Cedarville won the JV game 84-70. Josh Vanilburg scored 22 points for Harbor.

SKI VALLEY

Pellston 72, Forest Area 69

FIFE LAKE — Ben Huyck's turnaround jumper with 20 seconds remaining put Pellston in front and the Hornets went on to post a 72-69

Ski Valley Conference boys' basketball victory over Fife Lake Forest Area on Tuesday.

Senior guard Jeremiah Skilton scored a career-high 24 points to lead the Hornets, 2-1 overall, 1-0 Ski Valley. Chris Hass added 21 points, eight assists, five rebounds and five steals for the Hornets, while Andy Hamilton added 10 points and seven rebounds.

Pellston's Jake Freed made two pressure-packed free throws with 3 seconds remaining for the final margin.

"Big win," Pellston coach Cliff Hass said. "They were conference champs last year, and I picked them as the conference favorite (this year). We got great contributions from everyone. Everybody contributed, all nine guys."

"Glad we pulled it together when we needed to."

Carl Snyder scored 24 points for Forest Area, while Ryan Burke added 14 and Cullen Lane had 13.

Pellston led at halftime, 38-33. The game was tied, 54-54, after three quarters.

Forest Area won the JV game, 55-48.

NORTHERN LAKES

Harbor Light 65, Ellsworth 47

HARBOR LIGHT — David Doucette had 18 points and six rebounds as Harbor Light won its first game in four years over the three-time defending Northern Lakes Conference champions.

Nathan Cook added 14 points and nine rebounds for the Swordsman, 1-1 overall, 1-0 league, while Collin Hewitt and Ben Cole had 10 points apiece. Hewitt dished out seven assists and Cole made five steals.

Harbor Light led, 35-18, at halftime, then saw the Lancers creep within seven, 46-39, entering the fourth quarter.

Cook hit the first of his two four-quarter 3-pointers to re-up Harbor

Light's lead to 10, 49-39, and the Swordsman took control from there.

Cook, Andrew Fila and Cole combined to make four 3-pointers in the final stanza.

Nathan Peterson scored 20 points and Jordan Muma added 14 for Ellsworth, 0-2, 0-1.

Harbor Light won the JV game, 69-42. Jake Ellis scored 25 points for Harbor Light, Ryan Conrad added 18, and Daniel Klevorn had 16.

"The story of the second half was that we played defense," Wolverine coach Stephen Seelye said. "We were able to stuff their passing lanes and when we got the ball back we were patient and waited for our shots."

Alex VandenHoek finished with 23 points and 14 rebounds to lead Wolverine, while Jeremy Brush added 14 points and led the Wildcats' defense by taking three charges, Seelye said.

Jeremy Egas was the defensive standout for Wolverine, holding VandenHoek scoreless in the second half and to just nine points overall. Seelye said.

Wolverine won the JV game, 43-33.

Alba 57, Mackinaw City 56

ALBA — Wilby Gates scored 26 points and Christian Ordway added 14 as the Wildcats won the league opener for both schools.

Adam Alexander tossed in 33 points and Tate Paquet added 13 for Mackinaw. Alba is 2-0 overall. Mackinaw is 0-2.

Alanson won the JV game, 33-32, as Max Oom scored 11 points.

Wolverine 67, Vanderbilt 53

VANDERBILT — Wolverine outscored the Yellowjackets, 41-27, in the second half to nail down the victory in its Northern Lakes opener.

"The story of the second half was that we played defense," Wolverine coach Stephen Seelye said. "We were able to stuff their passing lanes and when we got the ball back we were patient and waited for our shots."

A new organization has started to assist business women in building relationships and networking their business.

"Women after Hours" is a really casual business network for women," said Randi Hunter, manager of the American of Charlevoix, who attended the first meeting.

Shelia Davis, owner of Heaven Sent Adoption Services and a recent resident of Charlevoix began Women after Hours.

"When winter came it was a culture shock for me and I needed to find a way to build relationships," Davis said.

Davis was having trouble connecting with the community, she said.

Davis moved here in November 2007, and after a winter of isolation contacted Erin Bemis, Charlevoix Chamber Executive Director, to help her start a steering committee that would decide what to do and where to go with the idea of a women's networking group.

They put together a breakfast meeting that didn't meet their expectations.

"There wasn't any interaction," said Davis.

After a few more meetings of the steering committee the idea of a women's after Hours group was decided upon.

The first meeting was held at Kelsy B's.

"Some people were in suits and some were in jeans, we were networking with a group of people most like us," said Hunter.

"We wanted a social setting where we were free to talk about everything," Davis describes life as

Business women in Charlevoix now networking after hours

TINA SUNDELUS SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A new organization has started to assist business women in building relationships and networking their business.

"Women after Hours" is a really casual business network for women," said Randi Hunter, manager of the American of Charlevoix, who attended the first meeting.

Shelia Davis, owner of Heaven Sent Adoption Services and a recent resident of Charlevoix began Women after Hours.

"When winter came it was a culture shock for me and I needed to find a way to build relationships," Davis said.

Davis was having trouble connecting with the community, she said.

Davis moved here in November 2007, and after a winter of isolation contacted Erin Bemis, Charlevoix Chamber Executive Director, to help her start a steering committee that would decide what to do and where to go with the idea of a women's networking group.

They put together a breakfast meeting that didn't meet their expectations.

"There wasn't any interaction," said Davis.

After a few more meetings of the steering committee the idea of a women's after Hours group was decided upon.

The first meeting was held at Kelsy B's.

"Some people were in suits and some were in jeans, we were networking with a group of people most like us," said Hunter.

"We wanted a social setting where we were free to talk about everything," Davis describes life as ble connecting with the community, she said.

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE

What started off as a small idea, is helping to bring a local community together.

In September, Phillip Palajac and his wife purchased the House on the Hill Bed and Breakfast in Ellsworth.

"We want to help build up the area. I felt we needed more of a destination place, not just a bed and breakfast," said Palajac. "The first thing I said was,

"We need a snowmobile trail!"

After talking with other people in the community, Palajac had the support he needed. Both Palajac and Fred Taylor, another Ellsworth resident, agreed to allow several acres of their properties to be used for a snowmobile trail. The trail extension connects Ellsworth with a state trail that runs between East Jordan and Charlevoix.

The trail extension was recently approved by the DNR and is being groomed for use this season. The new Ellsworth extension has been named, "The House on the Hill Snowmobile Trail," because of the easement which brings it directly behind the bed and breakfast.

The trail, which runs just two miles, didn't cost taxpayers a dime.

"The entire village came together," said Palajac. "Everyone came out and walked the trail. We talked about how to extend it and what trees needed to be cut down. It really was a huge community effort to connect the village with the rest of the trail."

Palajac said that the use of bulldozers and other equipment for the project were all donated by people in the area.

"It was incredible, every time we needed something, it would show up 10 minutes later," said Palajac.

"We wanted a trail in town for a long time, and we

Top places to work awarded by state agency

HONORS

Awards have and will be presented to one outstanding organization from each of the 10 counties of northwest Michigan honoring their collaborative effort with the Earn & Learn program. Determining factors of the award included the organization's ability to provide diversity of experience, learning opportunities, development of work place and employability skills for program participants, and the benefits the work projects provided to the community. Additional factors included the ability to provide adequate work opportunities, projects for multiple crews, participation in work place learning, supervision, job planning, and contribution of supplies to the program. This year's county award winners are:

Antrim - Mancelona Public Schools

Benzie - Crystal Lake and Watershed Association

Charlevoix - Charlevoix Conservation District (Eveline and Norwood Township Trail activity)

Emmet - Emmet County (Parks and Recreation Department)

Grand Traverse - Grand Traverse Conservation District

Kalkaska - Scenic Trails Council - Boy Scouts of America Camp Kellogg Development

Leelanau - National Parks Service/Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore

Manistee - City of Manistee

(Parks and Recreation Department and Public WORKS)

Missaukee - Missaukee County (Parks and Recreation Department)

Wexford - City of Cadillac (Parks and Recreation Department and Public WORKS)

This summer, 320 youth between the ages of 16-24, worked in the 10 counties of northwest Michigan as part of the "Earn & Learn" Summer Youth Program.

Youth were placed on one of 15 roving crews or individual job sites doing a variety of community-based work projects. A total of 147 work sites participated with youth development to better the quality of life for citizens of the region. The program was expanded this year by American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding.

Green cleaner gives natural alternative to savvy scrubbers

One local business is offering a safer alternative to traditional cleaning products. Tammy Kinzel and Carol Renis have been friends for years. Earlier this year, the two Antrim County women decided to combine their passions of green living and go into business together.

"We bought Ginger Clean in February from a woman named Ginger Blackmore who developed these all natural cleaning products and had been selling them in a couple area stores," said Kinzel. "Carol found out Ginger was going to let the business go, and got the idea that the two of us should think about buying the business."

Kinzel, who worked in insurance for several years, more recently owned a personal gardening business. And Renis, who has served on numerous committees and boards throughout her life, knew the products were worth the risk.

"Carol has serious allergies, and had been using these products for a long time," said Kinzel. "She knew they worked."

Ginger Clean offers various household cleaning products and laundry soap. All their products are all natural with no harsh chemicals.

"If people took the time to look at the ingredients in most products, they would be horrified," said Kinzel. "So that's why everything we use to make our products is natural."

Ginger Clean products are aimed at people who suffer with allergies and skin sensitivities, people with children and pets, and people who are tired of having harsh chemicals in their home.

The call for entries has been established for the Crooked Tree Arts Center's 29th Annual Photography Exhibition accepting works in early January 2010 with the theme set on watershed awareness. CTAC is working in cooperation with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council based in Petoskey, the Leelanau Conservancy, and the Watershed Center of Grand Traverse Bay to create an exhibition with images taken solely on these watershed lands.

Northern Michigan waters define the character of our region and the way of life for its residents. Despite their beauty our waters are quite fragile. The future of our waters ultimately depends on what we do today to protect and restore them. "By bringing attention to the cause of these watershed councils and focusing on the beauty as well as the fragility of the area in which we live, this exhibition hopes to honor and preserve our resources," explains Gail DeMeyer, Visual Arts/Education Director at CTAC.

Juror's for the 2010 Juried Photography exhibition are Todd and Brad Reed, the father and son outdoor photography team based in Ludington, Michigan. Todd Reed has been recording Michigan scenes for over 35 years, 23 of those years as a photojournalist for the Ludington Daily News where he has won dozens of awards. His son Brad's journey as a photographer started as a young boy and has followed in his father's footsteps achieving his own recognition as an artist.

The 29th Annual Junied Photography Exhibition is open to all Michigan photographers 18 years or older and/or members of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. Photograph drop off will be on January 8 and 9 from 12-4 p.m. Sponsors for the 2010 Junied Photography exhibition are Mitchell Graphics and Olar Consulting. To obtain more information on the watershed councils and the view maps that highlight the regions in the exhibition you can go online to: the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council www.watershed-council.org, the Leelanau Conservancy www.theconservancy.com, or the Watershed Center www.gbay.org. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located downtown Petoskey at 461 E. Mitchell Street. For more information please call the Arts Center at 231-347-4337 or visit www.crookdreedtree.org. This program supported in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

The Long-term Water Disposal Plan

Over the last several weeks, CMS Land has used this space in the newspapers for a special series of updates. Why? Because work at the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project has reached an important point and residents should know about the options being considered for the future.

Let's look back.

- Contaminants in cement kiln dust were left behind at the old cement plant that operated for decades along the Lake Michigan shoreline.
- CMS Land controls these contaminants and protects the bay by collecting, treating and disposing of millions of gallons of groundwater that would otherwise enter the lake.
- Environmental efforts have been successful, as seen this summer with the reopening of Resort Township's East Park and the progress demonstrated at Bay Harbor.
- Collection of this water will go on for the foreseeable future.

Now, let's look ahead.

- What is the best long-term solution for disposing of the collected water?
- Does the plan protect human health and Little Traverse Bay?
- Is it a local solution to this local problem?
- Is the solution supported by sound science?
- Does it significantly reduce the mercury levels of the water?
- Does it relieve local road congestion and safety issues associated with the tanker truck traffic?
- Does it minimize disruption to the community, economy and tourism?
- Is the solution economically reasonable?

In our work and in the recent updates in the newspapers, we've tried to answer these questions about the options being reviewed. Take a look at the chart above; some do better than others.

While each option has its benefits and challenges and all will likely generate considerable discussion, CMS Land believes sending water to the City of Petoskey or securing NPDES permits are the most promising options. This is an important moment in time when critical decisions will be made about the future of the local environment. These options are at the center of some of those decisions and we encourage you to become more familiar with all of them. We will continue to keep local residents up to date on our progress.

Top stories of 2009

The year 2009 was a year for great times with the celebration of the Venetian Festival in the fully completed East Park. It was also a time for great loss with the deaths of some memorable Charlevoix folks like Edith Gilbert, Dawson Way and Ken Doty.

Following is a recap of some of the top stories that made up life in Charlevoix in 2009.

A film company made the best out of what was one of the most brutal winters in Northern Michigan history last winter.

The war ended, but they kept fighting ... and dying.

Thousands of men from all over Michigan fought in a little known conflict near the end of World War I in the darkest depths of Russian wasteland, and one former Detroiter is working to tell their story.

"My grandfather I always knew was in World War I and that he went to some place really different than other soldiers," said documentarian, writer, director and actress Pamela Peak, now of California. "While most of them were going to France and over to Europe, he and 5,500 Michigan soldiers were shipped to northern Russia and they didn't find out they were going to go until after they got to England and they saw long underwear on the ship and said 'What's this all about?'"

The men, known as Polar Bears, were sent to Archangel, Russia, to quell the Bolsheviks.

Educator ends decades of service to Charlevoix's children

Mercy Murdick during one of her last days as a teacher.

BY RACHEL BROUGHAM
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

After teaching in Charlevoix for 15 years, Marcy Murdick is now embarking on a new chapter in her life - retirement. But she's not slowing down.

"There are many reason I decided to retire now. First and foremost, my mother has Alzheimer's and I am in charge of her care and finances," explained Murdick.

"I find it is extremely difficult to balance all of the demands on me and still do a good job teaching.

Murdick, who grew up in the Detroit area and moved to Charlevoix in 1966, is a graduate of Charlevoix High School.

It wasn't until she was married and had her own children that she became inspired to go into teaching.

Murdick graduated from Northern Michigan University with honors in 1989 and worked at the Charlevoix Montessori Children's House. She then spent four years substitute teaching in the area, and was hired to teach first grade at Charlevoix Elementary in 1994.

"The first grade classes became unusually large at that time," explained Murdick.

"I had a group of twenty five first graders which I taught in a make-shift room in the middle of the hallway constructed with portable walls and bookcases for storage."

In addition to helping her mother, Murdick will spend time working at her family business.

It's a business she said began after one crazy and impulsive moment.

"I started a bakery and ice cream shop in Mackinaw City and have been working like a dog trying to make a go of it," said Murdick. "I soon found out that no matter how good your peanut butter cake is, people vik, or communist, revolution which began when the communists broke off from being an ally to the forces fighting against Germany.

Peak's crew chose to shoot some of the four key battle scenes of the Polar Bears in southern Charlevoix because the terrain was similar to that of northern Russia.

The Charlevoix County

Board of Commissioners shocked some when they fired two long-time employees after deciding their poor performance was having a detrimental effect on the Charlevoix Building and Safety Department.

What began as a discussion on Jan. 28 how the building department could best be made solvent ended with a 4-2 vote and the termination of two employees: Ken Doty and Jim Easley.

Doty, a 15-year employee and department head, and Easley, a 12-year electrical inspector were both fired following a financial audit and a department assessment which included detailed closed-door interviews of the department's employees.

"The personnel committee recently conducted an evaluation of personnel," said chairman of the board and District Two Charlevoix County Commissioner Chris Christensen. "It was recommended to the full board that, given the current economic climate, existing issues with the building department and results of the assessment, that the employment relationship with the individuals be terminated."

Seven members of the building department were interviewed on Wednesday, Jan. 28, some of them twice, for a total of nine interviews over the course of nearly eight hours.

This move came just weeks after the county board set the most recent of two timetables for fiscal recovery of the department which was taken into the county's financial fold last spring.

According to the audit of time worked, Doty and Easley were consistently lowest in number of inspections completed per days eligible to be worked.

Easley is currently locked into a lawsuit against the county for wrongful termination.

In what may go down in the Guinness Book of World Records as the longest a vandalism case has been dragged out in court, the Austin Wilhelm case continues in a veritable legal limbo.

The youngster was charged with allegedly splashing paint around a house built by the Charlevoix Building and Trades class at Charlevoix High School.

Wilhelm has pleaded innocent to all charges, but the real spotlight is apparently on the two attorneys involved in the matter.

The big stories of 2009 in Charlevoix

Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema and Wilhelm defense attorney Mary Beth Kur have a rough enough working relationship to have prompted a judge to ponder if the case was the people against Austin Wilhelm or if it was John Jarema vs. Mary Beth Kur.

The case still has yet to go to trial.

Former Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner took a job in Gladstone as their city manager last winter only to have recently resigned abruptly following a city council evaluation by their city council.

Officials are hush-hush as to why Wiesner left the $79,000 a year job.

Reach for the sky!

A Charlevoix County woman claimed she was mistreated by a Charlevoix City Policeman and even went so far as to secure a high profile Detroit attorney.

Elena Michelle Warner, then 30, claimed she had been stopped on Feb. 1 only to have the officer rush her car with his gun drawn.

She was eventually cited for speeding and let go. Warner's attorney was able to get her out of the speeding ticket.

Warner's attorney had at least one meeting with the City of Charlevoix officials, but neither side would say what the meetings consisted of.

The matter apparently dissolved as no further action was taken by the police department and no official complaint was ever filed with the city.

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approved the state's ORV law in April. The law goes into effect Jan. 1, 2010.

Four-wheelers and other ORV of the like will now be allowed on road shoulders of the lesser roadways in the county.

While the new law allows for 43 of Michigan's more than 80 counties to participate, the law is not mandatory and municipalities may opt out of allowing four-wheelers to ride certain roads at up to 25 mph.

The ordinance allows four-wheelers, three-wheelers, multi-track recreational vehicles, dirt bikes, motorcycles, amphibious machines and hovercraft "or other means of transportation deriving motive power from a source other than muscle or wind" to travel on road shoulders.

According to ordinance nine, it does not cover any of the following: "a registered snowmobile, a farm vehicle being used for farming, a vehicle used for military, fire, emergency, or law enforcement purposes, a vehicle owned and operated by a utility company or an oil or gas company when performing maintenance on its facilities or on property over which it has an easement, a construction or logging vehicle used in performance of its common function, or a registered aircraft."

ORV are not on the following stretches of road: Thumb Lake Rd., US 131 to the Charlevoix County line; Boyne City/Charlevoix Road in its entirety; Boyne City/East Jordan to 5 p.m. in the county clerk's office at 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

Road from M75 to the East Jordan City limits; Ellsworth Road from the East Jordan City Limits to the Charlevoix County line; Marion Center Road, from Charlevoix City limits to the Charlevoix County line; Kings Highway, from the Light House, Sec. 26, St. James Township... to East Side Drive, Sec. 34, Peaine Township, Beaver Island; and any roads that have been excluded by a city or township ORV ordinance in Charlevoix County.

Flight fee has crashing The $1 enrollment fee the Charlevoix City Council attempted to levy on all enplanements was shot down after an uproar by Beaver Island residents.

The city had hoped to balance the airport's books by increasing some fees, but after a public hearing and outcry by many locals, the idea was scrapped.

Like a rolling stone

After months of wondering what happened to their 170 pound monument, St. Marys Cement was alerted by local police and sheriff officials that the giant Petoskey stone and maple wood base created by a long-time employee had been found.

It seems the husband of an employee had stolen the monument and hid it at his residence.

Haggard's hoax
Charlevoix resident John Haggard is known to have a unique sense of humor, so it wasn't much of a surprise to many when it was discovered a sign advertising that a medical marijuana store was coming to town was little more than a practical joke.

Haggard placed the sign in the window of an empty downtown shop just to see what he could stir up.

The story of the mysterious marijuana store even appeared on public radio as it would have been the first in the state.

Businesses come and go, and 2009 was no exception in Charlevoix.

In addition to Shop of the Gulls and the Aleo Cafe closing, long-time find dining establishment Tapawingo shuttered its doors after 25 years.

The gray house-turned-restaurant on seven acres near the shores of St. Clair Lake in Ellsworth known as Tapawingo is no more.

Mobil Travel Guide called it "Michigan's most acclaimed restaurant" and celebrity chefs like Mario Batali and Emeril Lagasse even had guest chef stints at the eatery, but according to owner Harlan Peterson the current economy has forced him to close the doors.

"This has been a very, very difficult decision," Peterson said. "The numbers had been diminishing as the economy has been diminishing and it just becomes harder and harder to maintain the standards that we want to be known for."

He added, "There is a lot I will miss, as I was very proud of the restaurant and the style and identity of the restaurant."

Good business news included the old Charlevoix Manufacturing building being reopened as ZD Metals.

Charlevoix also saw its lighthouse turn from white to red in 2009.

Several Tax Day Tea Parties were held in the area — one of which turned into a shouting match between white tea partiers and black Obama supporters.

The year was also rife with charity.

In early spring, an anonymous benefactor paid it for ward by purchasing all the meals for anyone who ate at the Harbor View Cafe on April 8.

The restaurant served more than 100 customers that day, none of whom had known about the secret treat.

The uplifting story managed to make the Evening News with Bryan Williams.

In school news, Charlevoix voters approved a $5 million millage for school improvements and the teacher contracts were finally ratified after a year and a half of waiting.

Swine flu and bad weather swept through the area in late 2009 causing school closings for several days

And, the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan may be thousands of miles away, but a hometown boy was injured when his military vehicle was blown up by a roadside bomb. The young soldier is now well and back in Michigan where he hopes to finish college.

Also in 2009, an Elks Lodge was formed, the coast guard cutter Acacia found its final resting place in mid-Michigan and local sport enthusiast Dean Davenport was inducted into the Ferris State University's Hall of Fame.

Third time's a charm for Lake Trail

EDITORIAL

With an area of such natural splendor and scenic beauty as Charlevoix, it only makes sense to build on attractions and leisure time activities which involve the out-of-doors.

And, with a whole lot of cooperation and some quick moves by local authorities, residents and visitors to the area could soon have yet another way to enjoy Charlevoix the Beautiful.

The Lake to Lake Trail, an old railway trail from back when the currently named St Marys Cement was built, stretches from Ferry Beach to the Fisherman's Island State Park side of Lake Michigan.

We just cannot imagine a better use for an unused nature trail than a winding path for walkers, cyclists, runners and snowmobilers. And, St Marys Cement officials feel the same way, which is why they have been so cooperative with the City of Charlevoix officials and the folks from Charlevoix Township.

The reason we would like to see some swift action isn't because the trail is going anywhere, but it seems this isn't the first time we've been on the cusp of having the trail only to have the process die.

It seems this is the third time the Lake to Lake Trail architects Dean Davenport and JoAnne Beemon have been close to finalizing the agreements.

The last two times, the cement plant changed hands, causing the process and all the work that went into it to be null and void.

This is a case of a win-win-win for all parties involved. The cement company will feel good for their goodwill gesture and generous gift to the community, the citizens and visitors will have yet another venue for exercise and entertainment, and the local municipalities and businesses may pick up a few extra bucks from tourists who decide to stay an extra day because there are simply too many things to do in Charlevoix over a short weekend.

Kudos to all involved in trying to make this a reality.

If we all continue in this great spirit of cooperation, we could be using the trail by spring.

The importance of relationship over religion in matters of faith

A decade ago, before our daughter joined us, my wife and I were a pair of DINKS.

You know, dual income-no kids.

Free to travel, we spent a fair amount of time in Scotland and England.

I'm a student of Celtic Christianity and loved to slog from this abbey to that cathedral.

Ann was happy to slog between Harrods to Marks and Spencer, so it worked for us.

We spent one Christmas in London, and drove down to Winchester on Christmas Eve.

We arrived early at Winchester Cathedral for the Christmas Eve service and grabbed good seats on the center aisle just as the place began to fill to overflowing.

I knew the Church of England could be a little over the top with pomp and pageantry, but I was unprepared for the stunning visual effect of the procession of the celebrants to the altar area.

There were herald trumpeters, followed by standard bearers, altar boys, and candle bearers.

There were priests swinging gold globes of burning incense. There was a boys choir, followed by the cathedral choir. There were bearers of Scripture, and one boy carrying the cross on a staff.

Everyone was dressed in brightly colored vestments. Bringing up the rear was an archbishop wearing an embroidered gold cape with a train long enough to require the help of two altar boys.

That night was a remarkable evening, a step back in time.

But what I remember most about it was a simple snippet of conversation with the woman seated next to me.

She was a local, and I asked her how this differed from the regular cathedral service.

"I have no idea," she replied.

"I have nothing to do with religion or the Church of England," I came for the show."

Across America this holiday season churches will fill pews with people who come for the show.

Some of them will agree to come to get their spouse off their back, just as they do every Christmas and Easter, and some will come because it is a tradition.

Many won't be able to tell you exactly why they've come, but it's something they've always done and it makes them feel good.

Whether it is the traditional church on the corner or Winchester Cathedral, this Christmas many will come to a church because of tradition, but too many will miss the real message.

They will sing the songs they've sung once a year since they were children, but won't really grasp why the herald angels are singing about or why three kings would travel afar to offer gifts to a child born in a barn.

They will fight to stay awake through yet another sermon, and endure another performance of Silent Night by children costumed in cardboard wings and shepherd's robes made from towels.

This Christmas, so many will come to see the show and never meet the real star of the occasion, the celebrated Jesus.

The reason: too many don't make the important distinction between religion and relationship.

Jesus was a relational savior. While He was here among us He got involved with real people and all their messy problems.

His gospel message, the so-called "good news," was that there was now a new and foolproof means available for people who had grown estranged from God to restore that fundamental relationship between created and creator.

Christmas is intended to celebrate His arrival among us to make that new relationship a reality, available to all.

Then as now, Jesus offered eternal life as a free gift, the only God among many pretenders willing to come down to us rather than forcing us to work our way up to Him.

Believe, He said

That's it, really

Just believe in faith I am who I say I am, pleads Jesus, and a whole new relationship will open up to you.

Religion, on the other hand, has a capacity to smother that relationship by demanding our time and attention be focused on matters contrived by people rather than embraced by Jesus.

Religion places its emphasis on adherence to denominational traditions, on promoting narrow philosophies and interpretations of Scripture, and on practicing certain rites of worship.

Religion defines itself by how one group differs from, and is superior to, all others.

Religion offers empty calories, like adhering to a strict diet of only cola drinks that taste sweet and give a momentary buzz but offer no nutrition and never satisfy true hunger.

Religion, absent the relationship, is spiritually unsatisfying, and that's what leaves people cold to Christianity. The sincere spiritual seeker too often looks at Christianity and can see only empty religion.

They come looking for relationship, but too often only see a show.

The plants know ... they always know

Winter is a tough time for botanists.

When plants are not doing much that is visible, a person's thoughts must turn, not to what they are doing, but to what they are capable of.

The currently popular movie "Avatar" proposes, among other things, a planet named Pandora on which all the plants are in constant and complicated communication with one another.

Most people are not aware that we live on a planet much like that one, at least in so far as plants are in communication in ways almost as complicated as those imaginary plants on Pandora.

Some of the information following comes from an essay by Natalie Angier in the New York Times about how vegans should be more aware of the communication potential of the plants they so callously cook and consume.

All of our local forests are a complex web of sharing and communication.

An atom of a necessary mineral provided on the surface of the ground can be found only a short time later in almost any plant within a hundred feet of the place it was deposited.

All the roots of all the plants are linked by a nearly invisible network of mineral transporting fibers that share information about the needs of the connected plants and help to parse out the essential materials for the overall benefit of the whole forest.

PLANTS

One of the major problems faced by plants is the possibility of being eaten by some wandering herbivore.

Plants cannot run away. What could they possibly do?

Many plants which suffer some nibbling by anything from a caterpillar to a deer respond by quickly manufacturing or emitting chemicals that are repellent to the plant eaters.

How quickly?

Aren't plants sort of slow? The plant's response to some sort of feeding activity can happen within 20 minutes — possibly less.

In some cases, the repellent chemicals are accompanied by other newly manufactured substances that evaporate and inform surrounding plants.

Those plants then build up their own personal defenses. Some of the evaporated chemicals are specific attractants for small predators that attack the munching plant eaters.

And you thought the plants were just sitting there waiting to be eaten!

It is not necessary to imagine a planet on which plants are in continuous communication — we live on one.

And for local interest, let us not forget that each spring the Sunk Cabbage plants living in our part of Michigan put up blossoming structures that have both central heating and thermostat.

If you should happen to find such a blossom next March, hold it in your snow chilled and air chilled hand.

You will never forget that plants have capabilities that we are only beginning to understand.

Next time you peel and drop a live potato in boiling water or put live Brussels Sprouts in the oven, say a thank-you to it for sustaining you.

It might just hear you. Contact Roger Knutson at news@charlevoixcourier.com

Columnist says 2010 looks to be better than ever

Every year I struggle with the idea that I should be making at least one New Year's resolution.

There is certainly no lack of room for improvement. In fact, it may be the surplus of shortcomings that cause me to run aground when I ponder exactly where I would most benefit from a pledge of abstinence.

For while I do harbor perhaps more than my share of, if not deadly, then at least irritating sins, they are mostly sins of which I am rather fond.

If this were not so, they would have made the cut long ago.

I have negotiated the demise of scores of defects through past New Year promises.

All of the easy ones have already been sacrificed on the altar of self-improvement and I'm tempted at this point to proclaim that I'm done.

Of course I'm not. And I don't know if I've actually made any real progress or if I've just acclimated to the chilly waters of imperfection.

But for whatever reason, I'm not overly anxious to rattle the status quo. It seems unnecessary.

Especially since, as I mentioned, the leftover transgressions barely warrant scrutiny.

Certainly any remnants of the Big Seven — greed, lust, sloth, envy, gluttony, anger and pride — have been ground into dust beneath the boot heels of experience.

But maybe I should review the basics, just to be sure that I haven't lapsed.

Greed: It hardly seems worth the effort, considering that there isn't enough to worry about.

The bank and I have an uneasy truce when it comes to my finances.

For my part, I am sure that they consistently make horrible mathematical errors and they, in turn, write me little notes requesting contributions to my account.

We are wary of each other, but ultimately apathetic, as we both have more pressing issues to deal with.

Lust: Ha! Unless I count Ben and Jerry, which brings me to Gluttony: Here is where I stumble, but I do fall short of debilitating excess.

Once in a while, I will succumb to tub of something or other.

I also think that the word "pastry" has a lilt and musical sound, and I would love to see it gain favor as the next celebrity baby name.

Sloth: If I manage to shed my pajamas by noon, I feel that I'm keeping pace.

Envy: I do envy Angelina Jolie, but who doesn't?

Anger: Now that the meds have kicked in, I'm pretty cheerful.

Pride: Everything that once may have afforded me a platform from where I could have oozed arrogance has flattened, fallen or flopped.

I start all over again on a weekly basis. To be more humble and unassuming, I would have to wrap myself in barbed wire and sprinkle broken glass in my shoes.

So the Seven Deadly don't seem to be a problem.

I am left to focus upon the Thousand Irritating. And it is from this wellspring that I will cull my 2010 resolutions. The candidates are:

1. Write it down — I continue to believe that I will remember things without bothering to take notes. I am wrong.

2. Waterproof my boots — Really, why don't I ever do this?

3. Stop letting vegetables rot in the crisper — It's difficult to stir-fry broccoli once it has liquefied.

4. Be nicer to the pious — Although it is a knee-jerk reaction to be a tad short when uninvited strangers knock on my door to impart their religious doctrine, I should invite them in and reciprocate to their information by reading aloud from my diary or initiating a game of Scrabble. Everyone has their own beliefs, and mine include the conviction that if someone drops in unannounced and doesn't even bring a plate of cookies, I get to choose the entertainment.

5. Stop smoking — Okay, it's either this or #4. There's no way that I can be nicer to the pious without a cigarette.

"I just have the best time when I'm up there," Elizabeth said. "Some of my best memories are from being in Charlevoix."

She added, "The beauty of it both mystifies me and amazes me. When I'm in Charlevoix, I just have fun. I forget about all the drama of being a teenager and I just relax."

According to Elizabeth, "When it's time to leave my beautiful wonderland, a deep pit of sadness forms in my stomach, but then I think about next year, and all the beauty that awaits me."

Sub-station a 'Go'

BY STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

439-9346
szucker@petoskeynews.com

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider can start shopping for a new location for the agency's Boyne Falls substation after the county board of commissioners approved setting aside $50,000 for the effort Wednesday.

The commissioners unanimously approved Schneider's request to set aside the money to be used as local match for a number of grants he and undersheriff Chuck Vondra are seeking for the substation relocation effort.

Schneider said the Boyne Falls substation was established about 32 years ago by former sheriff George T. Lasater shortly after he took office to provide better service to the eastern half of the county.

In those three-plus decades the sub-station has grown from serving as an office for one deputy to serving as a base of operations for seven.

And the "station" still occupies the 11 foot by 20 foot office in Boyne Falls' Department of Public Works garage near the corner of Second and Railroad streets.

The office, which houses a bank of file cabinets, four desks, some basic office equipment and small appliances, has one tiny bathroom and no garage or other storage space.

Schneider said the department's three patrol cars assigned to the station are currently housed in some extra space in the Boyne Falls Public School bus garage.

Schneider said he's looking for a facility that will provide some additional office space, a separate interview room, a bathroom with a shower, storage space and garage space.

Schneider estimates that the cost of to buy or build such a facility in Boyne Falls would cost somewhere between $100,000 and $150,000.

He said he would like to pursue a number of grants that are available, but noted that most such grants require a local match.

The board of commissioners also approved a request from Schneider for $13,000 to replace the existing worn-out control panel at the jail with a new computerized model.

Schneider said after being used around the clock for 10 years to operate nearly every function of the jail, it's only a matter of time before the control panel fails.

Vondra said a combined cost savings of about $20,000 from not having the old panel serviced last year and a one-year warranty on the new panel in the coming year should more than offset the cost of the new system.

In a final bit of sheriff's office-related business, the board of commissioners unanimously approved a three-year contract with the sheriff's corrections officers.

The commission approved the contract which has not yet been ratified by the corrections officers union.

Schneider said some of the corrections officers had sought more explanation about new language in the contract permitting the sheriff to do random drug testing and another that requires corrections officers to report any prescription drugs they are taking to him.

Bearing winter

The Sladick family of East Jordan creates a different snow sculpture every year. This year it was the Coca Cola bear. The sculpture can be seen at 504 Main St. in East Jordan. The family's motto is "When God gives you snow, make snow sculptures." The 10-foot bear was built on Christmas day by Jeannine Sladick and family; Isaiah, Briana, Ehren, Simon, and Peter (not pictured.) than traditional garbage bags.

"There is absolutely no reason you shouldn't use this bag," said Spencley.

"If you think about it, if it's the same price and good for the environment, and it is just as strong, why wouldn't you?"

Spencley said the Green-core bags are a perfect fit for his line of work, and ideally, he hopes to have all of his customers using the bags.

"If you really think about it, the whole concept around the idea is where does your garbage go?" said Spencley.

"You throw it in the bag, and see it made into a garbage bag. It connects the loop."
